H. KINSEY ENTERS

Some Excellent Matches Assured for Oregon Championships on Irvington Courts.

Howard Kinsey, who ranked fourth among California's tennis stars in 1921, is the latest Pacific coast wizard to send in his entry for the Oregon state championship tennis tournament, which will start on the Irvington club courts next Mon-day and run through the week. Howard Kinsey and his brother Bob are rated two of the best tennis-players California has produced. They are just in their prime and coming. For the last two years one or the other has figured in every big tournament in California.

big tournament in California.

In 1919 and 1920 the pair won the Pacific coast doubles championship.

Last year they went a step further and won the sectional doubles title. It took William Johnston to put Howard Kinsey out of the running in the race for the Pacific coast sin Americans—one, two, three in the doubles crown. They defeated Miss Thorn and Phil Bettens in the fit ils.

Howard Kinsey continued his great work in the San Francisco championships only to lose to Roland Roberts in the final match for the singles championship. Teamed with his brother, he won the dou-bles title, however.

The bay countles' championship tournament shortly afterward found Howard going at a great clip, but he defaulted to his brother in the semi-finals. Robert Kinsey stepped into the finals without a struggle and beat Phil Bettens for the crown. Howard Kinsey and Casey in the doubles reached the semi-final round, where they were beaten by Roberts and J. Strachan. The Kin-sey brothers teamed together again for the California sectional doubles championship and won it, defeating Roland Roberts and Willis E. Davis, star players, in the finals, Great Matches Assured. With Kinsey, Herbert Suhr, Peck Griffin, Van Dyke Johns, Catlin Wolfard, Kenneth Smith and other stars entered in this year's tourna-ment, tennis followers are assured of some great matches. Meyers came west with the express purpose of cleaning up the middleweight wrestling situation. So far he has been on a fair way to accomplish his aim. First Meyers tackled George Barnes, a first-rate wrestler scaling about 170 pounds, and threw him easy.

Next came Ted Thye. They wres-tled at catch weights in Spokane a month ago. The match was not for the middleweight title. It was billed for 12 10-minute rounds. Moyers threw Thye in the sixth round and according to the White rules, under which the match was held, Meyers which the match was held, Meyers should have been declared the winner then and there. But it went on to another fail, which Thye finally put over in the tenth round. They came back again and at the of the 12th round the referee gave Thye the decision. They weighed around the decision. the match was declared a draw According to White, Thye was a bit overweight. Walter Miller, not Thye, has been claiming the middleweight title out here and as Walter is said to weigh here and as Walter is said to weigh but 158 pounds, it is Miller that defend a stonewall in defense and Meyers is after. White said he had been offered another match for Meyers with Thye here but had refused it. He figures he can get nothing wrestling Thye again. The game is not drawing and even a victory would have no bearing on the title. Miller is the man White wants. They left Portland for Los Angeles last night.

She won with something in heard all times, but made several errors in the second set, which however, were hardly to be avoided because of the bad condition of the court. Mrs. Mallory has reached the semi-finals without losing a single set and, in doing so, has defeated Mrs. Keays, Mrs. Hullick, Mrs. Parton and Mrs. Edginton. But tomorrow she is to meet Mrs. Beamish and this will be the great test concerning which critics are open-minded.

There isn't much to tell about my defeat, but one could write a volume about Hagen's victory and the great finish of George Duncan, the British player, who came within a stroke of tying and incidentally shoved me a notch farther down.

It was a grand and glorious finish and one that I will remember the longest day that I live. Champlonship finishes like that are calculated to make their hand stand on end. The scene at Sandwich on that last day and that last trying at the title that six times he has that last day and that last trying hour was worth crossing the ocean

Duncan Breaks Monopoly.

Then along came the long Jim Barnes and nipped me by a stroke. This made the finish all the more in the race for the Pacific coast singles title last year. Kinsey lost to that wizard in the fourth round of the tournament, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5.
