Suddenly you hear the devil-devil in the distance. The devil-devil, as far as we could learn, is the only supernatural belief that Indians in that region have.

are to take over the string of mills operated by the Spokane Flour Mills company and that the Sperry combination of California is dickering for the Portland Flouring Mills properties.

Moritz Thomsen, master miller and head of the Centennial Mills company, is said to have entered into an agreement with the Holland interests for operation and ultimate purchase of the Spokane Flour mills in Seattle, Spokane, and Bendleton, Or.

The consideration, according to the Spokesman-Review, is in the neighborhood of $500,000.

The Portland mills, in which the Sperry people are reported interested, are part of the Max Houser properties.

The Centennial interests already have mills in Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma, Wenatchee, Crater, Sprague, Reardan and other points. This reported deal will give them the Hammond mill in Seattle, said to be one of the finest milling properties in the northwest.

to the dining room. There we were served by Philipinos to ice tea, hot tea, lemonade, sandwiches and cake.

As we were finishing tea we heard again the beautiful strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" sounding out from the deck above.

We were repossessing Mount Vernon on the return trip and we knew that the best of the end of our happy afternoon on the Mayflower was at hand.

The memory of the quiet and beauty of the return trip and of Mrs. Harding's never failing interest in her guests down to the moment she left her good-bye and waited until she left the boat at the wharf still remain to remind me of the end of an ideal afternoon aboard the Mayflower.

BY MRS. HOMER HOCH, Wife of Representative in Congress, Tells of Experiences.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An invitation to go aboard the president's boat, the Mayflower, is warranted to carry a thrill. But when it comes in the form of a little personal note from Mrs. Harding, as if you possibly were the only one asked, although you know, of course, you are not, it is doubly thrilling, and if you are one who has lived her life in the middle of the land, it is trebly thrilling.

And when the note says you are to spend the afternoon in a trip on the historic old Potomac, your imagination runs ahead. You picture expanses of quiet water, steeply rising historic fortresses and a glimpse of peaceful Mount Vernon.

This all happened to a few of us the other day, and since it was my first trip on the Mayflower, all the thrills of firstness were mine.

On this occasion Mrs. Harding had asked a conveniently small company of congressmen's wives to be her guests, and we all gathered on board at 2 o'clock. A little later Mrs. Harding came on with her secretary, Miss Harlan, daughter of former Justice Harlan.

Informally it is pleasing. Mrs. Harding had Mrs. Gillett, wife of the speaker of the house, stand with her on deck and all members of the party passed by and met her. And then the delightful informality of the afternoon began.

Mrs. Harding sat on deck with the company nearest her and answered questions in her kindly, energetic way. The group gradually changed as others joined it and some drifted away to see the boat as Miss Harlan had invited them to do. This gave everyone a chance for a personal chat with Mrs. Harding at some time in the afternoon.

Mrs. Harding talked on every subject suggested by the remarks and questions of the women from a story about the family disappointment that she was born a girl instead of a boy, to the matter of entertaining the foreign dignitaries who attended the disarmament conference here.

She said her father had counted on her being a boy and when she wasn't he decided anyway to give her business training. So he took her at an early age into his bank and she learned the practical knowledge of the business. This, she said, proved helpful during the first few years of their married life when Mrs. Harding had a physical breakdown and business matters were of necessity put into her hands.

Children Treated Kindly. One woman spoke to her of her great kindness and interest in children, and she said she had always had many children coming to her.

These conditions and changes upon her in union with the planet's seasons indicate that conditions are more analogous to those of the earth than to any of the other planets.

During the past year no less than 4000 licenses were issued for new trades in Palestine. The extent of this development can be judged from the fact that prior to 1921 only 2500 licenses were registered by the government. This means that nearly two-thirds of the enterprises in Palestine were started within the past year.

The capital invested in each of these new ventures ranges from $20,000 to $50,000, but with such notable exceptions as the Sillate company of Jaffa, with a capital of $500,000, and the Standard Oil company, now exploiting the Red sea basin.

A tract of 500 acres of land has been bought by British Jewish interests and will be devoted to home and industry building, while other interests are starting a building and loan association and a savings bank. A casino, two bathing establishments and electric lights are among the attractions of an "American" seaside resort which has sprung up on the sands stretching to the beach at Jaffa.

In reality this is a Jewish township and its local name is Tel Aviv, but to a visitor it appears a go-ahead American town with a spirit that overcomes all obstacles. It has more than 12,000 inhabitants and an immense brick factory working day and night.

Environment of Forest Fire Found Less Exciting Than Heels of Domestic Animal.

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C., July 8.—Two amusing bear stories, both vouched for by reputable eye-witnesses, are going the rounds here.

Forest fires in northern British Columbia during the past month have had a peculiar effect upon some of the wild animals of the woods, judging from some of the stories brought in to Prince George.

A fight between a fire-crazed bear and a mule, in which the bear was worsted, occurred at L. Mason's ranch, at Rednest, B. C. The forest fire raged on the hill from its lair, and in its dash from the flames into the open country it collided violently with a jack-mule. The bear was promptly stretched out on the ground by a double tattoo from the capable hind hoofs and the mule calmly resumed its interrupted grazing.

Thoroughly angered, the bear picked itself up and cautiously approached the mule from a different angle. The forest fire was brought down with a resounding thwack on the mule's ribs. This was unfortunate. The hoofs were again brought into play, after a quick accurate maneuver for position, and the fight was called off as far as the bear was concerned. Mr. Mason, who witnessed the unusual encounter, dashed to the house for a rifle to finish the bear, should any life be left. Before he could get back to the scene, however, Bruin managed to get groggily to his feet and return to the less exciting environment of the forest fire.

A fire patrol ranger is sponsor for another bear story. While making a survey in the mountain district, he came upon a young cub suffering from severe burns on feet and body. The youngster was whimpering for Mr. Mason, who had forester took pity on it, lifted it into his car and there made it fast with some rope.

The ranger then started on his journey only to discover that the mother bear had appeared and was in hot pursuit. As the track ran uphill at this point, the bear, making long strides, gained steadily and the need for strategy was clearly indicated. The forestry books in instructions does not cover a situation such as this, but the ranger was resourceful and decided that the best plan would be to throw the cub overboard. His attempts to untie the knots on the lashings which secured the youngster to the machine, however, failed. Pursued and pursued came to a yet steeper grade, with the advantage all with the former. Finally, with one mighty effort, the bear thrust herself on the back of the car, holding on by her claws and paws.

This is where the forester decided to do the deed. He threw the cub down off the car and regained his feet in time to see it continuing its journey with a mother bear in pursuit. The cub happily reunited as its passengers. Later the automobile was found, run down and every-thing in a state of confusion. The seat where the cub had been tied, the old bear having torn it out to release her offspring.

FRICK ESTATE TAX BIG Pennsylvania Demands Another Million for Inheritance.

PITTSBURG.—The estate of Henry C. Frick is required to pay an additional $1,188,248.16 in inheritance tax to the state of Pennsylvania.

The feature of the decision of the court was that the state has the right to collect inheritance tax on the property owned by a resident of Pennsylvania.

There were four contentions in the case. The estate claimed exemption from inheritance tax on property in New York and Massachusetts, described in the decision as consisting of "works of art, paintings, furniture, books and automobiles and including the paintings bequeathed to the city of New York from the estate of Mrs. Frick, collection by that city. The portion of property mentioned, which is in New York, is valued at $3,210,309, and the Massachusetts property at $25,334.25. The inheritance tax rate on the property presented to the city of New York is 5 per cent, in most of the requests to individuals the rate is 3 per cent.

Judge Mitchell holds in his decision that under the act of June 26, 1919, the state has the right to collect inheritance tax on property of a deceased resident of Pennsylvania.

Why Can't You Have the Pleasures Others Have? If That Dull, Nagging Backache Is Spoiling Your Summer and Making You Tired, Worn-Out and Miserable, Look to Your Kidneys.

VACATION DAYS! Care and worry put aside—rest, recreation, good times!—Such is August to many happy folks.

But to others it means only another month of hot weather—of added burdens that tired bodies and frayed nerves can hardly endure.

Which picture tells your story? Is failing health making you uneasy and unhappy? Are you nervous and depressed; tired, worn out and miserable—back ache as though it would break? Don't give in to it! Find out what is wrong and try to correct it.

Have you thought of your kidneys? Kidney trouble often comes before the sufferer realizes what is wrong. But the early warnings are all too plain.

You are tired, lame, aching—tortured with nerve-racking backache; you have sharp, knife-like pains at every sudden move; daily headaches, too, spells of dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

Truly the whole world seems wrong and it is no wonder you feel so gloomy and utterly worn out.

Cheer up—determine to get well! Usually these troubles are easily corrected if treated in time. Begin now with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!
