

CAR SHORTAGE HAS SMALLER SAWMILLS

Railroads Supply Few Carriers on Branch Lines.

CLOSING IS THREATENED

Large Plants in Centers Reported to Be Getting All of Space Requirements.

Lumber manufacturers who have plants located on branch lines away from the thickly populated centers are having the most serious problem of years in receiving cars with which to make shipments to fill orders from all parts of the country.

"There is no complaint from the manufacturers in the city because they are getting all their requirements," declared one manufacturer yesterday. "But those of us who are served by one railroad and are removed from the larger centers are in a serious position. Unless conditions are righted and righted soon some of us will be forced to close down our plants and when they will open again will be up to the railroad companies."

Small Mills Hit.
"Were it possible for us to obtain cars we would be enjoying the most prosperous lumber condition the northwest has ever known."

"Cars come into large cities such as Portland and are sent immediately to the large mills there. None of the local mills are complaining, for all have been able to obtain car requirements. In my mind the small manufacturing towns, supported by mills, are important in no less measure than their larger neighbors. They are all bringing thousands of dollars into this section and are providing large payrolls."

"In 1920 the car situation became serious. I was able to obtain over a six months' period what I required for one month. In August the interstate commerce commission granted a 23-1/3 per cent advance in freight rates and the car shortage ended. But before it ended the lumber demands became so few and far between that many mills closed down."

Railroads' Co-Operation Wanted.
"Now that we are getting back on our feet and are enjoying business that is bringing prosperity to the northwest we should have the entire co-operation of all of the railroads. The shutting down of any number of small mills will have a detrimental effect upon the financial condition of the country."

"It is not alone the lumber industry that is suffering from a car shortage. The manufacturers who have plants of any description in the smaller towns are having their troubles."

"It is time for the railroads to get busy and get cars into the towns located on branch lines. What this manufacturer has said is practically the same as that of a dozen other lumbermen who have been confronted with car shortages for weeks."

NEW CANDIDATES FILE

INDUSTRIAL LABOR PARTY SUBMITS 4 NAMES.

Gus E. Erickson to Oppose Mr. Kerrigan for Public Service Commission This Fall.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 13.—(Special.)

The industrial labor party of Oregon submitted four independent candidates to the secretary of state. They included P. T. Johnson for representative in congress from the third congressional district; Anders D. Berglund, A. A. Hoglund and J. R. Nasholm for representative in the state legislature from the eighth representative district.

Three independent candidates, endorsed at an assembly of the Oregon Educational League, also filed yesterday. They are Gus E. Erickson of 325 East Seventh street, Portland, for public service commissioner from the state at large; B. H. Hansen of Portland for labor commissioner, and Sidney S. George of Eugene for state superintendent of public instruction.

Mr. Erickson will oppose T. M. Kerrigan and Thomas E. Campbell, in a written statement issued here today, said:

"The position of public service commissioner appears to be above Mr. Kerrigan's mental caliber. He has done nothing but make a mess of the business of the commission. His principal action appears to have been to form a coalition with H. H. Corey to oust his opponents. I was active in the recall election and helped to nominate Mr. Kerrigan. Now I am disappointed."

C. V. Soderback filed yesterday for county commissioner of Multnomah county, but his certificate was defective and had to be returned to him. Mr. Soderback is a member of the industrial labor party.

"The time for filing of candidates by nomination expired last night."

SEWERS ARE PLANNED

Long-Bell Company to Install New System at West Kelso.

KLISO, Wash., Sept. 13.—(Special.)—Plans are being completed by a staff of the Long-Bell Lumber company engineers for a mammoth storm and sanitary sewer system for their community, which will be built south of West Kelso. The first unit that will be installed will be a gigantic storm sewer, which will drain the entire area of the commercial and residential town.

The main trunk sewer will extend from the hillside west of West Kelso to Fowler's lake a distance of nearly two miles. It will be 48 inches in diameter, and radiating from it will be a large number of smaller sewers to drain the entire area of the town. Plans for the work are being completed this week and the contract will be awarded at an early date.

The sanitary sewer system, which will be equally large and comprehensive, will be an entirely separate installation and will drain to the Columbia river.
