

EDUCATIONAL BILL STIRS UP PASTORS

Resolution Favoring Measure's Defeat Tabled. WARM DEBATE IS HELD

William F. Woodward Supports and William D. Wheelwright Opposes Compulsory Plan.

If proponents or opponents of the compulsory school bill hoped to gain any support from the Portland Ministerial association, they were sorely disappointed yesterday, for the members of this organization, meeting to consider the proposed school bill, listened with evident interest to the arguments put forth by representatives of both sides of the question, argued a bit, tabled a resolution advocating defeat of the bill and then adjourned.

By the argument that was made by some of the ministers it was plain that a wide difference of opinion existed so far as the merits of the proposed bill were concerned, but all present joined in declaring the public school system the salvation of the nation.

Inception of Hate Denied.

Discussion on the school bill was opened by William F. Woodward, a member of the school board, who asked for its support. That the bill had its inception in hate and religious intolerance, as has been charged, he flatly denied.

"In the public school room and playground rests today the only true democracy in this land," declared Mr. Woodward.

He pointed out that during a school year children attend school for 184 days, as a rule, and are in the school room about 4 1/2 hours each day.

"So you can see that sufficient time is given to each parent or guardian to give the children the rudiments of any religion that such parent or guardian may elect," he said.

The public schools, according to Mr. Woodward, were constantly suffering attack from persons opposed to the system, but he argued that the placement of a child in such a school, side by side with children of every race, creed and color, was the first lesson in American citizenship.

Tyranny Is Charged.

In opening his statement in opposition to the bill William D. Wheelwright declared that he was in hearty accord with much that Mr. Woodward had said, and that he and his associates who were opposed to the compulsory bill were strong advocates of the public school system.

"Portland is the center of the public schools, as is shown by the fact that 24 per cent of the children of this city attend the public schools and only 6 per cent are sent to private schools," Mr. Wheelwright said.

The proposed bill, he declared, was insincere, as it purported to make war on conditions that do not exist in Oregon. He branded the bill as tyrannical, holding that it would take the state back to the dark ages.

"And the bill is unconstitutional, for it deprives citizens of rights that are given them by both the constitution and the United States constitution of this state."

Proponents Held Intolerant.

In closing Mr. Wheelwright charged that proponents of the bill were intolerant and were stirring up religious warfare throughout the state when all efforts should be directed to peace and harmony. He intimated that Mr. Woodward's sole interest in the bill was to drive a blow against parochial schools.

When Mr. Wheelwright had concluded his argument Mr. Woodward was given five minutes to answer the attack.

Mr. Woodward argued that he was not opposed to any religious sect, but was working for the public school system and the children of this city and state. He held that those advocating the bill were intolerant to an extreme and those opposed were the ones who did not tolerate.

"If Mr. Woodward's position in this controversy is tolerance, I must frankly admit that I don't know the definition of tolerance," was Mr. Wheelwright's parting statement.

Resolution Is Offered.

Dr. E. H. Pence took the floor to advocate the adoption of a resolution prepared by the educational committee of the association. This resolution urged defeat of the compulsory school bill until religious training was installed in the schools.

He proposed that one or two or even three hours be allotted to any group of students who desired religious training, such study to be a part of the regular school course. Dr. Pence declared that until the "separationists" had been given the right to have religious training in the school it was unfair to compel them to send their children to the public schools.

Action for or against the bill was opposed by Dr. C. W. MacCaughy, who held that state action would involve the association in politics, and the indorsement or refusal would constitute indorsement of certain candidates who will be on the ballot at the November election.

Proposal Is Tabled.

"I have people in my church," he declared, "who favor this bill, and I also have people in my church who are opposed to the bill. There are members in this association who would be placed in a false light if we were to take any action on this bill."

Then Rev. Walter H. Nugent, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, moved that the resolution be tabled. A loud chorus of aye's went up and a weak cry of noes followed. The resolution was tabled and the meeting adjourned.

Household Problems

by Lillian Tingle

TURNER, Or.—Dear Miss Tingle: Please give me (1) a recipe for sweet tomato relish, which calls for green tomatoes, and I believe some cucumbers; (2) a recipe for jelly. DADDY'S GIRL.

YOU might try the following, though it is hard to guess just what you may like when so many variations are possible:

Green tomato relish.—Take equal parts green tomatoes, seeded green peppers and cucumbers, all chopped to about the size of peas. For each gallon of the mixture allow 1/2 cup salt. Mix thoroughly and bang up in a bag to drain overnight. For each gallon allow 2 quarts vinegar, 1 ounce each cinnamon and cloves and 1/2 ounce each mace and peppercorns. One or two pickling peppers and an inch or two of stem ginger may be added if a little "bite" is liked.

Put the spices in a bag and boil the vinegar for 15 minutes. Add the prepared vegetables with 2 or 3 tablespoons each of mustard seed and celery seed, if liked. If the flavor is liked, but not the seeds, enclose them in the bags instead of mixing with the vegetables. Soak the drained vegetables in the liquid and vinegar. Add 2 cups sugar (or more or less to taste), oil and seal while hot.

Jelly roll No. 1.—Three eggs, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 1/2 cups flour, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons water, 2 tablespoons melted shortening, flavoring if desired. Jelly or other filling. Beat the whites with the salt until stiff, add one-third of the sugar and beat until glossy. With the same beater, in another bowl, beat the yolks until light and beat in gradually the sugar and water (alternately) with a spoonful or so of flour, as needed to keep the mixture of about the same consistency as the meringue. Fold or beat in the melted shortening and fold together the two mixtures, and the remaining flour, sifted with the baking powder.

Have ready a dripping pan or jelly roll pan, greased and lined on the bottom with greased paper. Cover the bottom of the pan with the mixture, spreading well to the sides and leaving a little thinner in the middle. Bake about 15 or 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Take out when done and turn face down on a paper sifted with fine granulated or powdered sugar. Work very rapidly, removing the paper and cutting thin strips from sides and end. Spread with well beaten jelly or other filling, roll up quickly, and pin the paper around to keep it in shape until cool.

Very quick, deft handling is essential or the cake will crack and both shape and texture will suffer. The roll may be left plain or frosted and decorated as desired. Various fillings may be used.

Slices of decorated rolls, variously filled, are often used as individual French pastries.

The same cake mixture, baked in a sheet (or in individual fancy tins) may be cut in plain or fancy shapes, and finished with different frostings and decorations, made with nuts, candied fruits and "piped" icing to make various "French Pastries" of the cake foundation type.

This may be of interest to Mrs. G. M. L. (Yambill) and others who inquired recently about French pastries.

NEW SCHOOL DEDICATED

Junior High Building Erected With Insurance Money.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—At the official dedication of the city's new $18,000 junior high school last night, City School Superintendent Cannon told how the board, after soundly opposing public sentiment, decided to replace a structure destroyed a year ago by fire with the insurance money, amounting to $11,000, and $70,000. While some wished to vote a special tax and the construction of a large school, the main sentiment was for rigid economy.

The school board, with Mr. Cannon's co-operation, utilized the foundation of the old structure. Even the old furnace was used.
