

BERLIN PLANS WAR, SAYS CLEMENCEAU

Germany Is Preparing, Is View of Tiger.

LUDENDORFF IS ACCUSED

Other Militarists Also Declared Already Arranging Coup Against Democracy.

He asked what America had made war for and what she had gained. He said America had come to the last point where she was granted time to think. No sacrifice was demanded of her except the will to assist herself, as the people she had vanquished were unable to do anything just at the present moment.

Allegory Is Offered

Clemenceau began his address with an allegory in which he contrasted himself with a Buddhist monk who called his disciples together in an Indian village, a thousand years ago, to hear him preach. But instead of a human voice, the disciples heard only the golden voice of a beautiful bird, perched on a branch above the monk. That was the germ.

The "Tiger" expressed regret that he could not thus convey his message without speaking, saying, "In fact, you may have heard it. I came here on purpose for that."

First, he said, he wanted to say he was "more accurate in grinning faces than the smiling faces of ladies," and that on this night he was "rather—although it has not happened very often—rather timid." Then he expressed his gratitude "for the really wonderful welcome which I have met in this country, which is most marvelous, since only 57 years ago I came from the Imperial jails of Napoleon III, to find there was another way of living, and a much better way."

As an immigrant he brought to this country a fresh outlook, but he said he did not know "whether it had been appreciated," that he had never been assured as much. He had looked around in America and "learned what Europe hadn't taught me—to help myself."

Advice Sought By Tiger

"And now, like the pupil who comes from his teacher, who has gained experience, I come back, and it is very different," he continued. "I come back with changed ideas, and to express my thanks for the good practical education that I received."

He came, he said, "with the American spirit and ready to find fault in different ways." "I must confess that I did not find as many faults as I expected. And today, having been taught through independence, I am trying to find advice. I have no mission; I did not come with a mission from anybody." Clemenceau sat in his "pleasant little house by the sea" in his native country, and there, he said, "I heard that there had been bad words for France. I did not like that at all."

Personal Motive Is Denied

"At the same time, there came people and hard critics, one a very distinguished Englishman, and I said: 'Well, now if England misjudges France, and the Americans misjudge France, what are we going to do? I had better go and see what is the matter.'"

Thus, he said, he left France "without really knowing whether I was going to plead against you, or to defend you."

In a challenging rumble, "the tiger" then dared "anyone to tell me that I have a personal end in this trip to America, and that I pursue any design, political, personal or any kind." In fact, he asserted, he had been here long enough to know he was "not going to have much trouble in establishing a basis of common thought on a very important matter."

Great Deal Held In Common

America and France, he said, "have a great deal in common in some of the greatest events" seen in war. And he expressed particular pleasure in contrasting the "beauty of this, that there was a romance between France and America" that he did not know of two other people with such stretch of imagination; that together, they "had the good fortune to open a new era, not only in human thought, but to open the time when justice, hope, good will and righteousness would be realized on earth."

Clemenceau assured his audience he was not about to ask them for money, because they "have too much of it." He wanted something much more than that, much more valuable.

"I want yourself, your heart and soul," he explained. "I want that thing that we call in France 'the spirit'—that thing that cannot be weighed in human skins, a little thing, which is a kind of kin feeling of one human being toward another. That may exist and does exist between such nations as ours, and that is what I want of you."

Change In Heart Desired

He hoped, he said, to cause his hearers "to change their hearts" if they had been thinking ill of France, "as France's heart has been changed toward America."

He then summarized his thoughts—the thoughts he had been thinking since he went into solitude in France—about the war and its aftermath, "a great crisis, the greatest crisis in events, of which no one could foresee the end."

"Why should peace be so hard for us to live?" he asked.

"Why cannot we find common means for preserving peace?" He spoke of the arrival of American troops on French soil during the war, of the controversy between allied leaders and General Pershing about the distribution of American soldiers.

Pershing Quarrels Recalled

"I sometimes had quarrels with General Pershing, beautiful quarrels," he related. But since then he had come to think he (Pershing) was right, "and so was I."

Of the period before the war, and his demands for preparation against German invasion and threats of invasion, Clemenceau said:

"You may call me militaristic. You may call me imperialistic. But, I do not accept the reproach. It was when he 'was promulgating

EDITOR'S SON BOOSTED

Ward Irvine Expected to Be Secretary to Governor.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Reports received here today from eastern Oregon indicate that Ward Irvine, son of B. F. Irvine, editor of the Oregon Journal, may be selected as private secretary to Walter M. Pierce, governor-elect.

Mr. Irvine is a newspaper man, and until two years ago was employed by a Portland newspaper. He then went to New York, where he was engaged in magazine work until a few weeks ago. He is now in Portland and is again connected with the newspaper of which his father is editor.

RAIL DIVORCE CASE IS UP

owned by one of the two companies and the lines leading into the terminals are owned by the other in many places, he said. Where lines paralleled each other in a general way there had been a tendency to let the Southern Pacific build the feeders while the Central Pacific owned the trunk line which carried the bulk of the traffic.

Employee Work as Unit

Separation now would force a considerable amount of new railroad construction, Mr. Burckhalter said, as each company would endeavor to fit itself for independent operation, while in many other places there would be a surplus transportation capacity left idle.

A further difficulty, he added, would be the necessity for breaking up the operating organization of the employees. The five divisions of the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific on the Pacific coast are operated jointly, he said, and about 23,000 employees would have to be divided up between two separate company organizations. He asserted that many would be forced to move from their present living places.

Good News for Gift Buyers

In order to speed up the selling of the Quarter Million Dollar Stock of Jewelry, the F. Friedlander Company decided last night to bill all jewelry purchased in November as of January 1st, nineteen twenty-three. In an advertisement which appeared on Sunday, it was stated that "All sales were Cash." This was an error on the part of a too enthusiastic "ad man." The F. Friedlander Company does not expect all sales to be for cash. On the contrary, it is willing to open "Charge Accounts" for all who may desire the convenience, and who are, of course, responsible. This new "charge" policy, coupled with the sale prices now in effect, is expected to have a marked effect on the volume of business. Portland people can now buy at sale prices and take a reasonable time to pay.—Adv.

STAND OF AMERICA GIVEN AT LAUSANNE

Brief Part Played in Near East Peace Parley.

RIGHTS TO BE GUARDED

Position of Official Observers at Conference Set Forth in Formal Declaration.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The United States played a brief part in the near eastern peace conference today, Richard Washburn Child, American Ambassador to Italy making a declaration before the assembled delegates of the position of the official observers representing America.

American participation in the conference will consist of joining in the discussions and safeguarding as far as possible rights which the United States feels must be protected in the interest of America and the rest of the world. The American observers will not vote or act as members of any of the commissions.

Two sessions of the conference were held today. At the first, the organization of three commissions was arranged, the first on political and military matters, with an English chairman; the second, on economic, financial and public health with a French chairman, and the third, on capitulations, minority populations and similar questions, under an Italian chairman.

Discussion Is General

The afternoon session was devoted largely to a general discussion. America's participation in the Lausanne conference was hailed with gratification by the Italian government and people. Premier Mussolini told the Associated Press, "American interest in Europe is necessary to the peace of the world."

He said, "and I believe this inauguration of the United States activity in the near eastern conference is a precursor to still further and larger participation."

Asked concerning the relations between the new Italian government and the Vatican, Mussolini answered:

"I am religious. I think religion is the great fundamental moral force in the life of the people and I am hostile to anything that is hostile to the religious or anti-religious."

Catholicism World Power

"Catholicism is a wonderful world power and on that account the relations between the fascist government and the Vatican will be very cordial."

He favored the negotiation of complete commercial treaties between all the powers as a fundamental necessity for real world construction so that all the nations might find economic relief.

Of the Soviet, he said: "We can't ignore Russia, because it exists."

He concluded with the statement that he wanted America to realize that the fascist government was strong and solid.

CORDIALITY SHOWN VATICAN

Rumors Are Heard Regarding Appointment of Cardinals

ROME, Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The cordial attitude of Benito Mussolini, the fascist premier of Italy, toward the Vatican has been shown recently in his speeches, including that delivered when presenting his cabinet to parliament.

This fact has caused rumors to circulate that Mussolini may propose to King Victor Emmanuel that the monarch appoint two cardinals as senators of the kingdom, namely, Cardinal Maffei, the learned archbishop of Fiume, who was one of the foremost candidates for the papal crown last January, and is a personal friend of the reigning family, and Cardinal Endric, prince bishop of Trent, who, when Trent was under Austrian rule, suffered because of his patriotism.

According to canon law, ecclesiastical appointments without the authorization of the ecclesiastical authority, which in this case of a cardinal would be the pope himself. During the past 52 years, or since the fall of the temporal power of the pope, no ecclesiastical appointments have been made in Italy.

The last appointment of a cardinal to the upper chamber was in 1866. The cardinal archbishop of Turin, who was a senator in 1870, never resigned his seat, but after the pope was deprived of territorial sovereignty over Rome the cardinal never re-entered the upper chamber.

Should Mussolini succeed in having two cardinals appointed to the senate it is felt here that this would be the final step toward official reconciliation between church and state in Italy, which practically already exists.
