from Bendia arsenal will be placed on the veterans' memorial plot at Mount Scott cemetery.

Official notice that the guns would be lent to the city was received yesterday. In the statement from the war department it is pointed out that while the guns are "unsuited" for firing they are lent to the city "with the understanding that should future service demand they will be subject to return to the government."

Griffith. A large number of relatives and friends were present. Final services were held at Mount Scott cemetery.

Robert O. Shoemaker was 38 years old at the time of his death. He graduated with the June class this year from Washington High school. He was prominent in school affairs and was widely popular among the students. He went to Midway Beach, near Ocean Lake, early last week, and with Carl Riesland had Plenic tickets are being sold on the downtown streets from a truck on which a burlap is mounted. A legless mangle hero, M. C. Stewart, who enlisted from Portland at the outbreak of the war and who is staying over in Portland to assist the local veterans in their campaign, has been put in charge of the ticket selling.

Widow Zander is the charming reincarnation of all the lovely wives of all the rascals of all the ages. She indisputably has the goods. Between her and the house of Gump there is a feud during feud. Not only because she gushes, and patronizes that enraged family, holds her dimpled chin a bit too high, and is high treason itself—she seeks the strong hand and tremendous fortune of Uncle Min. Yet why as the widow is, virtue circumscribed her when she made her last essay. And now she mourns him that was once her bimbo, who has voyaged back to Australia with his magic bank book.

Carlos—we've always been sorry for Carlos. He yearns for the flicker widow, whose heart might have been his but for the allure of Uncle Min's millions. Gold blinded her and the woman and she threw him down hard. Yet Carlos never lost his smile, and his judgy nonchalance, nor his ambition to wed the widow. Even now he looks like a good bet, this passive caller who, after all, is as faithful and omnipresent as a pet poodle. We've always been a trifle sorry for Carlos—but heaven forbid we pity the poor wight if he attains his dream.

And there you are. There are other characters. There's Old Timer, for instance. New ones may hunt the smiling fancy of Sidney Smith. Yet these suffice to portray for us the unconscious humor of life, and by gosh, this goes to broaden us as we smoo.

For the Gumps, before all else, are very human. They are with us every day now and soon will join the Sunday colored comic section.

Little Chester, we are well aware, is the inhabitant of three anxious hearts—Andy's—Andy Min's and Uncle Min's. This juvenile Gump is the hope of the house of Gump and the pride of the family. If Uncle Min tenderly assists or accepts matrimony, the vast Australian estates will be his. The splendid palace of the island continent, the diversity of important affairs, and the heaped-up security chests, Little Chester is the uncrowned king of the Gump menage. He has but to utter to be spanked, and to howl to be

Customers

The business man should realize that he is separated from his customers—old and new—by minutes, not miles. In these days of strenuous competition the successful merchant must make the best use of his resources, and there is none more important than his long distance telephone service.

In the transaction of business the use of the long distance telephone will mean the prompt answer, the personal touch and an economy of time. Every Bell telephone is a Long Distance station.
