ARTICLE IX.—SIZING UP THE PITCHERS.

New York Giants reveal the tremendous weakness of the team for world's series purposes, the instant the opposition strikes the pitchers. It is the pitchers, and not the batters, who are the weak link in the Giants' chain, and without the kind of pitching needed to stop a team such as the Yankees, this slab corps of pitchers is in perhaps as bad condition as it has been all season.

With only Nehf and Barnes by extension, the knowledge of how to compete against the Yankees, and with both in the doldrums, the hope of the Giants, if there is any hope, seems to lie with McQuillan. But the youth obtained from Boston to hold the pennant safe has beyond the doubt, perhaps, the best pitcher in the world. He is a right-handed pitcher, and his style, if properly staged, managed and pitched, has a chance to turn in one winning game.

I have almost given up hope of selecting the pitchers who will work in the present series, because the chances are, McQuillan will have to be used in the series, and he is not a pitcher in each game except one.

Change Pitchers; Change Dope.
The success of the dope, as far as it applies to scores made in world's series games, is that: We have figured team strength, position by position and we know, beyond doubt, the attacking and defensive strengths of each club. Take a known attacking strength against a known defensive strength, and given the pitcher, we can figure almost to a certainty the approximate number of hits and runs that will be scored against that pitcher in nine innings.

But if the managers jerk the pitcher and send in two or three others, after using emergency batteries, or to start attacks, it complicates the matter.

In the series does this year I am trying a new plan, which ought to work out more satisfactorily. In the final summing up I shall figure how many hits and runs the Giants should make off each Yankee pitcher, and how many the Yankees should score off each Giant pitcher. Then, on the morning before each game, we will be in position to guess more accurately which pitcher will work, and knowing their strength and the attacking strength of the opposing team, we can approximate each score, which is better than trying to figure in advance which pitchers will perform in each game.

In the ordinary world's series game can figure almost exactly which pitcher will work, and how many managers will rotate them. But in the present condition of the Giant and Yankee pitching staffs, the manager can make a reasonable guess.

There is small use in dilating to any extent on the pitching staff. The fans' verdict is that both are rotten—which is about as complete a summary as could be expected. The Yankees' two really classy pitchers—Mays and Hoyt—have been that way for months. Mays is going to pitch, and he is well, and Shawkey, although not a really great pitcher, is the most dependable on the American league staff—especially in the world's series. It is a hard guess as to how Huggins, or whoever directs the Yankee strategy, will use Mays. In his season form he is not a logical star yet he ought to work the Giants. Hoyt, too, should give them trouble, provide he has the same form he has been depending upon them in vain has faith in their ability.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE YANKEE ACES ON WHOM MANAGER HUGGINS OF THE NEW YORK AMERICANS IS DEPENDING FOR WORLD'S SERIES HONORS.

GRUMAN DRAWS PROTEST

MANAGER OF BOBBY HARPER OBJECTS TO REFEREE.

Charley Yost Serves Notice That His Man Will Not Enter Ring if Ralph Officiates.

Man will be satisfactory—anybody but Gruman.
The Portland commission, at a meeting yesterday discussed the referee situation, though without reference to Yost's stand, which had not been announced at that time. Apparently the commission is planning to give Gruman a rest in any event, for it was given out that Edward Goddard, an old-time referee, formerly of Idaho, has been licensed to officiate at armory bouts.

Tom Loutill, who referees at Milwaukee and is considered by good judges of boxing to be by far the best referee in the northwest, had been asked to attend the meeting. He was not present, however, so was not licensed. The commission did not say whether Gruman or Goddard will referee tomorrow night.

The semi-windup on the card will be between a pair of heavyweights, a change having been made by Matchmaker Hansen. Tiny Herman and "Sugar" Keeler, a big fellow from Denver, will do their stuff in six rounds.

RACING IS SPECTACULAR

GREAT VOLO WINS FEATURE OF GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Three Heats Are Said to Be Fastest Ever Trotted in Walnut Hall Cup Event.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Some of the most spectacular racing in its 50 years of history was witnessed at the opening day of the gold jubilee meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horsebreeders' association here today. The feature event, the Walnut Hall cup, went to Sanford Small's four-year-old colt, the Great Volo. The three heats were said to be the fastest ever trotted in the event. The third heat equaled the record set by Ante Guy in 1918.

Peter the Brewer, in a hot stretch drive, landed the first heat from Casr Worlthy in impressive style, but Cox changed his tactics with the Great Volo in the second and third heats, coming from behind and landed the brother to Peter Volo and Volo in front. Casr Worlthy was not prominent after the first heat. Frank H. Ellis' filly, Jane Revere, of his own breeding, with the local trainer, Ben White, as pilot, won the 31st renewal of the two-year-old division of the Kentucky futurity.

W. B. Dickerman's Finvarra was an easy winner in the 2:15 trot, which opened the meeting. Plain Mac, from the Murphy stable, was to sit in a 2-cent seat to a 40-cent baseball game.

As for the baseball part of it, Yankees and Giants practiced, but the chief part of the practice, it should be admitted, consisted of arithmetic, for the players seem more interested in the dollar shares of the receipts than they are in figuring which team will win.

So far as I can see there is no question as to the ability of the Yankees to win the series. If McGraw can make his team win one game, he is certain to win the series. He has a faster, more mobile, more resourceful club. But he has not a pitcher who is entitled to more than an even chance to win, and he will have to guess the lowest form of any of the American league pitchers to get that far.

The workout today showed nothing whatever save that both teams were working to help themselves. Huggins' work is smart, however, whether or not he is popular (which he is not), announced that he intended to start "Bullet Joe" Bush and follow up with Bob Shawkey. He got the psychological jump on John (Muggsy) McGraw in this respect. He also said that he intended to follow Bush with Shawkey and that if he won those two he would use either Mays or Hoyt. He has all the cards in the air for he can change as he pleases. McGraw will, of course, start Nehf, who is a pitcher of sorts and a fellow who, according to the big players, needs a lot of early encouragement to win.

Tomorrow's figure out positively which pitcher will start and which ought to win.

The better odds today were 7 to 5, in favor of the American league team, and 2 to 1, on the American leaguers if Bush pitches against Nehf. On the basis of that sort of argument the Giants ought to be beaten now. McGraw knows that he has no pitching staff that can stand against the hitting power of the Yankees and he is figuring upon a system of attack to withstand the assault he is certain will come, no matter which pitcher he has chosen.

Press reservations have been made by many representing large cities in the United States. Many are from the Pacific coast, while the minor league cities, at least the larger of them, have sent writers along with the fans. Business managers of both the clubs have announced that the requests for reservations are much larger than last year.

It is possible to seat about 40,000 people at the Polo grounds, where all the games will be played. Each team will alternate in being the "home team," with the Giants enjoying the comforts of the home bench on the first day.

Whatever may be the interest out beyond the Hudson in the series between the Manhattan teams, there are enough fans among the 6,000,000 folks of the greater city to keep up a lively sputter-sputter of constant live chatter on the life, and what's and why's of the chances of the teams.

"Babe" Ruth, notwithstanding the fact that he was kept out of the game for more than a month for being unempowered, is expected to be much better than McGraw's moundman, Nehf. Jess and Virgil Barnes, Jack Scott, McQuillan and Ryan, Bush won 26 games for the Yanks this season and Shawkey and Hoyt both won a good majority of their games. Carl Mays, the under-handed flinging star of the 1921 season, has had an off year.
