

TRIBUTES ARE PAID TO SALVATION ARMY

Cornerstone of New Home of Organization Laid.

SERVICE IS RECOUNTED

Admiral Mayo and Others Tell of Good Work of Body Overseas
Which Will Be Remembered.

Amid the din and uproar of downtown traffic, familiar surroundings indeed to the untiring workers of the Salvation Army, the cornerstone for the new citadel to house the state executive offices and the Portland relief headquarters of the army was laid with impressive ceremony Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Sixth and Ankeny streets.

The new structure, complete in detail and convenience and providing a vast improvement over the present quarters of the executive offices, is swiftly nearing completion and the cornerstone ceremony was scheduled to be held after the exterior walls and the roof had already been constructed.

Admiral Mayo is Chairman.

A fitting altar draped in flags and bunting had been prepared for the occasion, for in addition to the distinguished state officials of the Salvation Army there were other prominent visitors taking part in the ceremony. Admiral Henry T. Mayo of the United States navy was chairman of the day, while Right Rev. W. T. Manning, bishop of New York of the Episcopal church, officiated at the formal ceremony of laying the stone. A delegation representing the state officers of the American Legion was also present on the platform.

Several hundred people, workers of the Salvation Army in their uniforms and a great many who are not workers nor even members of the organization stood with bared heads while the ceremony was in progress.

Tribute Paid Organization.

The keynote of the entire ceremony was a tribute to the organization, which has struggled through many obstacles even in securing the handsome new quarters to house the executive offices. The new building will not be elaborate, but has been so designed as to produce a distinctive appearance in the midst of the downtown wholesale district—the site of many an impromptu evening service where hundreds have listened to the preaching of these energetic preachers of the gospel, whose work goes far beyond that of the relief of the poverty stricken thousands of a big city.

"The association of the doughnut and the Salvation Army of the days of the great war will never be forgotten," declared Admiral Mayo as he rose to introduce the speaker of the day, and the trace of a smile which lit up the faces of the several comely ladies who had helped to serve the doughnuts and coffee in the days of the A. E. F. and the nodes among the ex-servicemen and ex-combatants of "That's right," which escaped involuntarily, bore evidence.

A story of Work Related.

Handsome tribute to the work of the organization throughout the world was paid by Admiral Mayo in his short, impressive address of introduction, and he closed his remarks with an expression of appreciation to Brigadier John W. Hay, divisional commander of the Oregon division, that he had the pleasure of participating in the memorable occasion.

Bishop Manning recounted the excellent work of the organization throughout the east and the west. "The high affection and appreciation which all of us have and feel for the Salvation Army and its cannot be expressed in words," he said. "I, too, must pay tribute as has Admiral Mayo to the service which this organization has rendered to humanity."

At the close of his address Bishop Manning was presented with a handsome miniature silver trowel, which the members of the army urged that he use as a bookmark. A short response of appreciation was made by the bishop. A vote of thanks on behalf of the Salvation Army workers of the state was then extended to the bishop for his part in the ceremony and the stone bearing the inscription, "Erected to the honor and glory of God and the good of humanity," was set in place.

Several musical numbers were rendered throughout the ceremony by members of the organization. Adjutant and Mrs. Frisrup entertaining with a vocal duet. At the conclusion of the ceremony the entire assemblage joined in the benediction, after which the building was opened for the inspection of the visitors.

FUGITIVE IS CAPTURED

Prisoner Run Down After Escape From Hood River.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—When a Traffic Officer Woods today was looking two intoxicated motorists in an automobile which had just rolled in from the west over the Columbia highway, one of them stole quietly through a back door and disappeared. After locking up his remaining prisoner, Mr. Woods called fellow officers and instituted a search. A drive of a motor stage between here and Portland had seen the wandering prisoner and borrowing one of the motorcycles of the traffic department sped west over the highway, arresting the man about three miles out of town.

The two prisoners remained unidentified. They remained in such deep sleep tonight that they could not be aroused to give their names.

CLAIM FOR DRESS PUT IN

Woman Who Fell Into Street Oil Asks City to Pay.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. Josephine C. Mills presented a claim to the city of Tacoma today for $100, claiming a blue poplin dress and petticoat to replace the ones she says were ruined for her by the carelessness of the city.

A city street flushing truck dripped a pool of oil at the crossing in front of her home on August 22 last, according to Mrs. Mills. As she stepped out into the street to catch a car she slipped on the oil and landed in it, mopping up a liberal quantity. Mrs. Mills says her eyesight is not very good and she could not reasonably have known of the pool of oil.

TEACHER'S SERVICE LONG

ROBERT GINTHER 28 YEARS IN CLACKAMAS SCHOOLS.

Several of Ten Children Are Outlining Vocations; One to Follow in Father's Steps.

OREGON CITY, Or., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Robert Ginther, 28, who has taught continuously in Clackamas county for the past 28 years and now to teach his twenty-ninth year at Canemah, having been chosen as principal of the institution, has taught even the second generation in a number of schools. Among these was at Noddy, where he taught last year, and also in several other districts of the county.

Mr. Ginther taught the second generation at Beaver Creek, where he engaged in teaching there in 1897, 1898 and 1899, and again in 1907, 1918, 1919, and at Noddy in 1902, 1903, 1904 and again in 1921, 1922. His first school was taught at Logan in 1894.

Mr. Ginther came to Clackamas county with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ginther, when he was four years of age, the family settling on a farm near Beaver Creek, known as Shubel, the family coming from Ashland, Pa. Ginther attended the country schools, studying day and night and assisting the father to farm. Other places where he taught were at Highgate, Shubel, Beaver Creek, Oak Grove, Noddy, Crescent, and other places.

Mr. Ginther, who is the father of 10 children, seven boys and three girls, believes in giving his children a high school education, and has

MONEY FOR WIDOW'S BENEFIT FLOWS IN Theater Ticket Sale Progresses Rapidly.

ALL WILLING TO HELP

Other Contributions Made for Woman Left Destitute by Killing of Officer-Husband.

While Sunday would normally have been expected to be a quiet day, making progress to fill the People's theater tomorrow night for the benefit performance for Mrs. Glenna H. Price, widow of the murdered federal prohibition agent and mother of three children, who was left helpless by her husband's untimely death, politeness who are selling the tickets was scarcely diminished.

With only two days left, today and tomorrow, the Jensen & Von Herberg management said that every available seat would be filled beyond a doubt, as by far the major portion had already been sold by Saturday, and that besides the regular seating by patrons and the box office, the Liberty theater, many reservations were being made by mail and telephone, Broadway 7600.

Artists Offer Services.

While the show is to be a benefit performance, with the public's attention mostly upon the amount to be derived for the widow, P. E. Noble, who has been arranging the program, has promised an unusual entertainment. As soon as it was announced that the Jensen & Von Herberg management would give the performance, dozens of volunteers offered their services. These include the cream of Portland musical talent, and the selections by Mr. Noble and the theater management have been such that the program will embrace opportunity to hear a number of artists who are seldom introduced to be seen on the public stage.

Randall, has such general co-operation been evident in such a project. Everyone has been more than willing to help in any way needed, whether it was in the purchase of tickets or in doing some of the actual work connected with the show. The pathetic circumstances of the case, in which two eight-month old, and a three-year-old daughter were left fatherless and almost entirely dependent upon the generosity of the public, have aroused unprecedented sympathy.

Other Contributions Made.

Aside from the benefit, other contributions have been flowing in directly to the widow, to the Oregonian and through other channels at an astonishing rate. All of these have been turned over to E. C. Moore, 308 Wilcox building, financial officer of the American Legion, who is acting as secretary and treasurer of the fund. Either today or tomorrow some decision will be made as to whether the funds be turned over to her directly or are placed in the hands of a trustee for the benefit of the widow.

Mrs. Price has asked that a trustee be appointed, and it is thought that Dr. Linville, a prohibition director, will be appointed.

Second Benefit Prepared.

The second benefit for Mrs. Price and Mrs. Grover C. Todd, whose husband was murdered at the same time as the late federal prohibition agent, is being prepared. This will be on Wednesday night at the White Temple, when Mr. and Mrs. William H. Price, prohibition agents, after they had arrested him for bootlegging, probably will defend his action before the Polk county grand jury on the ground that he was shot by the federal officers before he fired the fatal bullets.

This was the information brought here today by a Polk county officer who conversed recently with the prisoner with relation to the killings.

"They were my first, and I didn't know they were officers," Warren was said to have told the Polk county official. Warren then said he was a ground above the eye, which he said was inflicted by a bullet fired by the prohibition officers. Previously Warren had told the Polk county grand jury that this wound resulted from a blow at the hands of one of the arresting agents.

Warren now realizes the seriousness of his crime, and for the last few days has been grasping at every straw which in any way will tend to provide him with a logical and excusable defense.

Although the citizens of Polk county hold no briefs for murderers, it is apparent that they are somewhat divided as a result of the Grand Ronde crime. The great majority of citizens there demand that the Indian shall be hanged, while others have reserved judgment and are calmly awaiting the trial that they may weigh the testimony as given first-hand.

PORT OREGON TO GROW

BIG LUMBER COMPANY PLANS EXTENSIVE OPERATIONS.

Application Made to Port Commission to Lease Dock for Shipping of Timber.

PORT OREGON, Or., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Port Oregon is the latest of a town of perhaps 2000 persons, drawn here by discoveries of metal-bearing deposits along the many streams of the county, but lately dwindling to a town of about 200 persons when the settlement was razed by fire, today looks forward to a new growth. The hopes of this little community for a renewal of its former prosperity come from the prospect of the entrance of a large lumbering company into this section and the construction of a big lumber mill here.

For the last few weeks representatives of lumber interests with headquarters in New York have been negotiating with members of the port commission of Port Oregon to lease the 600-foot dock recently constructed here by the port for a period of 50 years. Consent of the port commission for leasing the dock to the eastern interests was given this week, and according to members of the commission the contract confirming the lease is now under consideration in New York. Final result of the negotiations is expected to be announced shortly.

The identity of the New York capitalists back of the new lumbering project for Curry county has not been made known. The new dock, constructed by the port at a cost of $10,000, under the terms of the projected lease will be turned over to the lumber company, which in turn agrees to pay the port $5000 annually for 30 years and $10,000 annually for 20 years, making the contract run for 50 years. The company further agrees to build a large mill here and to improve the Port Oregon harbor by the construction of a breakwater whereby shipping will receive ample protection during rough weather. The company's representatives already have obtained options on property along Port Oregon lake, at the edge of town, which it is intended to build the mill. Large bodies of timber adjacent to this community will be tapped.

It is estimated by those familiar with the negotiations with the timber interests that the harbor improvements and mill project will require an expenditure of close to $1,000,000.

That the Powers timber interests, now operating at the town of Powers, near Astoria, will shortly extend their operations to this port is indicated by activities of officials of this concern toward obtaining a mill site on Port Oregon lake.

LAMPING BACKING DENIED

VETERANS AROUSED BY ALLEGED INDORSEMENT.

Unauthorized Use of Names of Organizations by Senatorial Headquarters Charged.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—An alleged endorsement by George B. Lamping, senatorial headquarters in Seattle of the names of leading veterans' organizations in the state, has aroused the indignation of the Veterans of the World War, and a statement issued today by the commanders of the Tacoma posts of the Veterans of the World War, the American Legion, and Disabled American, Veterans of the World War.

Writers have been mailed to World War veterans of Washington, according to Neil H. Kime, commander of the World War Veterans of the World of Foreign wars, which carry the impression that Lamping has been induced by ex-service men's organizations to use their names in statements take no part in politics, he said.

Charges will be preferred against the men who signed the letters, according to the statement, and their expulsion from the organizations will be requested. The statement is to use the names of the various societies for political purposes.

The statement was signed by De Witt M. Evans, commander of Edward B. Rhodes post No. 1, American Legion; Roy A. Peterson commander of Charles Hickman Chapter No. 1, Disabled American Veterans of the World War; and Mr. Kime. The letter was signed: J. G. Pierce, Veterans of Foreign Wars, chairman.

Howard's Body Unclaimed.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Unless the body of George Howard, who was executed in the state penitentiary here Friday, is claimed by Tuesday, it will be turned over to the state hospital authorities for cremation.

His parents live at Rockville, eastern Oregon, 80 miles from the nearest telephone or telegraph station. Prison officials said they had received no word from Howard's parents other than the report that they were without funds and would not be able to have the body sent to their home.

VETERANS' DOCTOR HURT

Walla Walla Physician Injured In Auto Accident.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Dr. A. D. Oeschil, 33, one of the staff at the United States veterans' hospital at Port Walla, tonight hoveled between life and death at the hospital as the result of an automobile accident on the Tucannon, about 50 miles from here, Saturday night. Dr. Oeschil was brought to the hospital about 12:30 this afternoon suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull, rigidly limiting his movements.

With Dr. E. A. Montague, Dr. Oeschil left Saturday afternoon by automobile for the Tucannon on a fishing trip. Something went wrong with the car and Dr. Oeschil climbed out to fix it. The car got away and backed over a high embankment, carrying Dr. Oeschil with it. This was about 6:30 P. M. Dr. Montague gave what aid he could to his companion, then walked five miles to a telephone to notify the hospital, then returned to the scene. Doctors and nurses were rushed to the place in an ambulance. It was difficult to drive the heavy ambulance over the road, and it was daylight before they reached the place.

Dr. Oeschil came to the United States veterans' hospital, three weeks ago from Kansas City, Mo. His wife accompanied him.
