recipe books" with some brands of dates, but these are not very necessary if you remember that the washed, dried, stoned and cut dates can be substituted in almost any ordinary recipe that calls for raisins or chopped figs.

Any oil will become rancid if sufficiently exposed to warm air, but that is no reason for throwing it away. If too rancid to use, it can be used for soap.

Salad oil should be kept closely corked in a cool place and the "lip" of the bottle or tin should be carefully wiped so that no drops remain to spoil on the outside.

If only slightly "strong," Crisco may sometimes be clarified by heating in a double boiler with 1/4 teaspoon soda to each cup Crisco. Dissolve the soda in 1/4 cup water, stir into the melted Crisco, add a few pieces of clean charcoal and keep hot over hot water for about 15 minutes. Then strain into cold water. When cold strain off the hard-ened fat. If too "strong" for clarification, use for homemade soap.

Salad oil may sometimes be clarified by heating gently with charcoal and then straining, but it is more difficult to render flavorless than the harder fats. It may, however, be used for soap as stated above. A number of recipes for homemade soap have been given comparatively recently. If am glad you find this column useful.

New Today in the Markets

THIS year's crop of nuts is beginning to come into the market and, because they are considered a delicacy so early in the season, the price is high. Chestnuts are offered at 25 and 30 cents a pound and almonds at 40 cents a pound, shown in small quantities at 25 cents a pound.

A new nut from the interior of Brazil is in the market this week, and it is of a dark brown color. It is more of a curiosity than a food. Known as the Paradise nut, the new arrival is a better quality of the well-known Brazil nut or "nig-gie toe." It is held sacred by the natives of Brazil, it is said, and until recently was not allowed to leave the country.

Early warm rains have brought on a good crop of mushrooms in the valley. They are offered in some of the markets. New strained honey is also being shown.

All markets and shops have a large supply of grapes of all varieties. Concord is priced at 10 cents a pound and three pounds for a quarter. Malanias and muscats are 10 and 15 cents a pound and tokays are 10 cents, two pounds for a quarter and 15 cents a pound. Ladyfinger grapes are higher in price, at 20 cents a pound.

Burbank potatoes, large and smooth, are being shown in quantities. They range in price from 15 pounds for 25 cents to 2 1/2 cents a pound.

An advance in canned milk amounting to 20 cents on a case will mean no more 10-cent cans of milk unless the housewife purchases from a concern with a large supply on hand. The price of a four-dozen case went from $4.80 to $5.

VETERAN WINS LENIENCY

Mail Robber's Sentence Limited Due to Restitution.

Because Charles R. Smith, ex-marine mail guard, had shown the proper spirit of repentance by making financial restitution for his theft, Federal Judge Wolverson yesterday imposed a light sentence of 60 days' imprisonment for robbing the United States mails. Smith had appeared in court the day before and had pleaded guilty.

The fact that he made good the money lost through his peculations and his fine war record in France won for him the mercy of the court. Smith was granted a two-day stay of judgment, to give him time to settle up his affairs, before going to jail. The sentence will be served in the county jail here.

Household Problems

by Lillian Tingle

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 17.—Dear Madam Riche: Will you kindly suggest a style for a dark brown broadcloth dress which I wish to make over. It was formerly a coat and skirt, so will have to combine with some other material. I am quite stout, so kindly help me plan something that will have a tendency to make me look more slender. Height 5 feet 6 inches, bust 46, waist 36, hips 46, dark hair and eyes. Have thought of using either satin or velvet in some shade for combining material and would like machine stitching in dull gold for the trimming. Want a dress suitable for afternoon wear.

Thanking you in advance for your interest, I am, sincerely yours, MRS. P.

MRS. P.—For one of your portions I do not advise the use of satin, as all materials with the luster have a tendency to add to the size. Your brown broadcloth will combine beautifully with the velvet in the same tone or a bit lighter. Perhaps you would like the reticulated shade. Then, too, there are the crepes made in the heavier weights with a happy value for combining with the broadcloth. Your pleats are splendid and with a few minor changes I would have you work upon the general scheme which appears on the model shown in the Elite for October, page 15, No. 4149, and blouse thereon. Let the pleads of your coat remain, trimming the front of blouse with a panel cut in one with the belt and drop at a longer line than is shown in the picture. The pleated panels on the skirt should be of the contrasting material, which will cut your width and add a long line. I would also eliminate the yoke and therefore gain the long line at the back. Let the back of the jacket have the pleats as now shown, with a panel of the velvet or crepe, and on the back of skirt the pleated panels as shown in the illustration. If you use the velvet you cannot have the pleated panels, and in that case have them quite narrow with the brown crepe silk and the gold thread outlining a design which will add to the long line. The collar should be narrow and the gold thread rows of the brown and gold, the long sleeve finished in the same manner. The belt should surround the extended piece at the back, which makes a cross long and adds to the width. The front can have the extended piece, as the line is not wide.

Dear Madam Riche: Have four yards of 36-inch material like the enclosed sample. Please plan a dress for me. I have brown hair and gray eyes; am of medium height and very slender. Have some color.

Marie—If you are slender then you should wear the gown which will produce the fuller line. The model I have in mind for you is fetching in its combination of chints which will combine nicely with your material of crushed velvet lines.

Have the straight two-piece skirt with the gathered top to throw fullness over the hips and in fact all around. A kimono sleeve and the underarms of the pink, the front of blouse a panel of chints with the rather crushed line at waist and the belt and ends cut in one with the front panel. The back is also so trimmed and has a slight bloused effect under which the girde ties to the right side of that panel, hanging in the center. The extremes of which are finished with a cross strip of the plain material. You have the sleeves have a drop of blouse a panel of chints with the edge to the three-quarter-length type of sleeve. The skirt is made very attractive with the tan-inch band placed at the very bottom. A standing band of an inch with finished collar should be of your pink. This makes a most attractive frock, and in selecting the chints be sure and choose a rather dainty pattern with the black, blue, gold and green in the color scheme. The overblouse opens on the left shoulder and under arm. Skirt has left side opening. You will find two yards of chints sufficient if in the 46-inch width.

Manslaughter Charge Filed.

What's What

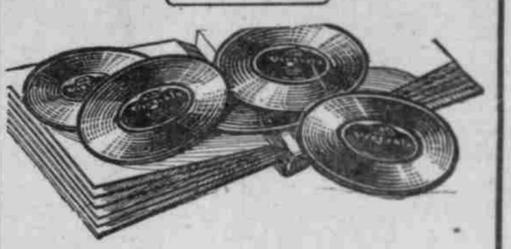

WHEN guests are to be entertained, the business of making their visit enjoyable should not fall to the mother alone, although, by all convention, she is the social head of the household. "The duty of members of the family is to spread themselves among the other guests," as the author of "They Twin" observes. That is, whether or not there are sons and daughters to help the mother, the visiting relatives should also co-operate in the matter of hospitality to those "other guests" who are not kinsfolk, but strangers within the gates. Quite often, invited relatives expect to be entertained, without helping to entertain. They forget the old and never-revoked clan law which obliges them to stand by their kindred in public (whatever their private feelings may be). Indifference to the discomfort of another guest is emphatically rude behavior in a relative of the family, where it would be mere negligence on the part of a stranger.

Things You'll Love to Make

Give Your Drapes a New Touch.

IF you do not care to change your draperies entirely, you can give them a new effect by hanging them in this way. Cover the pole with silk or velvet in a color that will harmonize with the color scheme of your room. Enamel the rings black. Make long tassels of ribbon or heavy wool. Join one to each end of the pole. If the pole will hang low enough to show the decorations, consider a large design in bridal colors at each end of the pole. Your draperies will have an entirely new look and at so little extra expense. FLORA.

Problems of Dressmaking

by Madam Riche

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 15.—Dear Miss Tingle: (1) Have you a simple, inexpensive recipe for a dessert made with dates? I have a date tart, but it is so very rich I can't use it.

(2) Can you tell me how to sweeten Crisco that has become strong? Also salad oil? Some say that the oil will not get rancid, but I have thrown quite a little away on this account. I have been trying quite a good many of your recipes and find them lovely and appreciate your advice. M. B. W.

STONED and cut dates may be added to a large number of simple desserts such as creamy cooked cereals or custards, or may take the place of raisins in plain or rich steamed puddings or batter puddings, or may be mixed in with cottage puddings. Any preferred proportion of used simply in combination with such fruits as bananas or peaches with a little sweetened cream or meringue, with or without a few chopped nuts or marshmallows or boiled rice) to make a quick emergency "whip-nussert." If you let me know what type of dessert you want I will give any detailed recipes you may need, but probably the above suggestions will be enough.

Always scald all but the very choicest, dry the dates very quickly in hot water and then plunge into cold water (to wash without soaking them) and let dry in a warm place before using. This sacrifices a small amount of sugar in the date, but makes a great improvement in cleanliness, appearance and flavor.

You can obtain neat little "date
