AUTOGRAPHS ON EXHIBITION. Names Are of First 100 Episcopal Bishops in America. In connection with the Episcopal convention there is being shown in rooms at the Oregon Historical society in the municipal auditorium a remarkable collection of bishops' autographs. The collection is the property of L. Bradford Prince of Santa Fe, N. M. It contains the autographs of the first 100 Episcopal bishops in America.

The set of signatures on exhibit also lacks but one name of containing all those of the prelates who were the English consecrators of the first four American bishops. For the one missing signature, that of Bishop Kilgour of Scotland, it is said that search has been made over Europe for the past 40 years. The exhibit contains many letters written by early leaders of the church.

BISHOP MAY FACE TRIAL

of the missionary district of eastern Oregon until a bishop is regularly elected for this post. This will be done later in the present convention, when the general matter of electing bishops comes up.

There was no little surprise that temporary jurisdiction over eastern Oregon was given to a Washington bishop instead of to Bishop Walter T. Sumner of the diocese of Oregon. Presiding Bishop Tuttle, in his announcement, made reference to suggestions that the missionary district of eastern Oregon be merged with the diocese of Oregon. There were hints about convention halls that Bishop Sumner had urged this consolidation, though confirmation of this could not be obtained from the bishop himself.

Bishop Tuttle's protest against union of the district and diocese and his opinion of the great future in store for the Oregon country were emphatically expressed.

"I feel strongly," said the presiding bishop, "that to unite eastern Oregon with Oregon would be a great mistake. Look around Oregon and see the fertility of the soil, its great timber resources and the prosperity of the people and you will see what a great future this territory has. We do not want to go back. Eastern Oregon should have a bishop of its own."

Following his statement the presiding bishop presented a resolution to the effect that the convention proceed to fill the vacancy by election of a bishop when the time for such action arrives. This was referred to the committee on domestic missions.

Hersey Trial Will Be First. If the general convention acts favorably on the report of the special committee which investigated the case of Bishop Brown, who has been tried and succeeded in the diocese of Arkansas, there will be held what is said to be the first trial of an American Episcopal bishop for heretical utterances.

CHRISTIAN LIFE IS KEY

APPLICATION TO ALL WALKS OF LIFE URGED.

Church Should Welcome Masses, Speaker Tells Joint Session of Episcopal Houses.

That members of the church have it as their task to "apply the principles of Jesus Christ to every department of life," was the keynote sounded yesterday in the joint session of the Episcopal houses by Rev. Charles N. Lathrop, executive secretary of the department of Christian social service.

Speakers listed on the program included Bishop Walter T. Sumner of Oregon; Bishop George W. Davernport of Easton, Md.; Rev. C. F. Deems of San Francisco; Rev. D. R. Covell of Washington, D. C.; E. L. Baylies of New York city, and Secretary Lathrop. Other speakers participated during discussion of the subject of social service.

It was a suggestion of Mr. Baylies that the Episcopal church sponsor workingmen's institutes throughout the country. He spoke for a closer contact with the masses.

STRIKER IS REPUDIATED

'HERMIT BILL' HENRY'S TALK UNOFFICIAL.

Episcopal Bishops Receive Letter From Committee of Railroad Shopmen.

Bishops of the Episcopal convention were much interested yesterday in having read to them an official communication from the Portland railroad strike committee apologizing for the appearance of "Hermit Bill" Henry before them in the alleged pole of an accredited and responsible spokesman for the committee.

In response to a written request for the privilege of presenting the strike cause and obtaining advice as to its merits the bishops, in pre-convention conference, permitted Henry to make a 30-minute address before them on September 1.

Henry's talk proved to be an attack on the railroad and railroad management rather than an exposition of fundamentals of the strike situation. The letter read yesterday said Henry never received the official backing of the strike committee and disclaimed responsibility for the inadequate presentation he made. The letter was signed by Charles B. Knight, as secretary of the strike committee, and was addressed to Bishop Charles H. Erent, who read it to his associates.

"Christian social service means the application of the principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ to all relations into which men and women are brought, whether in government, industry, social or political life."

"The church must serve all people, the privileged and the deprived alike, and must continue to stand for mercy, charity and compassion toward those who are in trouble."

"Wages sufficient for a wholesome living should be the return for efficient service and the more that can be done in making the employer and the employed partners in business, with a feeling of common and friendly interest and mutual service, the better."

The utterances which have placed the retired bishop in such great disfavor with his associates have been contained largely in volumes he has published. In a book entitled "Communism and Christianity," he is said to have promulgated beliefs which are radically antagonistic to church doctrines and ordinary religious teachings. A resolution from his former diocese says that in this book he "renounced the Christian religion."

An alternative recommendation of the investigating committee, of which the present bishop of Arkansas, Right Rev. James R. Winchester, is chairman, offered an alternative for the proposed trial for heresy. This would be merely the "disavowal" of the retired bishop's public statements. The recommendations have not yet

MOB RULE CALLED MENACE TO NATION

Southern Preacher Arraigns Violence.

CHURCH GAMBLING HIT

Episcopal Convention Thrown Into Roar of Laughter by Baptismal Discussion.

Vengeance is the Lord's; violence begets violence; it is not possible to cast out demons through Beelzebub, chief of demons, contended the Rev. C. E. Wilmer, D. D., of Atlanta, Ga., in a scathing arraignment of mob violence, offered in the form of a resolution at the Episcopal general convention, yesterday.

Mob rule is threatening not only the nation, but the whole of society, the clergyman held, and civilization, which has been ages in the building, is menaced with destruction because public justice has given way to private revenge and a reversion to savagery threatens mankind.

The ministry and church are the two factors which can bring the people to a realization of their duties toward society, Dr. Wilmer contended, in asking for a public expression of the church's attitude on the question. The resolution was referred to the committee on social service for consideration.

Civilization Being Torn Away. "The man who commits a crime against another is like a man who breaks out a window pane on the top floor of a building. The mob that lynches that man for his crime is tearing away the very foundation of the building—civilization," the Atlanta minister stated by way of explanation.

This, and a resolution against the use of gambling devices at church fairs and entertainments, were the features of the morning's session of the lower house of the convention. The afternoon was given over to the discussion of prayer-book revision, and out of the mass of deep theological argument one little cleared topic, which caused the learned doctors and dignified laymen to break out in laughter, the baptismal service was taken up, and a proposal to substitute other phrases for the words, "Oh, merciful God, grant that the old Adam in this child may be buried," brought an explanation from Dr. C. L. Slatery, secretary of the prayer-book revision committee.

When the doctor explained that the change was proposed because some embarrassment was caused when the infant being baptized was a girl, the house broke into roars of laughter. It was a full minute before order was restored.

The house opened its session yesterday with the troublesome matter of the right of suffrage for suffragan bishops confronting it. On the advice of J. Randolph Anderson, parliamentary officer of the house, a way was shown for clearing up the difficulties that confronted a reconsideration of the matter. After this point was cleared, the house decided that it did not want to consider the subject and the matter of suffragan bishops again went on the table.

Reports from the committees on women and on constitution and canons were read. The house, in consideration of the long service in the church of L. Bradford Prince of New Mexico, extended him a vote of thanks by a standing vote.

Dr. Wilmer's attack on mob violence was the feature of the day's sessions. The resolution read in part: "Sympathizing as we do with all victims of brutal crime, we must remember that wisdom is found in righteousness and that the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. Violence begets violence. It is not possible to cast out demons through Beelzebub, chief of demons."

Fair Trial Is Right. "Every suspect is entitled to a fair trial. It is undeniable that men have been tortured by mobs, who, as afterward transpired, were absolutely innocent of any wrong. We also call attention to the (Continued on Page 7.)
