

TUBERCULAR WARD APPROVED BY CITY

Ordinance on Hahnemann Hospital is Passed.

PROTESTS ARE IGNORED

Disabled ex-Service Men Are Declared Entitled to First Consideration in Portland.

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance granting permission to the United States Veterans' bureau to treat tubercular patients in the Hahnemann hospital at East Second and Multnomah streets.

Property owners in the immediate vicinity of the hospital filed protests, but Mayor Baker contended that the ex-service men were entitled to first consideration and that Portland owed the soldier a debt more than it could ever hope to pay.

Passage of this ordinance practically assured the purchase of the Hahnemann hospital by the government for use in treating disabled soldiers.

Long Quibble is Held. While each member of the council made it clear that he would support the ordinance, there was a long quibble over whether the ordinance should be passed yesterday or action deferred until the regular meeting tomorrow.

Representative McArthur appeared before the council and urged that action be deferred, holding that during the short period of debate word would be in his hands from Senators McNary and Stanfield as to the prospect of the government leasing Hahnemann hospital for use as a vocational school.

Mr. McArthur made it plain that he favored and had always favored the purchase of Hahnemann hospital by the government, but he held that it was also important that the government establish a vocational school for former service men at the outskirts of Portland.

Mayor Baker held that inasmuch as the council had already assured Colonel Forbes of its intentions to pass the ordinance granting permission for the treatment of tubercular patients in Hahnemann hospital, that he could see no reason for any further delay.

"What good will it do if we withhold action, when it is certain that the ordinance will be passed on Wednesday?" he asked. "I can see no justification for further delay in this matter."

Glenn H. Ticer, in charge of the American Legion employment office in Portland, urged immediate action and after a long discussion the council instructed City Attorney Grant to draft an ordinance, the ordinance being passed later.

Telegrams announcing the action were sent to United States Senator Stanfield and Colonel Forbes last night by Mayor Baker.

It is understood that the government will not use the Hahnemann hospital as a tuberculosis sanitarium but simply desires the right to observe tubercular patients and diagnose such cases in that hospital. This right could be taken by the government without the consent of the council, but Colonel Forbes preferred to work directly in accord with the wishes of the city officials.

THIEF GETS TEN YEARS

MINIMUM SENTENCE GIVEN LIONEL HOBSON.

Youth, 22, Who Robbed F. W. Vogler, Said to Have Bad Record and Has Twice Escaped.

A sentence of ten years imprisonment was meted out by Circuit Judge Morrow yesterday to Lionel Hobson, 22, convicted last week on a charge of assault and robbery while armed.

Hobson was identified by Fred W. Vogler as one of the two men who attacked him and held him up as he drove into his private garage June 20, 1921, taking diamonds valued at $2500. The young man had at one time been an employe of Vogler.

Hobson's record, despite his youth, was a bad one. He is said to be under indictment at Logansport, Ind. for burglary and served a sentence of a few days in Portland for theft of an automobile. When arrested at this time he was said to have been carrying a "saw" and revolver. The youth had twice escaped from officers who arrested him on information relating to the Vogler holdup, being finally taken in Chicago, when he entered a hospital to receive treatment for a gunshot wound.

He received the sentence rather jauntily, seated between his sister and youthful wife. It was the minimum sentence possible under the statutes. Interested spectators in the courtroom included a James John high school civics class of about 40 girls and boys, chaperoned by A. B. George, their teacher.

BEETLE PEST DISCUSSED

Woodbug Experts and Timbermen Plan Fight on Pine Borer.

A conference of western woodbug experts and representatives of various western timber interests anxious to curb the destruction of yellow pine by insect-boring, met at the offices of District Forester Cecil yesterday. The meeting, which will extend over today, will include a discussion of the plans for next spring's fight against the pine beetles which have to a considerable extent ravaged trees in an area of 200,000 acres of southern Oregon and northern California.

Things You'll Love to Make

KNIVES.

A Knife Rack for a Christmas Gift. A full and attractive gift. Cut two pieces of board about one-quarter inch thick, six inches wide and 12 to 14 inches long. Nail a small, thin piece of wood to each corner of the inside of one strip. The pieces should be about one-eighth of an inch thick. Paint or stain both strips. They decorate them, using a simple design like the one shown at the bottom of the illustration. Fasten a four screw through each of the corners. This should be long enough to go through both strips and to hold the rack to the wall on which it is to go. The knives are slipped down between the two strips and caught in place by the handles.

Household Problems

MEMPHISVILLE, Or., Nov. 7.—Will you please tell me where I can get a book on how to make French pastry? Thank you for same. MRS. F. A. T.

THERE are some rather expensive "trade" books on French pastries and cake-making that you could probably order through any large bookstore, the best being published by a bakery trade journal in England. These books, however, would be of no use to you unless you have a regular commercial bakery and regular training as a professional baker; and, even if you are a professional baker, I do not think you would profit by them very much.

As a matter of fact, however, I do not see how a book on French pastries is necessary for either a home baker or for a professional. All the information that you would find in any "special" book on the subject is to be found in any good standard cook-book. You need to know how to make good fine textured cake, puff pastry, "chole" paste (or eclair paste) and rich short cookie dough. The foundation of any French pastry may be one of these or a combination of some of them.

You also need to know how to whip and use whipped cream and make Bavarian cream and custard or "English" cream and different merinques for fillings.

When you need to know how to make and use a few simple cakes of a bakery trade journal in England. This information is to be found in any good cook-book, and success is a matter of practice, skill and good taste in finishing.

Usually a little practice is necessary to secure the neat-handedness and technique in the use of the icing forep and in the preparation of nuts and fruits for fillings and earnish. This, however, cannot be obtained from any book, but comes from practice and good judgment. A French pastry is easy for a skilled cook and no book will serve as a substitute for skill and taste, so why waste your money?

Practically all the recipes necessary for the making of any French pastries have appeared frequently in this column. If you have any special kind of pastry or any special difficulty in mind, let me know if I can help you.

"French pastry" simply means "decorated individual cakes and tarts," and covers a great variety of combinations of the foundation materials. They are usually not "French" in any true sense, and most of them are easier to make than ordinary really good pie or layer cake, the principles involved being exactly the same as in ordinary full size cakes and pastry.

To Insure Popover Success.

POPOVERS are delightful if properly made. This means that they must be very light and fluffy. To insure success, be sure that the batter is very cold and that the tins or iron popovers cups are very hot before pouring in the batter.—The Housewife.

Women's Activities

THE WOMEN'S Society of the White Temple will give a silver tea and women's exchange at the home of Mrs. O. P. M. Jamison, 522 Main street, tomorrow from 2 to 5 o'clock. Members and friends of Lebkuchen No. 1.—Four eggs, two cups flour, two cups light brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, two ounces finely cut citron, one-fourth pound almonds, blanched and shredded. Beat the egg thoroughly, add the sugar gradually, beating all the time. Mix the flour with the remaining ingredients, combining the two mixtures. Bake in shallow pans in a rather quick oven. Cut in strips or squares, frost with one cup confectioner's sugar beaten smooth with two tablespoons water or orange juice.

If preferred one cup sugar and one cup honey may be used. In this case the flour may need to be increased by one to two tablespoons and a little cardamom (powdered) may be liked for flavoring.

New Today in the Markets
