Force Behind Unthank Park

The driving force behind Unthank Park Center is Ron Grandberry, who has been director at Unthank Park for two and one-half years. He attended Clark College in Vancouver, Washington and has been working with the youth of Albina for a number of years.

Ron is looking to the parents and adults to become more involved to help make a better park and know what is happening--what is going on in their park.

We will have a great spring and summer program with the youth involved in the park, providing them with useful activities. With the Adult community taking a more active part in their children and young people's lives, there is no reason why we can't have a Super-successful summer.

With Ron being an influential Board member of "Albina Citizens Together" and Youth Chairman of that organization's committee, he has an inside track on what the youth of the community want and are asking for.

in their heads, not ON them."

She complimented the Lincoln High School group, called the Young, Balck and Gifted, on the musical numbers they presented beginning with their first selection, James Weldon Johnson's "Lift Every Voice and Sing."

Miss Simmons might be characterized as being the fiery orator type of speaker, inspiring people to action, and her humor brought down the house several times. She concluded with several stories, one of them about the woman who told a black woman "Now I think I understand what you want - you want a piece of the pie." The black woman answered, "Last year we would have been satisfied with a piece of the pie - but this year we want the recipe."

Miss Simmons arrived in Portland from New York City on Friday afternoon for a press conference at the airport, and spent several hours with the Portland Branch Board at the NAACP headquarters office on Friday evening. She visited with Reverend and Mrs. O.B. Williams. "I've known him as long as I've known myself, we grew up together," she said. She left Portland immediately after the mass meeting with Portland Branch President Ellis Casson driving her to catch her plane. (Yes, due to his expert driving, she made the plane!)
