Hungriest family in America

Every mother says it. Black mothers mean it. Blacks spent over $4 billion on food last year, in America. And Portland Observer Black readers spend more on food than whites with comparable incomes. Because they eat at home more often. Black mothers try the brands of food they see in the Black news media. They respond because they feel more involved with the Portland Observer. If they put their faith in the Black news media, maybe you ought to put your food advertising there. Portland Observer Where millions of black and white consumers do their shopping.
