Protest Is Voiced Against Unsanitary Condition on Stands Conducted by Aliens.

When D. C. Lewis, legislatorelset, intimated that City Commisstoner Bigelow might pick a large red apple from a heap on one of the fruit stands in the public market and saunter on his way through the market eating it, he brought the commissioner out of his chair. "Im not going to say that my friend, Commissioner Bigelow, picked off one of these apples and ate it," declared Mr. Lewis. "You never did, you big stiff," shouted Mr. Bigelow, "and if you attempt to insinuate that I did I'll throw you out of the window." And as if to carry out his threat Comstoner Bigelow might pick a large

Mayor Demands Order.

Mayor Baker pounded for order, demanded that the two men calm themselves, after which Mr. Lewis declared the whole alfair was a joke. The argument arose when a con-mittee composed of Mr. Lewis, M. F. Wright and Mrs. E. W. Kimbail appeared before the council as rep-resentatives of the Fraternal Fed-eration of Oregon to protest against unsanitary conditions on stands conducted by alieng in the public market.

conducted by aliena in the public market. After Commissioner Bigelow's feelings had been ubdued some-what, Mayor Baker took a fling at Mr. Lewis by saying that if the organization represented really wanted to accomplish something a "sane committee should be ap-pointed" instead of permitting poli-ticians to come before the council simply to make a grandstand play. simply to make a grandstand play. persons have been struck when

Co-Operation Is Promised.

Mayor Baker informed the comautos violating traffic ordinances and if the committee desired to gain relief from this situation, the legislature was the proper body to grant it.

"We have no power to discriminale against any one." the mayor said, "but we are willing to co-op-crate in this movement. I stand for the Americans first, last and all of the time, and will do anything to favor them, but we must follow the law in all of these cases."

for the year 1923 have taken a seri-ous jump, according to estimates of the forestry d-partment in this city. Although the complete annual re-port is not available, since the fire season in these states for the year is not yet ended, the proportional figures show that 58 per ceni of the fires thus far recorded in Oregon were this year caused by human agency, while 76 per cent in Washagency, while is per cent in wash-ington were likewise man-caused. Twenty-one per cent in Oregon and 31 per cent in Washington were due to chimpers and smokers alone. Chief Forester Greeley's annual report for the year 1921 issued now for the first time, shows that nearly 5000 forest first were started on 5000 forest fires were started on national forests during that year, one-third of which were attribut-able to the carelessness of campers.

One-fourth were caused by light-ning; and brush burners, lumber-men, meendiaries and railroads were held responsible for the bulk of the emaining fires. More than 375,000 acres of national forest land was burned over, with a total damage of more than $200,000. The cost to the nation for fighting these fires amounted to $532,811
