Wives are going out to work because their husbands are unable to earn enough to support the family. They fill up their homes with roomers and boarders in order to help swell the income. It's all wrong—all wrong. It's especially bad for the children. They are neglected from necessity. Now, these people are not living in this manner as a matter of choice Give them a decent income and they will live decently—will be glad to do so. What they need is the opportunity to do better, and someone to take a little personal interest in them—some one who will show that he has faith in them."

go along and save the interest on the bill, to say nothing of being human in our industrial relations. For this reason we have arranged to distribute a fair portion of the profits of the company in such a way that the bulk of them will go to the man who needs them most. "But some people are saying," I suggested, "that this sudden increase in par, amounting in thousands of instances to the doubling of a man's income, is going to ruin more men than it will make. Unaccutstoned to so much money many a man will waste it—spend it in foolish and harmful ways."

"We are not afraid of that," he replied. "in the first place we have been saying, and the planning to the company in the planning to the control of the saying."

TRAFFIC PLAN UF

The proposed one-way traffic plan found a strong champion in J. A. Crittenden, an automobile dealer. He declared that additional street-car tracks, as proposed, would not hinder the movement of traffic, for it was the number of street cars operated on a given street that was the factor and not the tracks.

"One-way traffic could not be successful without one-way traffic for street cars," he declared. "The one-way traffic plan would be a big one-way traffic plan would be a big aid to the pedestrians, as they would have only two lines of traffic to watch instead of four, as is the case under present arrangements.

under present arrangements."

The proposed plan was also supported by William A. Carter, representing both himself and the Portland lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. Mr. Carter admitted that the plan would bring a street-car line by the Moose building and from that standpoint there was a bit of selfishness in his argument, but aside from that the organization which he represented had indersed the plan because of the belief that it would bring order out of chaos.

Car Loops Opposed.

P. O. Collier, who said he had "railroaded" all his life, suggested that street cars from the east side be operated over west side lines that now have independent lines, and thus eliminating the looping of the state of the cart side care.

and thus eliminating the looping of east side cars in the center of the congested district.

The meeting yesterday came to a close with another protest on behalf of property owners on Third, Second, Morrison, Alder and other streets by John F. Logan. This speaker made no secret of the fact that he was representing property owners and declared that everyone who appeared before the council had selfish motives.

"They may be sincere, but they are selfish too," he said.

Mr. Logan declared that it would be wiser to leave well enough alone unless some real benefits would accrue from the adoption of the proposed plan.

Delay is Proposed.

Delay Is Proposed.

"A little pause new and then is good for the people in this day and age," he said. "We are going too fast. And while it is true in the consideration of this matter, property values should not be the exclusive consideration, nevertheless they are entitled to some consideration, especially if the proposed plan."
