

YALE BOYS LIKE FOOTBALL THIS YEAR

For First Time in Ages Grid Outlook Is Bright.

MATERIAL IS VETERAN

Team Already Working Well on Simple Formations—More of Old Bulldog Spirit Shown.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

(By Chicago Tribune Leased Wire.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 14.—Yale redskins, for the first time in years, are opening their football work with prospects of a victorious team—not a great team, not a team of Heffelfingers, Coys, Jones or Hinkley—but a team.

I watched 80 men working on a water-soaked field yesterday and there was more of that old bulldog spirit out there than has been seen in Yale in a number of years.

The team has suffered losses, has not accumulated any great star as far as is visible to the naked eye, but it is a veteran team, working well already on the simpler formations, possessing a pair of competent, if not remarkable kickers, a clever forward pass—just what a team needs—three weeks further advanced toward playing condition than it was at this time last season.

Little Time for Training.

To Yale the fact that the majority of the regulars are veterans and the further fact that they have worked into shape, quick means more than it does to the majority of the big teams. Yale teams are handicapped heavily because of lack of time for training. It is an amazing fact that the Yale football players can have at the utmost only about one hour and a half of actual work a day, five days a week. The team has from two to four hours of work and deducting time for dressing, they are not given more than a few minutes less time than any of the big teams. The necessity of working too fast, for taking snap judgment in some cases.

But this year Yale brings on a squad which learned a lot last season, learned more on the playing than on the practice field and which is a way to a big start. It had to be, because Yale has a severe schedule with Carnegie Tech, a veteran and Iowa State, a team of the early schedule. In other words, if Yale comes through the Carnegie Tech and Iowa State games without serious injury, their team is made, made by fighting its way to condition. If it suffers severe injuries, it may be ruined.

Team Looks Good.

But after eight days of work the Yale team looks better today than it did in its early October battles last year, with more confidence and seemingly more confidence.

The coaching staff is more coherent, with Tad Jones at the head, and the players are more confident, with his team last year for the reason that it was unsteady at times, and lacked confidence, or that it was not given the right kind of work in spots and plays had to be built largely around Aldrich. This year Myron Fuller is helping Tad with the lines. Aldrich, however, is still in the line, and he is working with the line. Charlie Comerford is handling the ends and Pat Osborne, freshman coach, has been aiding. Into last year's line of center and Dr. Billy Bull complete the list of active coaches. Dr. Bull is working the men for early condition, and is ready to handle the line. The team is ready for scrimmage, and light scrimmage has been allowed. With seven full teams in action and Captain Jordan directing the first team, it is serious work from now on. There may be switches in the line and the effort of the coaches will be to strengthen the center of the line, which was hard hit by graduation.

Betty Is Ineligible.

Yale's rivals say that he was not hit hard, in that he was not hit by graduation, but losing into, who is ineligible, and MacAldrich was sufficient. Reggy Barry, the 215-pound linebacker, who played last year and was expected to be a strong candidate, is declared ineligible and the freshman promotion have failed badly. Of the 20 freshmen of last year's team only 13 can play this year.

Pong, the captain, is ineligible and Jack Ewing, considered one of the most promising of ends, also is out because he has taken to baseball. The tentative lineup for signals now is: center, Ted Jones; Cruckshank and MacKay, guards; Hadden and Diller, tackles; Cutler and Delaver, ends; Beckett, quarter; O'Hearn and Jordan, halves, and Mallory, full.

The center seems fairly assured, while the halves and heavier than he was and with a capable, although he is being tried in other capacities.

Guard Material Promising.

The guard material is promising. Cruckshank, MacKay, Jones, Ted Jones, a strong combination of Hubbard and Pillsbury were sub last season and fighting for regular jobs. Beckett, from the front line, is considered one of the most promising.

There is a wealth of tackle material, at which Harvard and Princeton, both suffering from lack of material, must gaze longingly. Hadden, Stark, Diller and O'Brien, have been through the line and show their abilities. Quail is a problem. He was hurt last year and there is fear that he may not be able to play this season. He is working out and fighting for his chance. Luffkin, the freshman, looks good and is extremely fast.

There is a wealth of quarterback material, but thus far no one star has sprung up, at least no one who shows signs of stealing the regular job. Beckett is going well and Joe Oed looks good. O'Hearn, Ralph Jordan, Knapp, Mallory and Bill Neale form the back line. Neale, who is a brother of "Greasy" Neale, is not a certainty, as he has trouble holding his scholastic standing.

Ted Wight Worry.

There is worry about Ted Wight, who strained a side playing baseball and has been in Johns Hopkins. There are three corking youngsters in Bench, Scott and Warner. Bench is lightning fast and clever with his footwork. Neale, of course, is a strong backfield man, Hulman, McCallum, Deaver and Lincoln all have shown their abilities. It looks like a team instead of a bunch playing around a star and a fighting team at that. The coaches are paying a great deal of attention to kicking, and

WE HAVE WITH US TODAY OFFICIAL FOOTBALL SEASON

This Is Day When Coaches Cease to Be Human and Put On Rough Stuff—Bear Stories Also in Order.

BY L. H. GREGORY.

WE HAVE with us today the football season. To be sure, weather is rather torrid to be talking about, and runs and there let alone doing them, but officially that's what.

On this day, September 15, the coast conference universities start football practice. Likewise, those of the northwest conference. Also those of the Big Ten, so-called, of the middle west. Generally speaking, this is a day of football beginning through the country, though Yale, Harvard and other big fellows have beaten the gun in most instances and have been exercising their squads for a week or two.

This is the day when football coaches cease to be likeable human beings and put on the rough stuff. In general the harder boiled a coach is the better he is supposed to be. From now into late November the coaches will be playing rough and mangle on this campus and that one with hoarse shouts of "Fall on 'at ball, fall on 'at ball," but, per-haps, "Tackle 'im! Get 'im! Oh, you punk!"

Today, likewise, will mark the hatching of a flock of "bear stories" and "mangle" tales from various camps as to the utter impossibility, for various reasons, of making any kind of a proper season out of the college game. It is considered utterly unethical in the best circles for a coach ever to admit that his team has a chance.

So when you read from Oregon that so-and-so has a broken back and 19 stretched neck ligaments and can't possibly play; from Oregon that so-and-so is a "mangle" and isn't a veteran footballist in sight and the situation is awful; from California that the "wonder team" is wrecked from tackle to tackle; from Washington that the bright prospects of last fall are blighted, and from Stanford that Andy Kerr is greatly disappointed with the material in sight and can promise not a thing—why, take it with a grain of salt, mates. It's old stuff.

There won't be much real football for two or three weeks. Practice for the present will be confined mainly to such fundamentals as tackling on the ball, tackling and kicking. Such practice games as are scheduled are mainly easy ones. It will be well along in October before the conference seasons really start.

The opening Pacific coast conference game will be played on Sept. 14 between Washington and Idaho at Seattle. The following Friday comes the Washington State-Idaho game at Moscow. Then on Oct. 15, the Oregon Aggies play at Washington at Seattle. From then on the coast conference season will be in full swing.

Usually a football coach is so anxious to hammer his team into uniform and under way that he hardly waits for the opening day, which in the coast conference is set by rule at September 15, but over the University of Oregon, Sny Huntington, head coach, is pulling a new one. He actually has postponed the opening the kicking in practice looks good. Jordan, Mallory, Neale and O'Hearn all can kick and Jordan is showing excellent distance under Aldrich's coaching.

It is too early for predictions, but Yale looks far better than it did last season. The fact that Carnegie Tech expects to try an early season surprise is a good omen for working. For the first time the coaching staff is sufficient in both quantity and quality.

ACCIDENT MARS GOLF PLAY

Miss Mida Sprains Ankle and Forfeits Match.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Upsets, some wonderful and some accidental, featured the third round matches of the western women's championships played today in which Mrs. Dave Gaut, Memphis; Miss Frances Haddfield, Milwaukee; Mrs. Curtis Sohl, Columbus, and Miss Virginia Pepp, St. Louis, were returned the winners.

Mrs. Gaut played brilliant golf in defeating Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago, present champion, 4 and 3, while Miss Haddfield put up a great fight after being down 2 to eliminate Miss Miriam Burns, Kansas City, two up.

An unfortunate incident of the day gave Miss Pepp a forfeit match over Miss Lee W. Mida of Chicago, who the Illinois woman sprained her

CLINTON LASHY BOXER

SUBSTITUTE FOR BENJAMIN NEEDS MORE TRAINING.

Eastern Fighter Already Holds Decision Over Sacco Whom He Meets Tonight.

Jimmy Sacco will fight Johnny Clinton in the main event at the armory tonight. The bout is a substitute for the one between Benjamin and Sacco, which was postponed because of Sacco's injury. Clinton, who comes from New York, was rushed from Seattle to do battle.

Clinton lost his first start in the northwest to Travis Davis at Seattle Tuesday night. Davis won in six rounds. Clinton has a weight advantage of nine pounds. Clinton had not had much time to train and the same applies to this fight, so the boys must not expect too much of him.

On Clinton's record in the book what he had, always he has had fights with Benny Leonard and one with Lew Tendler. He fought Leonard in Boston last May. From that time he has been in the gymnasium, working on his technique.

A year ago he engaged in an eight-round non-decision bout against Tendler in Philadelphia. He has won decisions over Frankie Warren, Joe Weiling, Eddie Carmichael, and others. He has been in the gymnasium, working on his technique.

Clinton hooked up on the coast with Dan Salt, the Seattle pugilist. Salt expects to book him for six fights on the coast. He may remain here until Christmas. When he is said to be a flashy boxer.

Both Dempsey and Willis Known as "Borers in". They Are Men Who Seldom or Never Give Ground Save to Start New Attack—Neither Has Ever Retreated.

ARTICLE III. BY HUGH FULLERTON. (By Chicago Tribune Leased Wire.) THE NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Two systems of attack more greatly at variance than those of Jack Dempsey and Harry Willis are hard to conceive. Yet in one way they are alike. Both are what the fighters call "borers in." They are men who seldom or never give ground save to start a new attack. Neither ever has been forced into a retreat by a more powerful attack.

Yet Dempsey is a leader and Willis, in spite of his steady and persistent forward drive delivered in close quarters, and a round-arm swing into which he gets the best leverage in the sport. Dempsey is of the type hitting straight from the side, but most of his blows are downward. Perhaps his great length has taught him that. He is a powerful man, while Dempsey rises upward, while Dempsey rises upward.

Body Attack Forecast. When these two meet the attack will be at the body. Neither will waste much time at the head. It will be interesting to see whether the downward or the upward stroke in fighting will prevail. Among the southern Italians who use the still-to-the-fellow who cuts downward is considered an amateur, while the fellow who rises upward toward the bowels gets results. That, in brutal frankness, is the difference between the styles of Dempsey and Willis. The forearm will hold back an upward rippling blow, but even if it is checked it is never stopped. The downward blow takes more time to deliver. Both men understand the use of elbows in stopping blows delivered with a side swing.

In the next article we will consider the speed, stamina and what is known of the "heart" of each.

GOLF CALL IS ISSUED

PLAYERS ASKED TO REPORT AT EASTMORELAND.

Complete Schedule of Matches for City Championships Posted on Clubhouse Bulletin Board.

A. K. Trenholm, one of the directors of the Eastmoreland Golf and Country Club, has issued a call to the players in the tournament visit the clubhouse before Saturday or Sunday, when they will be asked to report to the clubhouse for the first round of the tournament.

The complete schedule of matches will be found on the bulletin board, and results of matches should be reported on at promptly. All matches must be played each week or forfeited, the first round by September 17, second by September 24, final October 1 and championship finals of 36 holes October 8.

The matches must be played in 18 holes, in which extra holes will decide a match that is all square on the 18th. Western Golf association rules are to be followed. If a player is unable to play, he must be notified, otherwise ball must be lifted or played.

In order to be eligible to play, a player must be a member of the club, and must be a resident of the city of Portland. The water must be counted one stroke and another added for penalty. The ball must be dropped back of the water hazard.

In figuring handicaps three-fourths of the difference in handicaps is allowed. All disputes are to be referred to the committee in charge.

The course is now in fine shape. The greens are watered every night, so they will not be hard and fast as last week. Two or three trees have been cut out of the fairways on the first and seventh holes, and the water hazard on the 18th hole will not be so easily wind up in a tree top.

KALAMA CHALLENGES CAMAS. Columbia River Ball Club Declared Best of Bushers.

KALAMA, Wash., Sept. 13.—(To the Sporting Editor.)—Sir: There is a communication by Mr. Willett of Camas, Wash., lamenting that the Camas Grays were going to see for want of real competition. Inasmuch as the Grays, by their record, have established themselves as the best team in the state, it is a pity that they are not being challenged by a team of all-stars selected of the pick of the best of all Portland semi-pro teams be formed to play the Grays.

By their record long since accomplished the Grays of Camas have already established the acknowledged championship of semi-pro baseball in the Portland territory and we do not believe there is any team in Oregon that would or could successfully question Camas' title to the championship of the Columbia river territory in Washington lying above the Willamette river.

If the Grays should like to keep from "going to seed" and would like to add to their title "the championship of southwestern Washington and the Columbia river territory," it would be necessary first to dispose of the claims of Kalama, for Kalama, since the organization of its present team, has made an enviable reputation, having won 14 out of 15 games, the one defeat being the one game the team was off its feed. That game was lost in the ninth inning by one lucky score and had Kalama not been so lucky, the Kalama retrieved this game and has since pretty well established its right to the claim to the "champion-

GRID SCHEDULE CHANGED

MULTNOMAH CLUB PLANS GAME AT PASADENA.

Important Contest Tentatively Billed Will Be With Clemson on December 9 Here.

Two changes have been made in the tentative football schedule of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club, according to Ted Faulk, manager and coach. Instead of playing the Olympic club of San Francisco here on November 18, as was originally scheduled, the clubmen will take on the Winged O gridgers at Pasadena. A return game with the Olympic club is set for the Multnomah field on Thanksgiving day.

Another important game on the Multnomah club schedule is a contest here on December 9 with Clemson college of South Carolina. Dr. C. J. Stewart, ex-coach of Oregon Agricultural college, is coaching Clemson. He expects to trim Center college on November 30 and will then bring his team to the Pacific coast on a barnstorming tour.

The Mare Island Marines also are attempting to book a game with Multnomah club on November 18. Multnomah club will play at least six games in Portland, opening the season October 7 with the Astoria American Legion. Then follows the game with University of Oregon at Eugene on October 14. Gonzaga university will come here on October 21 and Oregon Agricultural college on November 18, then the trip to Pasadena on December 9.

Thirty-two players responded to the first call for practice at Multnomah club last Sunday. The practice was held Tuesday night and another last night.

WHITMAN STARS RETURN

MISSIONARY ELEVEN LOOKS GOOD ON PAPER.

Borleske Already Has Nucleus for Great Team, With More Crack Players Coming.

WHITMAN COLLEGE, Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—Practice for the Whitman football squad began with the issuance of suits to 25 men Tuesday and to an additional five men today. Two workouts a day and two lectures are the programme for the rest of this week.

The following letter men have drawn suits and reported for work: Borleske, Dean and Schroeder, ends; Ratcliff and Boyd, guards; Lucht, center; Rose, quarter; and Hall, fullback. Captain Red Heritage, star right tackle, and Earl Tilton, right halfback for two seasons, are expected to report tomorrow, and Claude Norris, the big fullback, before the end of the week. With still a possibility of the return of Harold Shepherd, left half, and Jack Hanson, giant lineman, Borleske appears to have the nucleus for a strong eleven.

Among others to report with excellent chances of making the first squad are Woods,
