Huggins to Use Joe Bush to Get Jump on Foe.

INTEREST WORLD-WIDE

Telegraph and Cable Wires Radiate From Polo Grounds to All Points of Globe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—Baseball, America's national sport, will arise to the dignity of an international episode tomorrow when the local National and American league teams open battle for the 1932 world series championship.

Keen as is the interest which will focus on the historic Polo grounds from all portions of North America, when the Giants and Yankees cross bats, hardly less surprising are the arrangements made to flash the result of each game to distant lands where baseball is still a name rather than a sport.

Although lacking international competitive character, the outcome of the play holds international interest.

Wireless to Relay News. Judging from the preliminary plans announced, the scores and high lights of every contest will be cabled to South America, Europe and Asiatic countries, while ships on the seven seas will learn the outcome from wireless waves. With such world-wide interest illuminating the series, the zone of conflict is almost with baseball enthusiasm.

New York and its inhabitants tonight apparently had dropped, for the time being, all cares of the workaday world. Conversation hinged on whether "Babe" Ruth of the Yankees would wreck the Giants' machine with his home-run bat, or Arthur Nehf, the National's pitching ace from Terre Haute, would turn back the heavy-hitting Yankees in the initial clash of the series.

Score Boards Glisten. Telegraph and cable wires radiate from the Polo grounds to all points of the compass. Score boards and player boards, with their vari-colored lights, glisten from points of vantage in all parts of the city. Thousands of fans who will never see the inside of the baseball coliseum during the series will follow every play, and the scores, by radio descriptive service to be broadcast miles beyond the sight of the Giants' stadium.

It is the old story of a house divided against itself. East vs. west in a world series and New York roots for the home team, regardless of the team's affiliations. Tonight, however, the baseball atmosphere is saturated with the most intense rivalry for internal dissension regarding the ability of the two local teams and their individual stars have divided the fans against themselves.

Odds Slightly Dropping. Although the American league players still rule favorites to repeat the double crown a year ago, the odds are steadily dropping. In place of the eight to five odds prevailing last week, Yankee supporters quote odds of six to five, and there is little heavy betting even at these short odds.

Visions of the closeness of the play in the double crown have made clubs grappled for world honors and the extraordinary and thrilling climax in the final contest which gave the Giants to the Yankees, five games to three, leaves even the most analytic fan shaken in his conclusions. A careful study of the records and season's averages fails to evolve an outstanding favorite.

Supporters of the American league pendant victory are buoyed up by the greatly increased strength of the Yankees' pitching staff. Giant rooters counter with the claim that the Nationals, too, have a pitching staff since 1921, and in Manager John McGraw, the Napoleon of baseball, have a diamond strategist of incomparable caliber.

Every Reserved Seat Sold. Whatever the result of the four out of seven game series, the play will lack none of the atmosphere and wonderful soundings which have made the world series wherever played, famous as an American sport contest.

Every reserved seat in stands and boxes has been sold and given fair weather, such as the local forecasters heralds for the morning, the 24,000 unreserved seats, however, are expected to be filled before the first Yankee batter takes his place at the plate. The huge horseshoe-shaped stadium under the shadows of Coogan's bluff will be aflutter with flags and pennants, many of which have been similar service in past series. Bands will play and dignitaries of national, state and baseball bodies lend their presence and voice to the climax of another diamond season. The advance guard of numerous out-of-town spectators are already taking the capacity of convention-congested hotels.

Umpires Are Assigned. New records in either attendance or gate receipts are unlikely, however, for with the return to the seven-game series, duplication of the figure established in last season's best five out of every nine games appear impossible. Another year, when the Yankees new park, with its 70,000 to 80,000 seating capacity, is completed, there may be a different tale to tell, but this season the 1921 total receipts for eight games of $940,232 and the aggregate attendance of 269,377 seems set.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, assigned umpires for the opening game this evening, with the statement that all the preliminaries had been completed and that now it was up to the players and the weather man. "Now, don't ask me to name a winner," he warned. "I am neutral, but it's going to be a great series."

Arbiters to Be Busy. His selection for arbitrators of umpire place W. J. Klem and Harry McCormick of the National league behind the home plate and at second, while George Hildebrand and C. B. Owens of the American league will work close to the first and third-base foul lines.

The arbiters will have plenty to do from the start of the play, for a keener contested series is not likely to be found in the history of the world series.

It goes without saying that both Manager McGraw and Miller Huggins, the Yankees' mentor, will send their strongest combinations into battle tomorrow. In a short four-out-of-seven series, winning the initial game spells an advantage which is hard to overcome.

The Giants are expected to open on their own grounds and in the role of home players, with Artie Nehf, the star pitcher, facing the team, regardless of the team's affiliations. Tonight, however, the baseball atmosphere is saturated with the most intense rivalry for internal dissension regarding the ability of the two local teams and their individual stars have divided the fans against themselves.

HERE WE HAVE SOME OF THE STARS OF THE NEW YORK GIANTS, WHO PLAY FIRST GAME OF WORLD SERIES AGAINST YANKS ON POLO GROUNDS TODAY.

As was the case last season, much will depend upon the brinks of the game, especially in view of the shortened series. Manager McGraw contends that he has sufficient twirling strength for such a series and predicts that sensational fielding will back up the pitchers and cut down the heavy and long-distance batting that the average follower of baseball expects to feature the play.

Huggins, assured of an excellent hurler from his veteran staff of pitchers, is counting upon the Yankees' heavy hitters to batter their way to the front promptly and hold the lead until the end.

Much will depend upon "Babe" Ruth's ability to hook into the delivery of the opposing league's star box man. Twelve months ago he was not in physical condition to do himself justice. Aside from a slightly strained side today, he is ready, and Yank fans are hoping that the Bambino will deliver in sensational fashion in his second facing of the Giants' hurlers.

Ruth Out for Practice. Ruth was out with the Yankees in their final practice, which began shortly after 10 o'clock this morning and ended when the Giants ambled out about 11 o'clock. He leaned hard against the pitching, sent a couple from his club into the cooler attitudes and then disappeared. It was before a quiet but deeply interested crowd of truant school boys, who seemed to evade the police and get inside by percolating through the concrete walls, that both teams put in their final sitches. Mostly, it was a light workout to keep muscles from stiffening. The teams worked similarly, the regular infielders practicing as they do before a game, and the outfielders chasing the ball and catchers peeing the ball.

Batting all around ended the session. In the dressing quarters of both clubs afterward there was an atmosphere of tenseness with little joviality. Manager McGraw of the Giants, did not come out, and Hughie Jennings, first assistant, was in charge. In the stands observing his charges. Both appeared very serious and did not attempt joking. Each said every man on the teams was fit and ready.

The probable batting order: Baneroff, shortstop, .324; Grob, third base, .372; Frisch, second base, .326; Meusel, left field, .331; Young, right field, .331; Kelly, first base, .329; Stengel, center field, .300; Snyder, catcher, .338; and Nehf, pitcher, .288. Below at left is a close-up of John J. McGraw, the Giants' celebrated leader, himself. Next in order are Jess Barnes, the right-handed curvester, who stopped the Yankees last year; Art Nehf, southpaw pitcher ace and main dependence in this series, and our own Dave Baneroff, shortstop and field captain, who learned his shortstopping many years ago with the Portland Beavers.

struggle to decide the championship of New York, which, of course, is the world to New Yorkers, before visiting firemen, bankers and others from the camping-out grounds.

The Yankees are favorites for both the series and the first game. The odds today shortened, because of the Tammany tip that the Giants can't lose with Al Smith rooting for them. Today bets were made at 8 to 5 that the Yankees would win, but the bulk of the wagering, which is light, compared with former years, was at 7 to 5 and some bets were taken at 6 to 5. On the first game the betting was 6 to 5 and 10 to 10 on the Yankees.

You see it is hard to persuade New York that McGraw and Tammany can be beaten. Scaplers Have Tickets. The tickets are all sold—although 22,000 general admission remain. The scalpers have their usual quota, secured no one knows how in the face of a tremendous demand by the bankers in convention here. In fact, the series looked like a flop until the visiting bankers started to buy. There was a queer apathy among the New York fans—due, perhaps, to the idea that "De Joynts" would be beaten, but in the last two days a violent press-agent propaganda has restored some of the "Joynts" confidence, and the fact that Al Smith, democratic candidate for governor, is to throw out the first ball is used to boost the Giant slant. The republicans are trying in vain to get Governor Miller to hurl a ball.

In fact, this looks more like a political rally than a baseball series. 40 Candidates for Football Team Begin Practice. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Forty freshmen football candidates turned out yesterday under the tutelage of Baz Williams, Skeet Manerud and Doc Medley, former coaches for the first workout on Kincaid field. This number is expected to swell to 75 or 80 before the end of the week. The workout will be along elementary lines until the coaches discover the respective abilities of the candidates.

The freshmen play Mount Angel college at Mount Angel October 14. Aberdeen Bowlers Busy. ABERDEEN, Wash., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Al Peter and Bill Williams took first place and Rocco Turina and John Vuletic won second in the doubles bowling tournament held on the Academy alley Sunday. Joe Setka had high single game of 245, and Charlie Kristivich won high average prize with 1164 pins in six games.

Duck Hunting Poor. EUGENE, Or., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Duck hunters of Eugene, who have been out since the season opened Sunday reported poor luck. The rains have not been heavy enough to provide a good ground for ducks in the Long Tom swamps where most of the ducks are killed in this locality.

Engine Expects Willard. EUGENE, Or., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Jess Willard, formerly heavyweight champion of the world, may soon appear in Eugene, according to Jack Fulton, local boxing promoter. Bob Evans, Portland boxing promoter, is bringing a string of boxers north and Medford, Roseburg, Eugene, Salem and Portlanders are in his itinerary.

Tammany has most of the seats and the most eminent gunner and boot-leggers are much in evidence. The team had their final workout in the terrific heat today, the teams practicing an hour each and a final meeting was held at 4 p.m. Instructions were given the players. The umpires were assigned—the first game, the Giants being the home team, will be handled with Klem behind the bat, Brick Owens on the bases and Hildebrand and Harry McCormick calling the fouls.

Umpires More Satisfactory. The umpires this year are much more satisfactory than those of last year, especially on balls and strikes, where much dissatisfaction was found in the last series. However, the pitching this year is not liable to be nearly as good and balls and strikes will count for less.

Both teams are declared in excellent shape, although there has been some worry among the Yankees because of Bush's stone bruise which, however, is declared to be better. The wagering, while general, is unusually small. Evidently the Giant betters are waiting to see how Nehf performs. Hori, who the Yanks is said to have come back strong in the last fortnight and may be used more prominently than was expected.

Goetham All "Hot" Up. All the reserved seats, about 20,000, were exhausted this morning. A round of the scalpers showed them in possession of considerable numbers of tickets, how acquired they only know. The clubs seemingly tried in every way to prevent them from having them. Prices, however, are not much over double face value.

There are about 500 visiting newspaper men, some of whom have attended baseball games before. At any rate, it is a great show—and New York is all "hot" up—because the weather is like August, and promises to continue that way for two days more at least.

Return of Reed Strengthens Team Materially for Game With Willamette. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—With the Oregon squad augmented by the return of substitute linemen and back, until it now numbers 25, Coach Huntington put his men through three hours of workout yesterday afternoon. The return of Dick Reed, who showed up well last fall as a second-string guard, tackle and center, simplified the line problems of the coaching staff.

Reed, who was out for the first time last night, immediately went in at center on the first eleven. Byler being released for his old position at tackle. Reed weighs around 180, is a sure passer and has had considerable experience at the pivotal position, so will strengthen the line greatly.

The game with Pacific Saturday showed clearly the weaknesses with which the coaching staff must contend. Condition, or rather lack of it, was a prime factor in the variety of the poor showing against Pacific. Bill Hayward, varsity trainer, is taking no chances with his proteges on that score and yesterday announced some rigorous rules, effective at once. Smoking, tobacco and all candidates for the eleven will be expected to keep regular hours. The training table will be continued for the night meal until the season ends.

Bart Spellman will have a chance to work as his line player of material for substitutions, now having 22 men to pick from instead of the scant dozen that turned out for the first two weeks. Several additional men are expected before the week is over.

Parsons at left guard and McKeown at left tackle will have a chance to show their stuff today, as they had been in suits only a few nights. With them in shape and with Reed at center, a much stronger lineup should take the field against the Methodists.

Thereafter Middleton was so very good that the Bees could do nothing with him, whereas the Beavers tried to find McCabe in spasms. They tied the score in the fifth, making it four-all, when with two and two out, Brasili crashed a double to center and scored both runners.

Then in the sixth Jimmy Poole, who had a fine day at the plate, smacked a line-drive homer over the right-field fence as first up. High filed out, but Gressett tripped and Fuhman brought him in with a drive to right.

The Beavers made their seventh run in the seventh inning, this time off of Blaschke, who had relieved McCabe. McCann walked as first man, Brasili sacrificed him to second, he took third on Hale's second fly and scored on Poole's third hit. In the eighth, a line single to right.

In the ninth the Bees made it interesting by getting two hands on with two out, which brought Paul Strand, the home run hitter, to the plate. Strand had done nothing previously, but he gripped his bat menacingly and looked dangerous. But Middleton had his number. Al Strand could do in the pinch was a high infield fly, which McCann grabbed for the ball game.

Strand After Record. Strand, incidentally, was doubly anxious to make that hit he didn't get. In the first place, it might have meant the game and in the second place Strand is out to break the Coast league record for number of hits. The record is 271 hits and Hank Miller set it in 1926. Strand has 261 hits, so to crack the record he needs 11 more blows. It was a terrible shock to him yesterday not to get so much as a piece of the ball in four times up.

The Beavers have only one catcher again. Honus Mizs, lent to Portland by Oakland for two games, was revealed Sunday by the Oaks, that puts the whole catching burden on Fuhman, who is nursing a sore leg besides. Fuhman is doing a mighty good job of it, however. This boy's improvement has been remarkable since he has been getting plenty of work.

Today's game will start at the usual hour of 2:45 o'clock, which ought to give everybody plenty of time to get the world's series score.
