

FOREIGN SHIP LINES TO KEEP UP FIGHT

Supreme Court Restraining Order to Be Asked.

PAPERS ARE PREPARED

If Supercedes Order Is Granted Interference With Vessels Would Be Halted.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The supreme court of the United States will be asked to issue an order restraining the government from enforcing the prohibition laws against transportation of liquor on foreign ships touching at American ports and on American ships outside of American coastal waters.

Counsel for the ship lines which instituted the original proceedings before Federal Judge Hand in New York were in Washington today preparing the necessary papers for submission to Associate Justice Brandeis. Being assigned to the second circuit, in which New York city is located, Mr. Brandeis would have supervision over matters before Judge Hand's court and a petition for a supercedas order to hold up that court's dismissal of the ship companies' injunction case would be filed with him.

Supreme Court Action Likely.

If granted, the supercedas order would prevent interference with normal operation of the fleets of the appellants until the legal point at issue had been decided by the supreme court.

Unless counsel for the shipping companies can prevail on Justice Brandeis to issue the order, federal officers normally would be required to proceed to enforce the statute as soon as Judge Hand formally signed the final order. Under precedents of the supreme court are inclined to grant injunctions while the court is not in session, providing that such requests shall be submitted to and acted upon by the court itself. At present the court is in recess and will not again meet until November 12.

Agents to Be Instructed.

It was understood that enforcement agents would be instructed that a certain latitude was permissible both as to the quantity of alcoholic supplies and stocks designed for "gro" for crews in cases where such issuance was a legal requirement of their government, or a long-established custom. Judge Hand, in dismissing the injunction petitions announced that he would make an exception covering liquor on board ships for either of these purposes.

The treasury regulations were expected to set forth the safeguards which would be required of shipmasters and their agents to prevent such stocks being put to other uses. It is known that prohibition officials have favored a substantial bond against illicit use of these "excused stores."

Injunction Denial Appealed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Appeal from the decision of Federal Judge Hand, denying the injunction against foreign and American steamship companies for a permanent injunction on the enforcement of the Daugherty ban on liquor on board ships, was filed today by counsel for the Cunard, Anchor, French, International Mercantile Marine and International Navigation lines. The appeal followed the issuance today of a decree confirming Judge Hand's temporary stay, granted yesterday, of seizure by federal agents of agents of liquor to be used for ship crews on the eastbound voyage to Europe on foreign ships.

PUPILS DRINKING MILK

27 of 30 Persuaded to Make Use of Nourishing Beverage.

MONTESANO, Wash., Oct. 24.—Number of pupils in the grammar room of the Wynoochee school who bring milk with their lunch is noted in a report by Mrs. Elvira B. Eaton, project leader, to Miss Mabel Webster, county home demonstration agent.

At the beginning of October there were three out of 30 children bringing milk. Now the number is 27. Efforts the numbers are reversed and there are but three who do not have milk with their lunches. In order to make this more consistent Elvira B. Eaton, teacher of the room, purchased half-pint milk bottles and caps at wholesale prices and sold them to the pupils at cost.

CITY TICKET IS NAMED

W. C. Schultz Wins Re-Nomination for Mayor.

FOREST GROVE, Or., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—At the city mass meeting held here last night to nominate a city ticket the largest assemblage in many years gathered to participate in the festivities. W. C. Schultz, the present mayor, won over O. G. Bretz, H. G. Bond carried the day for recorder over the incumbent, E. S. Sparks, O. M. Sanford, incumbent, won the treasury nomination by unanimous vote. For councilmen there were 11 entrants for the six to be named and the result was as follows: J. S. Loynes, Elmer Hamilton, John Taylor, Dr. R. L. Mills, Dr. Charles Hines and C. A. Broderick. In all probability another independent ticket will enter the field before election day.

ERICKSON TO MAKE RACE

Candidate for Public Service Body Says He Will Not Withdraw.

"I have no intention of withdrawing from the race for public service commissioner," said Gus E. Erickson yesterday.

Mr. Erickson admitted that he had been approached and requested to resign, but said it was a political trick of his enemies.

"I will go down with the ship before I resign," he said. "I am in this fight to win."

Mr. Erickson denied that he had been nominated by the Ku Klux Klan. The Oregon Educational league originally nominated him.

CHEHALS CLUB MEETS

Ex-Resident of City Is Chief Speaker at Luncheon.

CHEHALS, Wash., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—The weekly business luncheon of the Chehalis Citizens club Monday was a homecoming for Doctor Randall Williams, president of the Tacoma Rotary club, who was the principal speaker. It was here in Chehalis as a boy 27 years ago that Dr. Williams, son of Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of the local Presbyterian church of those days, attended the little two-room school house on lower State street.

The subject of Dr. Williams' talk at the club luncheon was the spirit of co-operation between the various civic clubs of a community in the carrying on of their work. He detailed how through a joint committee that was named from various Tacoma organizations a complete working force was effected there that has been of greatest possible benefit to the city.

RICH AUTOISTS ARRESTED

Lumberman Taken to Jail After Machine Hurts Boy.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—Frank McCleary, 23, prominent lumberman of McCleary, crashed a high-powered automobile into the side of a smaller car driven by Rev. Henry Victor Morgan, 7-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. Morgan, seriously.

The boy was taken to a hospital suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain and from a deep cut in his neck. It was necessary to take six stitches in the neck wound to close the opening. The hemorrhage was stopped. It was believed, without serious consequences.

McCleary was arrested and released on $700 bail. He was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated. A quart of whiskey was found in his car, according to D. W. Penn, arresting officer.

McCleary declared that he had gone to sleep while driving, according to Officer Penn.

ALCHEMISTS' TALK ANNOYS SIR ARTHUR

Spiritists Will Meet Some Perils, Says Englishman.

STUDY HELD INTRIGUING

British Youth Ignorant of Revolutionary Battles That Won American Independence.

Our American Adventure, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. (Copyright by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, 1922, for the United States and Great Britain. Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

ARTICLE V.—Continued.

Their experiments seem to have been attended by danger and I expect that we shall hit a few unexpected snags in that direction. Thomas Vaughan, my alchemist who lived as lately as 1650, records in his diary that he obtained what seems to have been ectoplasm from his wife, but adds that his wife died the same night. His own death is recorded as having been from "an explosion of mercury," which sounds suspicious. I have no doubt that perils will be encountered on this line of study but it will no more deter the students than the dangers of aviation or the X-rays have done.

Some of the talk of the alchemists is very intriguing. They speak of the black, the white and the peacock's tail as three of the stages of knowledge. We have a black ectoplasm (vide the appendix of Schrenck-Notzing's book) and white is normal, but the peacock's tail is a problem. No doubt now that we are on the track we shall clear the matter up in time. I fear that the old boys had a touch of evil black magic in their researches. The idea that it was gold that they were after was sometimes put forward to blind the church, which approved of material but not of spiritual research.

Curious Coincidence Noted.

It is a curious point, though possibly a coincidence, that on the very day when I was puzzling over the peacock's tail of the alchemists I received a letter from a man who had gone through a deathlike trance. The following is one sentence from the account: "I tried to look around at my surroundings, but I could see nothing but an immense peacock's tail, which was very beautiful and big and maybe half a block in length."

At the same time I met a gentleman named Steinmetz in the Copley Plaza hotel who told me of a remarkable personal experience. He said that it was gold that they were after was sometimes put forward to blind the church, which approved of material but not of spiritual research.

What did she bring into the world that is new? Faith healing and healing by what we now call suggestion are as old as history. When suggestion is allied with religion it is at its best, and Lourdes and many other shrines, non-Christian or Christian, will show.

Does it require a millionaire priestess and a $5,000,000 temple to teach us that? This suggestion has often acted well—sometimes it acts ill. I had a young friend with cancer of the liver who was inoculated with this idea and who went about declaring his evil did not exist till he fell dead in his tracks. A surgeon might have saved him. We spiritualists have our healing mediums and suggestion help them, no doubt; but we claim no monopoly and have no great temples. In only one thing can I actually and certainly test the truth of this cult and that is in their view of spiritualism, and that I know to be utterly false. But how strange it is that this questionable movement, with its appeal to physical well-being, should find wealth and honor in suggestion, while we are persecuted and poor. But the story is not yet finished, and each will find its true place.

Revolutionary War Deplored.

I went, while at Boston, to visit Bunker Hill. I had always imagined it as an eminence or ridge some miles out of the town, but I was surprised to find that it was close at hand, and even in those days must have been part of the suburbs. It can hardly be called a hill at all, but is a mere mound which was the center of a line of trenches. It was carried by the British soldiers, but at a loss which put fresh heart into the Americans, who, like the Boers, were strong in their accurate rifle fire. All these skirmishes of the Revolutionary war and of the War of 1812, are hardly known to British youth who are equally ignorant of Princeton where we lost, and of Long Island where we won. But they bulk large over here and this is natural since so great a result grew out of them. They are among the few battles of the world which left a huge permanent monument behind them. It is always, however, with sadness that a British traveler must view the places which marked the divisions between the two branches of one family, and so prevented that family from exerting a single salutary influence upon the human race. BLOODED COLTS SHOWN

Farmers at Randle Exhibit Prize Animals at Fair.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—An interesting feature of the Big Bottom Community fair that was held at Randle Saturday was the display of spring colts owned by farmers of that section. A number of splendid young animals were shown. L. Schuffenhauer won first premium with his colt, while second place went to a fine animal owned by Mrs. J. W. Garrett.

The colts are the offspring of a community blood Percheron horse owned in the Randle neighborhood.

Children Are Suffocated!

When children die from croup they are suffocated, not poisoned by the disease. As long as the air passages are kept open, croup cannot prove fatal.

The old barbarous method of forcing medicine down a child's throat, for croup, is ineffectual and unnecessary. Just heat a spoonful of "Doo" in a tin pan or cup and let the child inhale the soothing vapor. In a few minutes the air passages will be clear, and coughing and gasping should cease. As an extra precaution, apply ointment freely to neck and chest, covering with hot flannel. This has saved many a life after other methods failed.

"Doo," the genuine Dennis' Eucalyptus Ointment, has been used successfully for over thirty years in the treatment of croup, whooping cough, colds, catarrh and respiratory troubles. Many physicians prescribe it. Sold in 25-cent tubes and 50-cent jars by all druggists. Money back if not satisfactory. Dennis Siff, Co., sole makers, Berkeley, Cal.—Adv.
