PORTLAND CHECKS ORIENTAL INMIGRATION

91 Aliens Admitted in 1921; 186 Are Deported.

DESERTERS SENT HOME

Smuggling of Chinese Into America on Increase, Says Inspector Bonham.

America is still the goal for the hungry millions of the orient and without strict immigration laws the Pacific coast would be overrun with Chinese and Japanese in ten years.

Smuggling Chinese laborers into the country is on the increase, Mr. Bonham stated, and the principal effort of the local immigration officials is directed toward keeping the country free of smuggled orientals.

186 Are Deported.

If the other immigration stations of the United States worked on the same system as the local office the country would soon be cleared of aliens.

Ninety-one aliens were admitted to the United States through Portland last year and 186 were arrested and deported.

The other 96 existing in Shanghai, Canton and Hongkong.

Sixteen stowaways, all Japanese, were discovered on the arrival of oriental liners in this port. They were sent back on the steamers which brought them here.

Deserters Sent Home.

Twenty-seven Chinese deserted ships in Portland harbor. Of this number 21 were caught and returned to the orient.

Ninety-six Japanese also left their vessels in this port. They far outnumber the Chinese, but 37 of the 96 were captured.

An evidence of the increase in the port's shipping is also seen in Mr. Bonham's report. During the past year local immigration officers examined 13,755 seamen on vessels which entered the Columbia river, a 600 per cent increase over the work done in 1920.

The Chinese problem is the important one that faces the immigration service on the Pacific coast," Mr. Bonham said.

The Chinese who are smuggled into America are paying from $1000 to $2000 for the passage to this country.

They come with one object, that of securing enough to eat and a place to sleep.

Daughters Are Mortgaged. "The Chinese will do anything for passage to America. Those who cannot borrow the passage money from friends or relatives bond themselves to the smuggling rings and agree to pay the money after being landed in this country.

Months ago I caught a middle-aged Chinese near Salem who had been smuggled into this country. This man, on examination, stated that he had mortgaged his six daughters to a slave ring in order to raise passage money and that deportation would be taken from him and sold in the open market."
