MISS CHARLOTTE BALLIN became the bride of Christopher Story Jr. of New York last night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ballin, at 8:30 o'clock. Her bridal gown was of white satin and georgette, elaborated with bead motifs. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and trimmed with old Dutch lace. Lilies of the valley and orchids formed the bridal bouquet.

Miss Lenore M. Younger, as maid of honor, wore a gown of orchid lace and georgette, with hat to match. The flower girls, nieces of the bride, Virginia Hamlin and Marjorie Walls, were dressed in ruffled white net over pink taffeta. Richard Theis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Theis, was the ring bearer and wore a black velvet suit.

Rev. Norman K. Tully, the bridegroom and his best man, Clyde L. Lee of Astoria, stood at the improvised altar while Mrs. Nellie L. Torgler played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." They were met by the remainder of the bridal party. The soloist was Miss Lane, who sang "When You Are Near Me" and "Beloved, It Is Morn."

A reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Ballin, who received with the principals, was crowned in black lace over silver and wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. R. Sandstrom and Mrs. Charles Jensen presided at the coffee urns, while Mrs. D. R. Rich and Mrs. Raymond C. Bradley cut loaves. Miss Audrey Jensen and Miss Thelma Sandstrom presided at the punch bowl, assisting were Mrs. Virgil Hamlin, Mrs. Charles Clement, Mrs. Herbert Ballin and Miss Myrtle McLean.

Problems of Dressmaking

Madam Richet—I now bring my problem to you and feel that you will give me the help I hope for. I am tired of the perfectly plain blouse line and yet I dislike the vest, as they seem so old style. Will you please select something that will be a little different from a blonde and quite slender, of good color and figure. I have a dressmaker engaged and will appreciate an early reply. Material is voile and six yards in length. ELSA PAGGETTE.

ELSA PAGGETTE—How one does get weary of the much seen, and yet who would ever discard the thing quite obsolete? I am wondering if the frock as pictured in the August Fashionable Dress on page 20, No. 2067, will not refresh your apparel spirit. It, too, is a voile and has the crepe de chine trimming, most attractively combined. Not having a sample of your material, I cannot suggest what shade of crepe to use, but I am sure you will select something equal to that selection. The buckle as used gives a pleasing and modish touch.

If you should have further need for this department will you write very legibly, as legibility is a sine-quaere ad time and the editor.

PORTLAND, July 25.—Dear Madam Richet—read your column every Sunday and daily, too. I wonder if you could help me.

What trimmings would you suggest for the following: A pink and white checked gingham, and a brown and white checked blouse. I would like something besides the usual solid color.

Orphia temple No. 18, Pythian Sisters, will hold its regular business meeting tonight promptly at 8 o'clock on the third floor of the Pythian building.

In the August issue of the Designer you will find on page 61, No. 2870, another model well suited to your material and age. Have the white material of the plique and the touch of handwork done in the pink embroidery cotton as used for handkerchief handwork.

For your school wardrobe my first suggestion would be that you keep it simple and modest, selecting those materials which are in keeping with the schoolroom and your very precious years. The dress with matching cape will mean much comfort and will add a wrinkle for the other frocks you will wear from time to time. In the August Designer on page 63, No. 2884, is such a model and in a good serge of blue or brown will be splendid. Just above the line wherein the gathers are held I would have a design done in the worsteds in a combination of colors in red, green and black. The design pictured in the same issue, page 61, No. 2842. The pattern will prove a very effective one. For the cape I think it would be an advantage to add a larger collar than is shown on the particular model numbered. The edges could be worked in the same design as used on your dress. With this outfit wear the woolen stockings and the oxfords, either in the tan, brown or the black. Show you choose the brown for your dress, have the same shade in the hose and the oxfords.

For a change in the apparel I would have the sport skirt of wool in a blue and tan combination and the slipover sweater in a becoming blue or tan. Wear the Peter Pan pungee waists underneath. You can make your own sweater, I feel sure. Have the two-piece skirt, as the pleated ones are a care and time usurper during the school rush, as they require constant pressing to appear well "groomed."

To wear with the last named, I would have for those colder mornings a scarf of the Angora and the edges run in the gay shade of worsteds and a fringe of the same.

With these two outfits you will have all that is needed for regular wear. For the party connected with the school activities, have a simple dress of daintily figured voile made after the very girlish model shown on page 63, No. 2880, August Designer.

WIFE'S TEARS FUTILE

Judge Advises Moonshiners to Think of Families First.

Bootleggers and moonshiners should think of their families before entering those disreputable and illegal professions, Federal Judge Bean stated yesterday morning in sentencing Archie Bates, Kendall station farmer, to a three month term in the county jail. Bates' wife was in the courtroom and burst into tears when her husband came up for trial. Lawyers for the defense stressed the point that the sentencing of the prisoner to jail would mean that his wife and children would be the real victims.

Men who have families should show enough regard for them to keep out of danger of jail. The time to think of the family is before being arrested, not after being brought into court, the judge stated.

Bates fell into the hands of the law as a result of the well-developed noses of prohibition agents. The sleuths, circling his little farm, detected the unmistakable smells of a still in operation. Breaking into a chicken house they found a 25-gallon still running full blast.

Bates, after being arrested, decided to fight the case. After the jury had been selected yesterday morning, he suddenly experienced a change of heart and agreed to plead guilty. The three months' sentence followed.
