college freshman should contain? Also, what color of slip-over sweater and what color of materials for two blouses to wear with or without the sweater? Prefer overblouses instead of tuck-in style. Age 18, height 5 feet 3 inches, bust 32, waist 26, hips 36, weight 140 pounds. Dark brown hair, a little color, brown eyes, clear complexion. Thanking you most appreciatively for your kind help. MISS O. A. C.

Miss O. A. C., Halsey, Or.—Inasmuch as the head-of-the-frock will be worn more than ever this fall and winter I would suggest that you keep yours as it is and enjoy it as a dinner dress or for the more "dressed up" for Sunday, etc. And, too, the dress would be rather dressy for the classroom, even were you to have the embroidery rather than the head trim. The crepe de chine is in itself a more "social" fabric. And so, kind reader, may I suggest that for the classroom you wear a frock or serge or gabardine and made after the very stunning model pictured in the Designer for August, page 59, No. 3958. Select a becoming blue and do the very charming design in the black, bright red, green, tan and the blue lighter shade. Dress in the more. I would not have, but rather, a well-sewed-by-hand hem. The vestee should be of the crash in the top or tulle. This will give service and always carry a certain distinctive quality of line and color value.

In your wardrobe you should have the two dresses as above mentioned and, in addition, a tweed suit for the "all-round" ever-ready. Then there should be a lovely frock of figured georgette to wear at the tea where the college girls shall assist. For the model of such a dress will you please see the Styles for September, page 27, No. 3955 D. The figured material, with the streamers of a plain contrasting georgette, will be really charming. It seems just the frock for a young lady to wear.

As for the sweater, I would have you see the Pictorial Review for August, and on page opposite 57 see the yellow and rose models that can be worn over a blouse. How would you like the henna and tan combination worn with a two-piece skirt of tan wool sports goods? And now for the waist which shall be worn with that skirt. In the Elite for September, page 23, No. 3981, is a stunning model. The only change necessary would be in a less generous sleeve, which should be more practical under the sweater sleeve. Otherwise, the style is splendid.

The knitted silk of the canteen will make us well and in a henna with the black binding would be fetching. For the other blouse there is a pleasing model in the August Designer, page 59, No. 3954. The tan blouse in a jersey braided in the henna soutache will be effective. Wear the tan oxfords with the ecru hose with the classic dresses. And last, and very important, is the wrap, and such a one as shall meet the daily and the more dressy occasion. In the Elite Fashion for August you will find, on page 34, No. S 6957, a model worth while. A blue duvetyne, marvellous or broader, will answer well the graceful lines of this garment.

With the above wardrobe and undergarments of the wash crepes or hennas, and the dress-up frocks and the silk set for the "dress-up" events, I am sure you will be happily and tastefully appareled.

Household Problems by Lillian Thilo

INDEPENDENCE, Or., June 28.—Dear Miss Thilo: Will you please give me the recipe for old-fashioned southern mint julep (non-intoxicating). Thanking you, E. O. C.

I DO NOT know of any "old-fashioned" southern mint julep that was non-intoxicating, in fact I have always been under the impression that the "intoxicating" part was the chief and essential characteristic of a mint julep. I have seen several recipes may offer a suggestion, or you may describe more closely what you have in mind.

The only thing I can suggest is iced lemonade, or orangeade, or white grape juice punch, or iced tea with a few sprays of fresh spearmint; but none of these could be classified as "old-fashioned" mint juleps, though all are refreshing and non-intoxicating and easily prepared and served for hot-weather refreshments or "summer drinks."

MILWAUKIE, Or., July 15.—Dear Miss Thilo: Will you please give me the direction how to make candied straw-berries? Are specially some reader by same process, if not how? Also the directions for sun preserves. In what section does this belong? We just got a pair of strawberries. Yours truly, A STRAWBERRY PICKER.

I think all the recipes you ask for have appeared since your letter was written. If you did not see them, please write again. My "answers to correspondents" usually appears in section five of The Sunday Oregonian. I am very glad that you find this column useful.

PORTLAND, Or., June 26.—Dear Miss Thilo: Will you please give, as soon as possible, a recipe for corn relish. Thanking you, MRS. H.

Problems of Dressmaking by Madam Rachel

FALLS CITY, Or., Aug. 2.—Dear Madam Rachel: Will you kindly tell me if you think goose-like or ribbed neck would be worth making into a dress? Will have to pay $3 or $4 to get it made, and want some bright trimming, as I do not own an all-black dress. Please suggest what to use as trimming and how to make. I take the Pictorial Review. Am five feet tall, dark complexion and weigh 120 pounds. Thanking you for the information and hoping for an early reply. E. S.—Oh, yes, I am 42 years old.

MAY, Falls City, Or.—You do not mention the amount of material which you have, but I am hoping that you have sufficient length to copy the pretty model shown in the Pictorial Review for August, page 61, No. 1219. The trimming, as shown, is being so favored and will look well on your black satin, which is well worth making up, especially for the price you state. Such a gown will made in Portland, costs $30 when made by the downtown modistes.

Have the head edging in the red iridescent and the long-beaded fringe at the side, also the sleeve trim as shown. As a rule, I do not suggest the draped line for the short figure, but inasmuch as this model has the long front line, I feel we are quite safe in the selection made. Hope this will please you.

HALSEY, Or., Aug. 7.—Dear Madam Rachel: Inclosed you will find a sketch of a dark brown crepe de chine dress which is headed. I should like to remove beading and use some other kind of trim so that it will be suitable for wear in the classroom. The dress is entirely of the brown crepe de chine. Would you kindly suggest what the wardrobe of a WOMAN'S ACTIVITIES. This week of the county fair at Gresham was a busy one for the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Multnomah county. The rest room and checking booth, in charge of Mrs. C. W. Braze, was open from the opening day until the fair closed Sunday night and proved a popular feature. There the tired mother might bring her baby for his afternoon nap or the wearied matron might repair to the refreshment table and be welcomed. A long table filled with literature for free distribution required frequent replenishing.

Wednesday afternoon a merchant-union meeting, under the direction of Mrs. Lee Davenport, was held in the Chautauqua pavilion. Sacred and historical art rugs were loaned by Cartozian Brothers of this city and Joseph Cartozian gave brief glimpses of Armenian

TENOR TO SING TONIGHT

JOHN W. DENORIA TO BE HEARD OVER RADIO.

New Adjustments On The Oregonian Wireless Insures Almost Perfect Sending.

Another hour of popular and new dance music and vocal solos is scheduled to be broadcast from The Oregonian tower tonight between 8 and 9 o'clock on the Portland radio station. The orchestra, under the auspices of the Seiberling-Lucas Music company, will feature tonight John W. DeNoria, tenor.

New adjustments made during the week and the more favorable existing weather conditions have insured a transmission that will be as nearly perfect as possible, and the increased volume gotten out of the station tonight will make the program announced by the orchestra give promise that tonight's concert will be one of the best of the popular series being broadcast every Friday night by Herman Kenin's orchestra.

John W. DeNoria is not a professional singer, but he has an excellent tenor voice, well adapted to orchestra singing, and his solo tonight are expected to go out clearly and loudly. Mr. DeNoria has never sung over radio before, but he is accompanied by the orchestra, he will sing "Angel Child," "No Nobody's Baby" and one or two other solos.

The programme of straight orchestra pieces includes both new numbers, never before played by radio by the orchestra, and several selections that have been requested by radio fans. Some of the numbers which have been listed are "Lovable Eyes," "Listen on the Keys," "By the Pyramids," "Swanee Blue Bird" and "Nobody Lied."

BANKERS TO VISIT CITY

Chamber of Commerce Names Entertainment Committee.

In order that Portland may participate in the entertainment of investment bankers of the country, who will attend the forthcoming convention of investment bankers of America at Del Monte August 9, 10, 11 and 12, the Chamber of Commerce will name a committee of five to do everything possible to make the stay of the convention delegates as happy one while passing through Portland.

Three of the committee will cooperate at this end of the line and the other two, of which W. H. Crawford, executive secretary of the chamber, is one, will go to Del Monte to list delegates who will spend some time here on their return east.
