Increasing the turnover of capital invested in property

BUILDING activities now under way in Portland total millions of dollars. For the first six months of 1922 permits amounted to more than $11,000,000.

Idle property, like unsold merchandise on store shelves, eats into dividends. Profits lie in turnovers, not in leftovers.

Property owners are also learning that the problem of turnover—of keeping capital busy—is all-important. Therefore we see dormant property being developed and put into condition where it attracts buyers.

As you constantly plan to meet ever-changing conditions in your business, perhaps we can help you. We have been making constructive analyses of business statements for three generations. We want you to feel free to consult with the officers of the First National at any time.

Be they large or small, we are interested in the affairs of our customers. We want you to avail yourself of all the facilities of the oldest and largest national bank in the Pacific Northwest.

If you are not a patron of the First National, we invite your account.
