Bullets Hailed Around Escaping Woman.

TRIO CRAWL OVER DEAD

Mate of Chinese Leader Forced to Don Disguises in Order to Get Out of Zone.

SHANGHAI, June 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Madam Sun Yat-sen, wife of the deposed president of south China, who arrived here today from Canton, described in an interview with the Associated Press her husband's flight and her last stand in the presidential palace with a body guard of 50 soldiers against Chen Chiung-ming's troops.

Madam Sun declared that a scant 500 men under her husband's command were opposed to an army of 25,000 led by Chen Chiung-ming and that the bodyguard of 50 soldiers left with her in the presidential palace when her husband, after her repeated urging, took refuge in flight, was killed to a man.

Wife is Told to Flee.
The wife of the fallen southern leader said she was awakened at 2 o'clock in the morning, June 16, by her husband, who told her that she must flee. He informed her he had been warned by telephone that General Chen's troops were looting the city with cries of "kill the president," and that they were planning to attack his residence.

Madam Sun insisted that she would be safe in the presidential palace and, finally Dr. Sun agreed to leave her in the care of a heavily armed bodyguard of 50 of his retainers.

Half an hour after Sun had departed the volleys from Chen's soldiers began pouring into the palace from the hillsides surrounding it.

Palace Guards Reply.
The palace guards replied, volley for volley, the staff of servants of the official residence aiding them. Many of the defenders fell, but the remainder continued the unequal battle even after portions of the palace had been destroyed over their heads by shells from a mountain gun, which Chen's men had posted on a nearby hillside.

The remnant of the bodyguard stuck to their rifles until 3 o'clock in the morning when their ammunition gave out.

At this juncture Colonel George Bow, aide to Sun Yat-sen, made his way to the palace from the president's office a third of a mile away. He traversed a narrow footbridge under heavy fire and when he found Madam Sun he urged her to take instant flight.

Hall of Bullets Met.
With Colonel Bow and two members of her dejected bodyguard Madam Sun crossed the footbridge on her hands and knees while a hail of bullets from the rifles of Chen's troops poured about the little party and tore away sections of the flimsy bridge.

Once across the bridge they clambered over roofs in their dash for the protection of the presidential offices. Colonel Bow dropped with bullets in both legs and Madam Sun and her two Chinese guards dragged him the remainder of the way into the offices and barricaded the place as best they could. There they remained until 4 o'clock in the afternoon while their assailants kept continuous volleys at their refuge.

Finally Chen's troops who had looted the treasury and the customs offices, forced the gates of the compound of the office. As the horde rushed into the inclosure the president's wife crushed an old straw hat down on her head and slipped into the street with her two faithful guards.

Lanes Strewn With Corpses.
Through crooked streets and narrow lanes strewn with corpses, the trio fled, at times forced to throw themselves on the ground with the dead to escape the torrents of lead raking the city and to escape the menacing hands of soldiery sacking the shops.

Once clear of Canton, they hid in a farm house for the rest of the night and in the morning Madam Sun, disguised as a country woman with a basket of vegetables on her arm, accompanied by one guard in the stained blouse of a laborer, succeeded in winning the safety of a friend's home.

There they remained the second night, listening to the cruisers of Sun's navy hurling shells into the city, the explosions telling the fugitive that her husband still had loyal forces to pit against the Kwangtung levies of Chen Chiung-ming.

Disguise Again Assumed.
Even in the home of a friend, Madam Sun was not safe and when Chen's troops appeared in the neighborhood of this retreat, she again assumed the disguise of a country woman and made her way to the water front. There she succeeded in engaging a sampan which carried her to Shamen, the foreign settlement on an island near Canton.

There she obtained a launch on which she made the short trip back to the shelter of the Christian college in Canton, where Wu Ting-fang, her husband's foreign minister, had taken refuge.

When the excitement had quieted down, she rejoined her husband aboard his cruiser. Then she went to Hong Kong and took ship for Shanghai, arriving here today.

Madam Sun, like her husband, firmly believes that Sun's eclipse is only temporary and that he soon will be restored.

working conditions by the federal labor board.

While union heads expressed the hope that the railroad heads might listen to their latest peace proposal, the suppressed excitement and tense atmosphere around union headquarters seemed to portend some momentous action.

Blame for the entire strike situation was placed squarely on the shoulders of the railway executives by President Jewell's telegram. He declared that the passage of the transportation act had resulted in a series of controversies between the roads and their employees which had developed a situation wherein nearly 1,000,000 men, or two-thirds of those in railroad employ today, are taking a strike vote.

Besides the shopmen, the maintenance of way laborers, firemen and others, and part of the clerks and signal men are balloting on the strike question.

The telegram reviewed rail events since the passage of the trans-

RESOLUTION IS OFFERED
Decision on Reduction of Pay Would Be Rescinded.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—A joint resolution which would authorize the railroad labor board to rescind its decision reducing the wages of railroad employees effective July 1 was introduced in the house today by Representative Burke, republican, Pennsylvania, a member of the Order of Railroad Conductors of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

The Burke resolution embodied a declaration that "the decision of the board savors so much of one-sided justice and has caused such dissatisfaction and discontent that a strike seems both imminent and inevitable."

It also asserted that "the standard of living cannot be maintained upon a minimum wage proposed by the board of 33 cents an hour, or $1.84 a day."

Declaring that the reduction in wages proposed would affect 1,500,000 workers, the resolution asserted that the wages fixed by the board would constitute "a Chinese standard of labor" which would be repugnant to the American people who believe in just wages and decent working conditions.

amplifying bulbs and two head sets out to Salmon creek, and stretched antenna, using a tin can to which was soldered a 26-gauge wire for a ground, the can being dropped into Salmon creek 40 feet away. A short time after setting up they got J. B. Weed's voice announcing the first yodel. This came in very strong and with good modulation, loud enough to be attached to a horn.

Later they cut off the copper wire antenna and drove an eight-penny nail into the trunk of the tree about five feet from the ground and connected a wire to the nail and the set. By turning the tuning condenser just a couple of points they were astonished to hear the concert coming in louder and more clearly than with the copper wire antenna. This tree is about 15 miles from The Oregonian tower, and is on the bank of the stream.

BANDITS IN MEXICO HOLD 40 AMERICANS

Property Worth $250,000 Is Seized Also.

RANSOM IS DEMANDED

U. S. Government Asks Obregon to Take Prompt Measures Against Outlaws.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Forty American employees of the Cortez Oil company near Tampico and property valued at a quarter of a million dollars and being held by a rebel general until ransom of 15,000 pesos is paid, according to a message from the American consul at Tampico to the state department. The dispatch was dated yesterday and said that the "rebel General Gorazale" had seized the company's property and was holding it with 240 well-armed men. Prompt instructions were sent by the state department to the embassy in Mexico city and to the consul at Tampico to urge the Mexican authorities to take immediate action for the protection of American lives and property.

Lacking further information as to what has happened behind what is apparently a rigid censorship at Tampico, however, there was little to indicate tonight whether the incident would lead to any change of attitude here toward the Obregon government in Mexico.

Effect Is Considered.
In fact, at the White House it was said that relations between the United States and Mexico were not likely to be affected in any way by the bandit outbreak and the recent kidnaping for ransom near Cuernavaca of Bruce Bielaski, formerly chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice.

Until it is known that the incidents are not a matter of domestic politics in Mexico, conceived by enemies of the Obregon government to embarrass its relations with the United States, or until that government had been proved unequal to according such protection to Americans and their property as the occasion demands, there appears to be no disposition here to move in any other than a diplomatic way.

Time Limit Is Up.
The consul reported that the rebel general had given 48 hours from Sunday morning, when the raid occurred, for payment as demanded. The time limit elapsed this morning. It was expected that further word would come at any moment, showing what finally had occurred.

There were indications that state department officials were not exactly sure just what sort of a situation they had to meet.

At least, so far as known, the state department had not tonight reported the Cortez company incident to either army or navy officials, or inquired as to the availability of navy ships to send to the scene. There is no American warship now in waters adjacent to Tampico, the Galveston being at Guantanamo, Cuba, and Rear Admiral Coles, with three ships of his special service squadron, in canal zone waters.

STARVING HORSE SAVED

Animal Tied to Tree for Week Without Food or Water.

Tied to a tree in the woods south of Powell valley road near Buckley avenue for more than a week without food and water, a dark bay horse was rescued from near death yesterday by A. L. Cross, deputy humane officer.

The owner of the horse, who was the possessor of peddler's license second quarter, class 2, No. 44, is now being sought. It was thought that he might have met with an accident.

R. C. Hamill, a farmer living near where the horse was found, told the humane officer of having seen the animal there more than a week ago. The animal had harness on. The peddler's wagon to which it had been attached was standing by the side of the road and the iron tires had rusted where they stood.

Carey FIBRE COATING

will fix it up!

EVEN though the roof has already begun to leak, Carey Fibre Coating will frequently make it sound and whole again—and add years to its useful service.

It is applied like paint but it is more than paint. Preservative oil penetrates the old material and gives it new life; asbestos fibre and heavier oils fill the pores and small holes and seal them against moisture.

The fibre coating contains roofing material. It adds a new layer of real roofing to the old roof. It increases the life of a roof by at least a fifth. And it costs no more than an eighth of the price of a new roof. So it pays well.

Fibre Coating can be used on wood, metal, composition, and gravel roofs; on flat, sloping or upright surfaces. One and a half gallons cover 100 square feet.
