

$1,250,000 DRIVE OPENS IN PORTLAND

Willamette University Campaigners Get Busy.

CANVASS IS STARTED

Donations Are Sought Among Members of Centenary-Wilbur Congregation.

Opening an intensive campaign for a $1,250,000 endowment fund for Willamette university, located at Salem, two-man teams under the leadership of Rev. Charles W. MacCaughy, pastor of Centenary-Wilbur Methodist church, yesterday afternoon began a canvass of the Centenary-Wilbur congregation. The teams were formed and the drive launched following an enthusiastic meeting of the Methodist Episcopal association at the Seward hotel at noon.

One hundred members of the First Methodist Episcopal church and officials of the drive met last night for a banquet in the parlors of the First church. Dr. B. Earle Parker, pastor, was chairman of ceremonies and speakers included Dr. W. W. Youngson, district superintendent; H. A. Booth, E. S. Collins and J. W. Day, trustees of the university; A. F. Fliegel, Dr. Carl Gregg Doney, president of the university; Bishop W. O. Shepard, J. Andrew Arnett and J. K. Gill.

Opening Wedge Is Driven. Although no pledges were taken at last night's meeting, the affair was considered a success. Meetings will be held in all Portland churches between now and the close of the drive, December 15. Shepard and Dr. Youngson will attend each meeting, which are to be known as "Thanksgiving home-comings."

"We must win this campaign or end Willamette," declared Mr. Booth in his address. "And when we contribute toward Willamette we are supporting the greatest education in the world." Mr. Collins urged each person present to add a contribution to the support of the school.

"Willamette university sponsors the perpetuation of high ideals in our descendants," said Mr. Day. "No citizen can feel he is discharging his duty to society without getting behind something like this." Mr. Fliegel stressed the point that most of the people interested in Willamette and Christian education are those who did not have the advantage of a college education.

"We must realize that the foundation of our whole civilization is Christianity," he said. Dr. Doney made a stirring address in which he told of the interest manifested in the drive by students of Willamette. They have pledged $23,000 already, he said, and will increase the amount. Members of the faculty have to date pledged $13,500 and will raise it to $15,000, he stated. "Students at Willamette are keen spirited, young fellows and girls who know what Christianity is and value it," he declared. "This university is a worthy monument to Christian education, and the outstanding purpose of assisting in the accumulation of strength and of teaching the ability to discipline. L. Willamette is turning out men and women who are succeeding. The school compares well with the best and I dare to believe that it is better than the best."

Bishop Shepard, comparing Willamette university with state schools said: "I have no word of criticism for state schools, but there is a precious family feeling about this school of ours that cannot be about a school supported by taxes. We are responsible for lifting that school up to make it a first-class school. We have no right to ask our boys and girls to attend there. It ought to be equal to any school and we can make it so."

Enthusiasm Is Aroused. Considerable enthusiasm was aroused among the ministers at the association luncheon by Dr. Arnett of the Methodist Episcopal church board of education, who will have general charge of the campaign. Bishop Shepard, by their explanations of the necessity of the drive and the benefits which will accrue to the cause of Christian education through endowment of the university.

The slogan, "God's men, seeking God's resources, for the furtherance of God's work," was given the campaign workers by Dr. Arnett in impressing on them the fact that the drive is an exceptionally worthwhile movement.

It was agreed that smaller subscriptions will be sought first, and in this connection Bishop Shepard urged that younger members of the church be solicited because their contributions would arouse in them a desire for higher education.

Through the children you can also arouse the interest of the parents," the bishop said. "For remember, 'A little child shall lead them.'"

Bishop Shepard emphasized the fact that no aid can be expected from wealthy friends of the church outside the state because of pressure of local causes.

Dr. O. B. Chassel of Philadelphia, Pa., a member of the board of education for the last five years, arrived yesterday morning to assist in the conduct of the campaign in the Portland district.

The teams under Rev. MacCaughy will continue their work in the Centenary-Wilbur district today. The other churches connected with Centenary-Wilbur are Bennett chapel, Rev. S. A. Yeoman, pastor; Montecito, Rev. R. E. Meyer, pastor; Mount Tabor, Rev. D. L. Fields, pastor; Rose City Park, Rev. C. W. Huest, pastor; Woodstock, Rev. Walton Skipworth, pastor.

Get-Together Dinner Held. A duck dinner arranged as a get-together for the sales, shop and service forces of the local Ford Motor Automobile company was given last night at the Benson hotel. Honor guests were W. H. Goodwin, manager of the local Ford Motor company branch, and L. D. Jordan, his assistant.

sentences for violators of the prohibition law on first offense, Ed Newton of Baker would go to jail.

Federal Judge Bean made this plain to Newton yesterday when he fined him $500 after conviction on a charge of transporting liquor. The $500 fine is the maximum penalty provided by the law for first offenders.

"You can thank the framers of the federal prohibition statute for escaping a jail sentence, for I would send you to jail if the law permitted me to do so," Judge Bean told Newton. The plea of Newton's attorney for 10 days' time in which to raise the money to pay the fine was granted.

Thompson, at Orphenm, Says Manipulation of Fingers Would Revitalize Children.

"The list of folk who write to Daisy Fairfax to heal broken hearts is not nearly so long as the list of folk who are crying for help."

Thompson, at Orphenm, at the Orphenm.

In mending broken health," says Thompson, who is proving as near a demigod as a healer in polite vancouver can be at the Orphenm. "I find that the public wants to pay dearly for its medicine. I bring you a message of help free, and for the helping to apply a few simple, self-help rules and obey a few laws, and let I am laughed at, and do not believe me. If I sat behind a polished desk in an office and charged outrageous fees for the same information, the public would clamor at my doors for admittance."

Doctor Thompson says there would be no dilators or stupid children if their mothers would manipulate the tips of the child's fingers every day for five minutes.

"It is the easiest, simplest thing to do—just a gentle rotary movement, working each first joint on both hands, the whole process to take five minutes each day, and, astonishingly, I have seen dull pupils make up an entire grade after six weeks' treatment such as I describe."

Doctor Thompson's stay at the Orphenm ends tonight. Part of his act consists in treating sufferers from pain, free of charge, on the stage at each performance.

SISTERS ESCAPE PRISON

SACRAMENTO GIRLS WIND UP WILD CAREER IN JAIL.

Thefts Following Trip to Alaska Bring Mother to Rescue and Court Paroles Daughters.

In municipal court yesterday Nini and Cheri Kroepelin were sentenced to two years each in a reform school but paroled to their mother, Mrs. L. T. Kroepelin of Sacramento, Cal., by Municipal Judge Ekwall. They had been charged with thefts from two Portland homes where the girls were domestics.

It was in response to the girls' pleas for a widening of their fields of experience that the mother sent them to Berkeley, where Cheri procured a place in a theater as organist and Nini enrolled in an exclusive school for young women. Perhaps, too, Mrs. Kroepelin wished Nini to forget the movie director with whom she had run away at 18, only to have the marriage annulled.

Later the two set out without their mother's knowledge for Alaska, with $50 between them and a heavy intention of visiting an uncle in Nome. Cheri is 22 and Nini 21. But Nome was an utter failure and the uncle had left for New York. So back came the pair, their funds low.

Seattle was "dead" and they came to Portland. In the woman's detention room at the police station Nini told how the two secured jobs in Portland homes, Nini at the Sam Ogden residence, 615 East Eighteenth street, North, and Cheri at the home of William F. Clark, 389 East Fifty-third street North.

There was something very droll, Nini thought, about her last name and it was she who devised the picturesque "Marett Roma" for herself and "Cheri Emer" for her sister. Under these names they played as domestics in the daytime and visited strange places at night.

Following the girls' arrest on theft charges Nini declared that she alone was responsible for the thefts of clothing and jewels from the two homes. Police think Cheri was an accomplice.

Unabashed by their arrest, the girls giggled and said they liked it. Later, when Nini was taken to the jail, she faced a term in the penitentiary, she called her mother to her aid. The mother came and Judge Ekwall paroled the two to her and they left last night for home.

5 ORDERED OUT OF CITY

Men and Women Get Suspended Sentences for Vagrancy.

Five folk with little or no visible means of support are to leave Portland in a body some time before Thursday morning, on orders from Municipal Judge Ekwall.

Jail records, suspicious actions and doubtful associations led to the arrest Saturday in a lodging house at Seventeenth and Everett streets of Herbert Oekirk, Myrtle Clark, Frank Boisseau, Frank Conley and Rita Crawford on vagrancy charges. Investigation by Inspectors Phillips and Tackberry failed to disclose the whereabouts of the five, who were given suspended jail sentences of six months yesterday and ordered to keep away from Portland.

In the yard back of the house where the arrests were made complete opium smoking outfits were discovered.

2 BURGLARS ATTACK MAN

Youthful Intruders Are Surprised at Work in House.

Two burglars of 14 attacked W. P. Mahoney, 321 Westover road, who surprised them at work in his house at about 9:30 last night. Both escaped.

When Mahoney entered the house one of the boys was in the kitchen and another in the living room. He asked the one in the kitchen what he was doing in the house, not knowing there were two, when the one addressed jumped into a window and endeavored to get through glass and screen. He fumbled a moment and as Mahoney went for him the other seized the householder by the back of the neck and threw him down.

LIQUOR VIOLATOR JOLTED

"We're No Pikers," Says Judge; $200 Fine Assessed.

Indication that municipal court fines for prohibition law violations will total higher levels was given yesterday when Judge Ekwall fined Gus Karamanous $200 on a charge of possessing four gallons of moonshine.

"I notice that Judge Bean fined a girl $250 for having four pints in her possession and just to show that we're no pikers down here I'll assess a fine of $200 in this case," was his comment.

Karamanous was arrested at Twenty-fourth and Comstock streets Saturday night in the act of making a delivery in an expensive car to a customer.

"You've lost your car, too, if the federal authorities had got hold of you," the judge told him.

Some of the boys put up $10 bail and others were freed on their own recognizance.

MADAME GADSKI HEARD

AUDIENCE AT AUDITORIUM IS ENTHUSIASTIC.

Singer Throws Self Into Operatic Programme With Verve—Wonderful Gown Is Worn.

Mme. Johanna Gadski, a star of Wagnerian opera, sang last night at the municipal auditorium to an enthusiastic audience. She was dressed in a wonderful gown of metal, with a heavy scarlet chiffon which in the bright light of the stage looked like molten glass cooling to silver, that glittered with every vigorous breath.

Her programme was characteristically operatic, and she threw herself into it with great verve. It included such dramatic numbers as "Elizabeth's Aria" from "Tannhauser," Schubert's "Erlkoenig," "On the Steppe" (Gretchaninov), "Schlammherd," Percy Kahn's "Ave Maria," "The Cuckoo Clock" (Schaefer), and "The Battle Cry of the Walkure" (Wagner).

Mme. Gadski shows much of her old-time fire in singing. Her voice is strong in its upper range, and her pianissimo was especially good, smooth and well under control. The transition from the lower range to her middle voice showed a mechanical worn slightly thin, breathy and difficult to carry to the high notes, but she retains her former brilliance and solidity. She was always a striking figure in her operatic roles, and this is still characteristic of her manner and style on the concert stage. In her last number, the Isolda aria, Mme. Gadski showed more force and dramatic power than any of the others. She received much applause and several huge bouquets.

Newsboy Takes Severe Cold

"How's Jimmie today? Tod says he has a terrible cold." "Oh, he has. I am so worried about him. But I guess the worst of it is over. You know he is delivering papers early in the morning these days and he took cold a few days ago. He wears an old raincoat, but it was cold and windy and he got cold and it made him sick."

"That's a shame. He ought to wear a good warm overcoat, as it is chilly early in the morning." "Yes, that's the trouble. I will have to get him an overcoat right away, I guess, but I don't really see how we can afford it. The children wear out their clothes so quick. Jimmie had a good overcoat last winter and he simply wore it out in only one season. It was in such bad shape that it wouldn't even do to hand down to his younger brother. It costs a fortune to keep those youngsters decently clad, but they must not take cold."

"Why don't you get him an overcoat at Cherry's at 349 Morrison street, second floor? You know they want one to buy on credit. Their boys' clothes wear so well and one doesn't notice the payments when they are stretched out that way. Drop in there Saturday evening."—Adv.
