EMPLOYERS' BOND REQUIRED NO MORE

Four L Votes to Abolish Security Hereafter.

MOVE MADE BY WORKERS

Employes Find Word of Lumbermen Sufficient; Is Evidence of Association's Success.

Evidence that the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen, as an association of employes and employers, is successful in the fullest degree was offered yesterday at the eighth semi-annual session of the directorate, convened in the Portland hotel, when by unanimous vote upon a recommendation of employe members the bonds which have heretofore been required of employer members were abolished.

This was consented to by the employers present only after it had been shown that the recommendation emanated from employe members in more than half of the legion districts, and that it was the sentiment of such employes that it was not equitable for employers to post such bonds when employes were exempt from such conditions.

Experience Satisfies Employes.

There was also, it was shown, a growing disposition to accept employer associates solely upon honor, this disposition arising from experience with the present employer members, who for four years have met every test through good and bad times.

The board represents the whole northwest logging and lumber industry, including the Inland Empire. The members, 12 employers and 12 employes, sit and vote as a common council, no distinction existing between employer and employe. Employers present represent approximately 40 per cent of the lumber output of the northwest.

The morning was taken up with the reports of President Coleman and the other executive officers, all of which showed the organization to be in a sound condition. Several expansion projects were outlined in the reports, to be discussed and determined later in the meeting, which will take at least two days.

In the afternoon session favorable action was taken upon recommendations of the executive staff in regard to extension and amplification of the work and service of the organization, with particular reference to logging camps, shingle mills and the employment department.

Extensions to Be Discussed.

During the three days of the convention plans will be discussed for the extension of the four-L service throughout the northwest. Members of the board are of the firm belief that there is as big or a bigger field for their organization than there has ever been.

Those in attendance yesterday were:

ALIEN I. W. W. DEPORTED

Another Will Be Sent Back to Native Land Tomorrow.

One alien member of the I. W. W. caught in the recent cleanup was deported Saturday and another will be sent back to his native land tomorrow, R. P. Bonham, United States immigration inspector, announced yesterday.

Gus Extram, who came into the United States unlawfully from Canada, was sent back to Sweden on a boat which sailed from Portland last Saturday. Extram was characterized by Inspector Bonham as a "good boy who fell into bad company." The second red card holder who will be deported tomorrow is Charles Romard, a Canadian. Fred C. Smithers, another Canadian, who has a criminal record, will be deported with Romard.

MR. JENNING IMPROVING

Merchant Stricken With Paralysis Expected to Recover.

Assurance of the recovery of Fred O. Jenning, president of Henry Jenning & Son, furniture dealers, who was stricken with paralysis Friday night while attending the Shrine ceremonial at Marshfield, was given last night by physicians in charge.

Prompt attention at the time of the attack, which was brought on by over-exertion, according to Dr. M. B. Marcellus, fellow Shriner, who attended him on the trip back from the coast, saved his life, it is believed.

SCENES WHICH MARKED THE OPENING OF PORTLAND'S COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN.

Upper—Some small guests, and hungry, of the Chamber of Commerce, assembled yesterday at members' forum. They are community chest babies from Albertina Kerr Nursery home and Waverly Baby home. Lower—When the chest campaign opened officially, at noon yesterday, at Sixth and Morrison streets.

CHEST DRIVE IS OPENED

BAND AND FIRE TRUCKS PROCLAIM APPEAL.

Host of Workers Enters Field to Solicit Downtown District and Homes.

colonels and the captains, and the gleaners in the field, realized that no easy task is before them, and that, first of all, the heart of Portland must open to less spectacular appeal—not for country, though it is, but for the homeless, the friendless, for citizenship, for cleaner living, for babies who have had the misfortune to forget their parentage.

"We have no fear of the issue," said E. C. Sammons, chairman of the campaign committee, "but we do bespeak from this day forward the earnest attention and zealous aid of Portland folks—until the chest is filled. Please do not confuse your thought with the impression that it is our drive, our project—for it is yours, and we are but your agents."

At any rate, whatever lies before them, the host of workers took the field yesterday afternoon—to solicit every office building, every store in the down-town district, every apartment house and every home. There need be no secret about it—though the larger business enterprises and the more wealthy citizens have proved generous, as they were expected to be, it is upon the homes of Portland, upon the minor giver, that the campaigners pin their faith in speedy success. It is the city's campaign—and though the chest is filled the drive will not have been entirely successful unless it is truly representative of the people of Portland.

Babies Are Object Lesson.

At members' forum, where the grave and the gay of Portland's Chamber of Commerce foregather once a week, there were distinguished guests at noon yesterday. A score of rosy-cheeked babies from Albertina Kerr nursery home and Waverly Baby home were ranged at their own special tables, with their own special bottles, and they dined as well and as lustily and as loudly as the most rotund commercial captain of them all. They dined like Tommy Luke at his best, and—in this they had a distinct advantage over their elders—paid no whit of attention to the eulogies, the oratory, launched at them and about them by proponents of the chest. For they were community chest babies, and their motto is to let the chest worry. As an object lesson in practical benevolence they were a solar plexus punch, and so they were acclaimed.

The speakers' bureau is actively at work, having held the following meetings yesterday: High school of commerce, Davis school, Fernwood, Holman, Hosford, Linnton, Jefferson high, Portsmouth, Sellwood, Sitton and Franklin high school and Portland Woolen mills.

Today speakers will talk at Alameda, Creston, Hawthorne, Highland, Scott and Beaumont schools. Tonight at 8 o'clock Dr. E. H. Pence, chairman of the speakers' bureau, will address the Greeters' association at the Portland hotel.

One of the best organizations reported to headquarters yesterday was that of Harold Jungck, colonel of division 3. He reported an impressive list of 56 captains and workers, many of them leaders in the community. They will cover precinct 43 of the division, which includes four of the busiest retail blocks in the city, lying between Sixth and Tenth and Alder and Morrison streets.

"Workers were very easy to get and they responded enthusiastically," was the comment that accompanied the list.

A full military band, the musicians of the seventh infantry regiment from Vancouver barracks, will play at the noon rally at the Chestometer, at Sixth and Morrison streets, today, when the first total of the drive will be chalked up. The band was obtained by A. C. McMiken, who has arranged for other musical groups to play each noon throughout the week. Judge Walter Evans will be the speaker at today's noon exercises.

Mrs. C. B. Baker, colonel under Mrs. Victor Brandt, general of the residence division, reported her organization complete yesterday with the following captains all on the job: Maurin Elrod, Mrs. Jerry Bronaugh, Mrs. R. Ireland, Mrs. B. Goodwin, W. Payne, S. H. Sheldon, E. C. Griffin, Jack Howell, Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. E. V. Littlefield, Mrs. Jack Crossley, Mrs. George Beggs, Miss Elvise Huggins, Miss Gretchen Colton, Miss Marcile Carlock, Miss Mary Alta Kelly, Miss Arlane Cameron.

Commercial artists who have been sketching for the chest cause will appear in the following business places today from 12:30 to 1 o'clock: Powers Furniture company, Bush & Lane Piano company, Sieberling-Lucas company, Stewart Manufacturing company, Cassidy Tire company, Remick's Song shop, Frederick Post company.

General Sammons' instruction to his captains are indicative of the campaign attitude, and may well be here repeated—with the annotation that what is expected of the captains is expected of those who are visited by them and their recruits:

"The success of the Community Chest rests on you.

"The Flying Squadron work is going well, but the only thing that will take us over the top is—

"Good subscriptions from a very large number of people.

"That is your job. See everybody. Sell them the 'give-by-the-month' idea."

Shoplifters Escape Jail.

Mrytle Russie and Maxine Muller were sentenced to 30 days in the county jail yesterday by District Judge Deich on charges of shoplifting, but sentence was suspended. The young women were alleged to have taken articles of jewelry from th Meier & Frank store. A second charge alleged that they had taken silk waists and blouses from the Lipman, Wolfe & Co. store. This case was continued for possible sentence. The girls pleaded guilty to both charges.

A Glance at Ironing Day—as some women know it

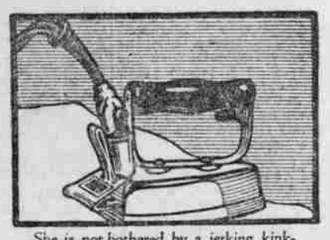
You undoubtedly know at least one woman in whose home there seems to be no fear of how big the week's ironing will be.

Her linens always spotlessly fresh. The children always in clean clothes. Her own personal things crisp.

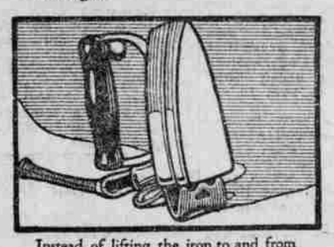
You would probably think her a "slave to the ironing board" if you did not know that the evening of ironing day finds her as untired as any other day in the week.

Perhaps a glance at the sketches below will give you an inkling of her secret.

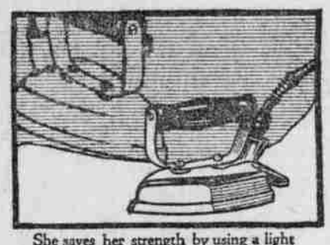
With her Hotpoint Iron—because it has the strength-saving Cantilever Handle—she applies the force in a straight line through the arm and wrist. A day's ironing is done more quickly and without fatigue.



She is not bothered by a jerking, kinking cord. The Hinged Plug Cord Protector has done away with that. It prevents breaking of the cord, too.



Instead of lifting the iron to and from the old-fashioned ironing stand, she simply tilts it back on its heel. The Attached Stand saves many hundreds of pounds lifting in a day.



She saves her strength by using a light iron for doing up the dainty bits—the three pound Iron that came with her Hotpoint Boudoir Set.
