

MR. GOULD LOSES WILLIONS FOR LOVE

Wedding to Actress Costs Property of Dead Wife.

WILL PROVIDES PENALTY

Between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 Left to Husband During Time of Widowerhood.

NEW YORK, July 12.—George Gould, whose marriage in Paris last week to Mrs. Alice Sinclair, an actress, became known here today, loses an estate of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 as a result of this second marriage.

This estate, including the Gould town house at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, and another residence in East Sixty-fourth street, was bequeathed to Mr. Gould by his first wife "during his life and until he remarries."

That part of the estate now will be divided into equal shares and held in trust for the seven children of the late Mrs. Gould. The town house was recently offered for sale.

Mr. Gould was married in Paris about a week ago for the second time. Knowledge of the second marriage was made public through cablegrams to members of the Gould family. The bride was Mrs. Alice Sinclair, an actress, who achieved some success in a musical comedy several years ago.

Mr. Gould went abroad several months ago, but no hint was given that he intended to take a second wife.

A sojourn in Scotland until fall, it is understood, will keep Mr. and Mrs. Gould abroad until November.

Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, first wife of George J. Gould, died less than a year ago. Mr. Gould was playing golf with her husband on their estate, Georgian court, at Lakeview, New Jersey, last November when she was stricken by a heart attack and died in a few minutes.

The marriage of the first Mrs. Gould took place at the home of the late Jay Gould in Irvington in 1886. She was an actress in the company of the late Augustin Daly when she became engaged to Mr. Gould.

George J. Gould was born in New York city February 6, 1864, and was educated in Dr. Cornwell's private school. Upon the death of his father, he took up the management of the Gould enterprises and has been in frequent litigation with other members of the family over his management of the estate. His recent removal as trustee of the estate by Supreme Court Justice Whitaker followed several court actions.

Broadway and its show people and Fifth and Park avenues and their society folk consulted their best memories today to find out who is Mrs. Alice Sinclair.

Cable dispatches bringing first news of the nuptials to this morning's newspapers mentioned that she was an actress and had played behind the footlights here. With this for a clue, it finally was established that she came here in the cast of an English musical comedy some years ago, and had thereafter lived in West End avenue and at a country home on an island in Long Island sound, off New York.

A familiar figure in that village and residents there said she was the mother of two children. She mingled seldom in the society of the place. For several years, it was said, she and Mr. Gould had been friendly.

YOUTHS HEAR EDUCATOR

OKLAHOMAN PLEADS FOR HIGHER EDUCATION.

Ex-Chancellor of University, Who Earned Way by Shoveling Coal, Addresses Chautauqua.

GLADSTONE PARK, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—George H. Bradford, ex-chancellor of the University of Oklahoma, addressed the Gladstone Chautauqua tonight on "The How, When and Why of Your Way Up."

The chancellor's talk was of an inspirational nature, his appeal being for higher education, and directed principally at the boys and girls in attendance.

Dr. Bradford said he earned his way through university by shoveling coal.

The afternoon symposium was devoted to talks on books and libraries. Miss Anne Malheron, head of the Portland library, spoke on "The Magic Door." Miss Mabel Arundel Hartz spoke on "What the Children Are Reading," and Miss Margaret MacLachlan, head of the Portland library circulation department, spoke on "Contagious Books."

The afternoon and evening programmes tomorrow will be concerts by the New York City Concert Quartet. The children's pageant, in costume, will be given in the afternoon. The afternoon symposium will be "All Booklovers' Day." Gilbert Hedges of Oregon City, will give a short talk on impressions of his recent European trip.

RECALL ELECTION SET

LEAGUE BACKING SHERIFF TO ASK INJUNCTION.

Rumors Declare Removal of Jackson County Judge and Clerk Will Be Sought.

MEDFORD, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—Three new developments arose today in the Jackson county recall fight.

The county clerk ordered the special election to be held Saturday, July 29, and issued a call to that effect.

The citizens league announced that it would file through Sheriff C. E. Terrill an application for an injunction to enjoin the county clerk from taking any steps toward holding the election and would carry the fight to the highest court of the land for final adjudication if necessary.

The nomination petitions of D. M. Lowe, farmer and fair exhibit collector, were filed with the county clerk and that official announced: "I have grave doubts about the legality of these petitions as they are not sworn to and none of the signers have made affidavits and I may throw them out. I am going to get a decision from the district attorney and the attorney-general of the state on the points."

It was also reported, but not confirmed, that petitions would be circulated this week seeking the recall of George A. Gardner, county judge and Chauncey Flory, county clerk. This action has been threatened for months.

No definite date has been set for the calling of the special grand jury ordered by Governor Olcott to investigate the "necktie parties" in this section last spring.

FARMS SEE GOOD WEEK

Weather Generally Favorable, Is Federal Report.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The country's farmers generally have had a good week, the weather bureau reported today in its weather and crop review for the seven-day period ending with yesterday.

Generous rains fell in the north-central valley regions, where the drought had become very serious, the review said.

Despite rains, harvesting of winter wheat made good progress, cutting being under way practically to the northern limits of the belt in the central states. Cool weather, with ample moisture, was decidedly favorable for spring wheat in the north central states and the crop was improved by rainfall in Montana and northeastern Wyoming. Hot, dry weather was unfavorable for such wheat in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

Reports to the bureau further revealed that the oats crop will be very poor.

Temperature and moisture conditions were very favorable for corn in all the central states and the crop was reported as having made satisfactory progress.

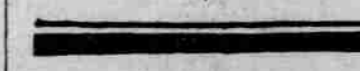

Lumbermen to Picnic Today.

RACE FOR GOVERNOR OF OHIO GROWS HOT

Sharp Partisan Campaigns Gathering Momentum.

SITUATION IS COMPLEX

Nine Republicans and Up to Date Four Democrats Have Entered Fight for Nominations.

COLUMBUS, O., July 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Particular attention in connection with the Ohio primaries August 8 centers on the republican nomination for governor. The democratic contest for governor and the republican nomination for United States senator also are developing sharp campaigns.

There are nine candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, and four are contesting for the democratic nomination, although one may be ruled out on a technicality. Four are in the race for the republican senatorial nomination. For the democratic senatorial nomination, Senator C. P. Jones is opposed by John J. Lentz of Columbus, ex-representative.

There are 65 candidates for nomination for state offices on the republican and democratic tickets, the largest field the voters of Ohio have ever been called upon to face.

Cleveland Man Strong. Chief interest in the republican gubernatorial race appears to lie in the probable strength of Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, who has been endorsed by the organization in the larger cities and who is reported to be the personal choice of President Harding, himself an Ohioan. Thompson formerly was secretary of state in Ohio and took a prominent part in the American delegation at the Washington armament conference.

Among those pitted against him are Charles L. Knight of Akron, representative in congress, who is running as a "progressive-republican," and Harvey C. Smith of Zanesville, secretary of state, who has been characterized by the prohibition forces as a liberal candidate. Governor Davis of Cleveland decided not to seek re-election.

Knight was a member of the progressive party in 1912 and a follower of Theodore Roosevelt. His friends say that Ohio progressive forces are as strong as their victorious neighbors in Indiana, Pennsylvania and Iowa, and that Representative Knight will be swept into the nomination.

Smith, formerly a probate judge at Zanesville, has served two terms as secretary of state. He has been characterized by the Anti-Saloon league charges that Smith is a "progressive-republican" and has a large vote from those opposed to prohibition.

C. Homer Durand of Coshocton is running on a wine-and-beer platform, as is J. W. Durnell of Columbus. Daniel W. Williams, a Jackson newspaper publisher, also classes himself as a "progressive-republican." He was the progressive candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1912. Arthur H. Day of Cleveland, state senator, is running as a soldier candidate. He served overseas during the war and was the author of the Ohio soldiers' bonus law.

Negro Also Enters Race. Rupert R. Beetham of Cadis, speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, has come out on a platform advocating the curtailment of campaign expenses and the publication before election of expense accounts by candidates.

Harry Clay Smith, Cleveland negro editor, was one of the last to enter the race. Friends of Secretary of State Smith charge that the Cleveland negro was induced to enter the race by opponents to their candidate, who hope to split Judge Smith's vote through the similarity of names on the ballots. The Cleveland negro opposed Judge Smith for the nomination for secretary of state two years ago.

The United States National Bank Sixth and Stark

"One of the Northwest's Great Banks"

At the conclusion of every advertisement of the United States National Bank will be found the slogan, "One of the Northwest's great banks." It is with a feeling of pardonable pride that this institution looks back over its part in the development of our Northwest. It is with a sense of a task well done, yet with the realization that its work has but just begun, that the United States National Bank plans to make this year one of even bigger accomplishment for our great country. —and is there, after all, a finer reward than to be held "One of the Northwest's great banks"?
