

HARMONY PREVAILS IN UMATILLA AGAIN

Republican Party Solidarity Accomplished.

STATE CHAIRMAN SPEAKS

Mr. Toose and Mr. Ingalls Present Need of Voting Straight Ticket—Invaders Scored.

PENDLETON, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Out of a maelstrom of divided opinion current in Umatilla county since the primary election today, came complete harmony among the members of the republican party and particularly members of the county central committee, when Walter L. Toose Jr., state chairman of the republican state central committee, and C. E. Ingalls, secretary, presented forcefully the need for voting a straight ticket.

Several members of the county committee, which was at one time believed to have been captured by supporters of Charles Hall, testified following the unanimous adoption of the programme laid down by the state chairman that, although they worked and voted for Hall in the primary, they will stand firm in their party faith and vote a straight ticket from governor to constable.

Thanks Voted Officers. So enthusiastic was the support given the state officers of the party that a resolution of thanks was unanimously adopted by the assembly thanking Chairman Toose and Secretary Ingalls for their efforts to complete the party throughout the state.

The state committee party arrived yesterday evening to make plans for today's convention. A meeting of legislative candidates and holdover senators from all of the second congressional district was called for this morning.

Practically all of the precinct committeemen of Umatilla county were present when Mr. Toose and Mr. Ingalls urged party fidelity. "If we have two strong political parties in Oregon there will be no chance for independence and non-partisanship. The importance of voting the entire republican ticket this year especially is that if Walter Pierce should be elected he will build up a democratic machine which will be difficult for us to break down," Secretary Ingalls declared.

Invaders Are Attacked. Chairman Toose opened an attack on those who sought to invade ranks of the republican party unfaithfully, and declared that any person who changed his registration to have a voice in the republican party was morally obligated to stay in the party and see that the republican candidate was elected.

Officers of this county central committee have given up their personal views and stand for the party or else they must resign from the service of the party in fairness to all concerned. Mr. Toose declared, "We can, if necessary, clean our party from within, and we don't want any interference by those who have not the interests of the party at heart." Invitation to republican women of the county to join in the active oratory was approved, and a meeting of the party was called for the following day. Following the session, that there had been more good accomplished at this one session an actual organization in committees than has been accomplished in any campaign for the last 20 years and it begins to look as though we were going to return to the responsibility instead of irresponsible individual control which has weakened the party in the past.

BARN AND HAY BURNED

Tillamook Dairy Farm Is Visited by Spectacular Fire.

TILLAMOOK, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—A spectacular fire last night destroyed the large dairy barn on the A. G. Beals farm, formerly known as the Elmore farm, with 100 tons of hay. Spontaneous combustion on account of the hay not being properly cared for, has been the cause of the fire. The barn was insured for $1200 and the hay for $2000. This is the third fire loss Mr. Beals has met in three weeks, for his sawmill at Pleasant Valley, with a large quantity of lumber, was destroyed completely three weeks ago, and he had a mortgage on the Cloverdale hotel, which was destroyed by fire two weeks ago.

TWO PROJECTS PLANNED

North Bend to Vote on Community Building and Public Dock.

NORTH BEND, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—North Bend has two projects in the air which it appears cannot be separated, if either shall be approved. A certain element of the city desires a community building, and another class wants a public dock. Estimates for the community building, submitted in a petition to the council, set the figures at $30,000, while the public dock is expected to cost probably $75,000. The plan is to vote bonds for both and preliminary are expected to be in shape so that the issues can go on the election ballot for November.

Heavy mental men go on picking tall, willowy, red-haired dumbbells, learned professors clope with dizzy blades and thinking men will go on choosing raven-tressed charmers. Occasionally a contest arises, and a group of men and women are asked to lay aside their personal preferences as to coloring, height, weight, and so forth and vote together on one choice. In such a contest held recently in Oregon Virginia Edwards was chosen. She went away last night to play her part in the big round-up of beauties similarly selected in other states. They will meet in Atlantic City and the choosing will all be gone over again, and another

MISS PORTLAND EXPRESSES APPRECIATION OF HONORS.

The debt of gratitude I owe so many of you is too great to express. I have been so good and kind to me, more words are inadequate to express my feelings. The dear sisters of St. Helen's hall have done so much for me, your great paper has given me recognition unexpected and beyond all precedent. The merchants of the city have showered beautiful gifts upon me. Managers of theaters and film corporations have offered to present me before their audiences. The judges overwhelmed me by their decision when there were so many truly beautiful and accomplished girls in the contest. It has been impossible to answer the congratulations received by telegraph, telephone and mail, or, as yet, to acknowledge all the beautiful gifts. I trust I will be able to fulfill the obligations incumbent upon me to the entire satisfaction of all the people of our great state of Oregon. Dear, kind friends, my heart is full of joy and gratitude, and in the final contest I hope to be worthy of the honor you have bestowed upon me. VIRGINIA EDWARDS, 675 Multnomah Street.

GROWERS WIN IN SUIT $300 Judgment Is Obtained for Violation of Crop Contract.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—The Oregon Growers Co-operative association today received a $300 judgment against G. W. Birchett, a Linn county prune grower, because of his failure to carry out the provisions of a contract. Judge Kelly of the Marion county circuit court prepared the opinion.

The records in the suit showed that Birchett entered into a contract with the growers in 1920 whereby he was to deliver to the corporation his prunes for a period of five years. In 1921 Mr. Birchett failed to deliver his crop, with the result that the suit was instituted.

State Officials to Take Trip. SALEM, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Governor Olcott, Sam A. Eason, secretary of state, and Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner, superintendent of the Oregon state hospital, will leave here early tomorrow for points in southern Oregon. They will go as far as Lakeview and Klamath Falls. En route they will inspect the old soldiers' home at Roseburg. In Klamath county the officials will inspect a number of parcels of state lands which were sold some time ago, but which later reverted to the state.

Virginia Representative Beauty. We Oregonians are holding tight to a hope that Virginia walks away with the prize. It wouldn't astonish anyone who has met her and talked with her. She is typically representative of Oregon's young womanhood, and she is undeniably beautiful. Her eyes are blue, of that rare azure blue and they smile fearlessly and with an honest little-girl-unafraid quality. Her smile starts at her heart and illumines her face. So many smiles are from the teeth out, Virginia's is real, and the most anything brings the smile, she's so sunny and happy. She has a lovely peach-pink skin, which colors and grows pinker when she gets excited. She has a lot of bright bronze gold hair, which she wears piled high. It has a natural wave in it and she likes to finish her coiffure with an odd comb of some sort.

Banquet Tendered Beauty. Last night at the banquet which the Greater Portland association tendered her at the Benson hotel, she wore a lovely fan-shaped jet comb in her lovely hair, and her slender young body was wrapped in a fascinating black and jade-colored evening gown. The long skirt and high-heeled satin slippers added to

WOMAN BOUND, REPORT MRS. COOPER TELLS ABOUT ALLEGED ATTACK.

Police Skeptical Regarding Tale of Man Who Entered Rooms and Tied Housewife.

For the third time within a week, Mrs. George Cooper, 521 1/2 Union avenue, North, has been the victim of a brute who has attacked her and made as many attempted assaults, according to her hysterical story to police detectives yesterday.

After the banquet the young Miss Portland hurried home and held a reception for her friends and a great many of her mother's and father's friends as well. Then she got her pretty self into one of the many lovely dresses bestowed upon her by the merchants and accompanied by a crowd of friends, which filled two dozen automobiles, which whisked away to her train. Her mother is accompanying her and so is her aunt, Mrs. Sandford Whiting, who is a sister of Mr. Edwards. She was a picturesque and vibrant figure, silhouetted against the gleaming lights at the station as she said an adieu to her young friends.

Half Dozen Books Taken.

Under her arm was a half dozen books. "See, mother," said Miss Portland. "Dad didn't forget my books." Curiosity prompted a peep at the titles and those of the hold to the erroneous belief that brains do not accompany startling beauty may be interested to know that Virginia Edwards, 17-year-old beauty and wholesome young girl that she is, is carrying with her to beguile the tedious hours of travel a library of French philosophy, a treatise on applied psychology, a much thumbed copy of the play "Abraham Lincoln" which she says she is reading a third time, some poetry and a new novel by Booth Tarkington.

Yes, beauty is more than skin deep with Oregon's Virginia Edwards. Among additional gifts to Miss Portland by leading Portland stores before she left the city were a pair of black patent leather oxfords with cut steel buckles, by the Knight Shoe company, and also a pair of brown oxfords with beaded buckles, by the Stalger Shoe company. Charles F. Berg presented silken hose, a much-appreciated gift.

Olds, Wortman & King gave her a handsome bead bag of tan, with lavender, black, rose and green, a rose pattern being featured. Jaeger is full of joy and gratitude, and in the final contest I hope to be worthy of the honor you have bestowed upon me.

Woman Hurt in Auto Wreck. CENTRALIA, Wash., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—The Pacific highway near the southwest Washington fair grounds was the scene of a traffic accident last night when cars driven by Harry Jackson of this city and Edward Rice of Buonda came together. The machine Jackson was driving, owned by Reno Keithley, was hurled against a railing and badly damaged. Mrs. Jackson sustained slight injuries to her arm and shoulder.

STEEL MEN AGAINST INDUSTRY OF WEST

Protection of Magnesite Tariff Stumbling Block.

HOUSE DUTY HELD HIGH

Manufacturers of East Declare Rates Put on Mineral Product Higher Than Need Be.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—The steel industry is protesting against the protection of the domestic magnesite industry in order that the United States may be independent of other countries in the case of war. Prior to the war magnesite was not produced commercially in the United States, any extent. Formerly the chief source of supply was Austria. War-time conditions encouraged the production of magnesite in the state of Washington.

As in the case of dyes, adequate protection of the domestic magnesite industry is urged in order that the United States may be independent of other countries in the case of war. Prior to the war magnesite was not produced commercially in the United States, any extent. Formerly the chief source of supply was Austria. War-time conditions encouraged the production of magnesite in the state of Washington.

House Duties Out. A delegation of prominent steel manufacturers appeared before the senate finance committee, as a result of which the committee cut the house duties. The question was then fought out in the floor of the senate. The western producers, with the aid of the western agricultural tariff bloc senators, won out in committee the whole, causing the senate to reject the finance committee amendments. Later in the senate floor the question was reversed on the motion of Senator Calder, New York, with the result that the bill as passed contains the reduced finance committee rates.

The steel industry is most interested in what is described as dead-burned magnesite, on which the house bill imposes a duty of 3 1/2 cents a pound. The senate duty is only 1 cent a pound. On caustic magnesite, which is used for building purposes the house duty is 3 1/2 cents a pound, while the senate rate is 1 cent. On crude magnesite the house duty is 1 1/2 cents a pound, while the senate duty is 1/2 cent. The magnesite, which is imported in a crude form, is used in the manufacture of refractory material for the steel industry, but goes mainly into the production of the caustic magnesite.

The magnesite question is one of a considerable number of points of controversy between the senate and house in schedule No. 2 relating to earths, earthenware and glassware.

Obituary. Walter W. Hunt. Funeral services for Walter W. Hunt of this city, who was drowned last Saturday while fishing 16 miles up the Wilson river from Tillamook, will take place at the Skewes undertaking establishment this afternoon at 2 o'clock. J. OREGONIANS STUDY PARK HOOD RIVER DELEGATION GETS DATA.

Legionnaires to Form New Plans for Entertaining Mount Hood Climbers.

Just back from Rainier National park, where they spent some time gathering information and studying methods of entertaining the guests there to see the nation's highest snow peak, a party of Hood River American Legion men, here yesterday afternoon while en route home, declared that they hope to form a nucleus of sentiment for the development of Mount Hood along the Rainier. The American Legion post has taken an especial interest in Mount Hood since 1922 when members launched as an annual recreational feature an ascent of the peak during the month of July.

The Legionnaires, who last July entertained 250 guests on their party, Mayor Baker having been one of the enthusiasts, expect a much larger party to participate in the ascent of the Oregon State Editorial association, who will hold their annual convention in Hood River next summer, will participate in the climb as guests of the legionnaires.

"As a result of our trip to Mount Rainier," said Kent Shoemaker, chairman of the Mount Hood climb committee and a member of the party of Hood River men, "we will improve our methods of handling next year's party. It was a revelation to us, that perfect system the Rainier National Park Hotel company employ in the handling of the many guests. They certainly leave nothing to chance."

"I believe," said Truman Butler, president of the Butler Banking company, "that every Oregonian should make the trip to Mount Rainier. It would hasten the development of Oregon's scenic assets. One cannot visit Paradise Inn without admiration for the spirit of the people of Tacoma and Seattle and the management of the company in charge of the hotel."

Other members of the party were: George Wilbur, commander of the Oregon department, American Legion; Harold Hersiner and Leon Foust, members of the Hood River section climb committee; H. G. Ball, editor of the Hood River News, and Joe D. Thomson, editor of the Hood River Glacier.

WORK ON TRACKS BEGUN

Bridges Under Way for Logging Road to Wallowa.

LA GRANDE, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Tracks of the new logging road of the Nibley-Mimnaugh Lumber company have been laid for some distance and work is progressing on the bridges which are necessary for that company to take its logs to the mill in Wallowa. Several rock bluffs must be blasted out and the construction of the entire road is not considered easy. When completed it will open a fine pine timber belt in Wallowa county.

ROAD NEARLY FINISHED

Oregon Trail Expected to Open for Traffic Soon.

LA GRANDE, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—It will not be very long, according to the highway engineer and contractors building the Oregon Trail west of La Grande, before the "horrible roads" which La Grande has heard about from automobile tourists will be a thing of the past.

It is agreed that before very long the high grade construction which has marked the Oregon Trail work will be soon extended to absorb the stretch of poor road.

Labor Day Plans Developing.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Reedport's Labor day celebration will take on a movement, among other things, for working out local problems of that section of the lower Umpqua river.
