

MMI John Brown and the "New Navy" team pose with "Commodore," the Navy goat, held by RDI Tom Farrar. The "New Navy" Little League Team is sponsored by the local Navy unit.

It's Your Navy Schools provide summer meals

"Last week at the Little League game in Irving Park I saw two sailors with some kind of animal, what was it?" Billy C. wants to know what machinist mate first class John Brown and Radarman 1st class Tom Farrar had with them at the "New Navy" team's game Saturday, May 20. Billy, that is "Commodore", the Navy goat. He was with John Brown and Tom Farrar at the baseball game to help cheer the team. John and Tom are Navy Recruiters at the downtown office at 321 S. W. Salmon Street. When they found out that there was a team without a sponsor, they took up a collection so that the Navy could sponsor the team. "Commodore" has become the team's mascot and attends the games every chance he gets.

Thousands of Portland's disadvantaged youngsters won't go hungry this summer, thanks to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and School District No. 1.

Free breakfasts, lunches, and snacks will be served in scores of centers run by the City of Portland, Portland Action Committee Together (PACT), churches and the school district.

Some 80 per cent of the $273,000 cost will be paid by USDA, the remainder by the school district in the form of personnel and facilities.

School district personnel, including seven cafeteria workers and two part-time truck drivers, will be preparing and delivering the food from Washington High School.

Costing about 75 cents per child, the daily menu includes fruit, cold cereal and milk for breakfast; fruit, sandwich, vegetable and milk for lunch; and juice, cookies or sandwich for snack.

Edith Elonka, assistant coordinator of food services for the school district, said some 1,000 youngsters presently are being served with a peak of 3,300 expected before the program ends in late August.

Mrs. Elonka directed a similar program last summer. Only children enrolled in planned and supervised programs are eligible to receive the food. Some programs may last only three to four weeks while others may run the entire summer, depending on plans of the sponsoring body.

The eligible children, from preschoolers to age 21, reside in areas having high percentages of need.

Young man in a hurry

By Nan Phillips

Ask a question of Mr. Harvey Rice, and you will get a straight answer, based on facts, experience, logic - and knowledge acquired by a man who has "been there".

Mr. Rice is at present Acting Director of the Education Center of Portland State University, located in the Model Cities neighborhood at 2611 N. E. Union Avenue. The Center Director, Harold Williams, is at the University of Zagreb in Yugoslavia, completing work on his Master's degree. He will return in mid-June, when Mr. Rice will resume his regular assignment as Assistant Director at the Center.

A number of men and women of all ages credit Mr. Rice with setting them straight on the path toward education. Some had dropped out of school at an early age because of bad experiences in the educational system. A number of adults who are sensitive about poor skills in reading and writing, and thus are poorly equipped to function in our complex society, find that they do not have to fear embarrassment because they can take classes with others in the same boat, and each person can learn at his or her own pace.

Mr. Rice is always glad to talk with prospective students, to discuss what education can do to help them be more successful in life. His background and experience enable him to make suggestions to help them get started in the right direction working toward a definite educational goal. Once they enroll in a class and find out they don't "stick out like a sore thumb", they get excited about possibilities of getting a college education, and they're on their way.

Now in his early thirties, Harvey Rice has a broad background of learning. Born in Texas, he began high school in Kansas City, Kansas, and graduated from Benson High School in Portland. He served as a jet aircraft single engine mechanic in the Air Force from 1956-58 and from that time on has attended school and carried full-time jobs as well.

He attended Electronic Computer Programming Institute, Pacific Academy of Accountancy, Business Training Institute in Washington, D.C., Portland Real Estate School, acquired an Associate degree in Applied Science from Portland Community College, received his Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from Portland State University in December, 1971, and will receive his Master of Science in Teaching degree and his Urban Studies Certificate in August, 1972. He plans eventually to work toward a Ph.D.

Mr. Rice is well known and respected in Model Cities and the downtown business sectors, and in community agencies. His employment background includes Associate Director for General Business Systems, Assistant Manager LSK Corporation, Life and Health Insurance Agent for Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company, bookkeeper for the Model Cities main office, and accountant for the Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee.

Mr. Harvey Rice, Acting Director of the Portland State University Education Center, doesn't waste time talking about getting an education. While holding full-time jobs he has studied accounting, real estate, business, Applied Science, received his Bachelors degree and is working toward his Masters degree at PSU. He arranges classes and encourages people to enroll for college credit at the Center.

His knowledge and experience in business practices will be used in teaching a course in Small Business Management to be offered at the Education Center this summer on Thursday evenings from 6:45-9:00 p.m. beginning June 22nd.

"The central purpose of this class is to assist small businesses located in the Model Cities area to develop for themselves a viable theory of business management," is the way Mr. Rice describes the course, which is open to any interested individual. Registration for all summer courses start the week of June 12th.

Along with his academic work and his full-time employment, Mr. Rice takes time to be active in the community. At present he is serving on the International Relations committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and is chairman of hosting foreign visitors to Portland. Recently he was in charge of a visitor from Africa who was interested in seeing the Lewis and Clark College and Portland State University campuses, and the following week he escorted a man from Cyprus, a guest of the State Department, on a tour of Freightliner Corporation and the Mayor's office, where the visitor was introduced to the Governor who was there talking with mayor-elect Neil Goldschmidt. Within the next weeks, Mr. Rice will work with the World Affairs Council in hosting a group of teachers from England.

Mr. Rice is also a member of the City Club; past member of the Union Avenue Boosters Club, serving as chairman of the Employment Committee; past member of the Model Cities Economic Development working committee, and chairman of the Business Development Subcommittee of Model Cities. He served on the Mayor's Economic Development Task Force which resulted in formation of Media Company, which provides financial and technical assistance to minority businesses located in the Model Cities area.

At Portland State University, Mr. Rice is a member of the Important University Budget Committee and was recently a member of the Search Committee which was instrumental in securing the new Director of Black Studies who comes on faculty in the early fall of 1972. Mr. Rice was also elected as an alternate to the PSU Faculty Senate in the fall of 1971.

Knowing his background, don't tell Mr. Harvey Rice that "something can't be done". He won't hear you; he'll be too busy showing you how you can do it.

"Takes work and a plan," he says. "You have to establish priorities."

To prospective students, he suggests that they sit down and talk with him, set their goals, and then get going.

PCC registers

Registration for summer term classes at all Portland Community College centers will begin Monday, June 19, for those students who have pre-registered. Open registration begins at 3 p.m., June 19, and continues through Friday, June 23.

Special "Short Summer Sessions" are being offered for the first time at Portland Community College, Cascade, 705 N. Killingsworth, Portland. The four-week sessions in anthropology, biology, business administration, economics, history, literature, mathematics, philosophy, political science, psychology, reading and writing, secretarial science, sociology, and speech carry credit for a full-term work. New sessions begin June 20, July 17, and August 14. Interested students should register on these dates at Cascade Hall.

For more information and a schedule of summer term offerings, call 244-6111.

Benefit concert set

The Weiskopf Heart Concert will take place at the end of the Rose Festival week on June 11, at 8:30 p.m. in the Civic Auditorium, with many stars of the entertainment field flying into Portland to donate their time and talent for the benefit of the Oregon Heart Association.

Tenor Giuseppe Campora from La Scala, Milan, will fly directly from Italy, and Metropolitan Opera baritone Frank Guarrera and mezzo-soprano Joann Grillo, from New York. Cellist Leo Kosciely, from Baden Baden, Germany, and violinists Gloria Chappell and Antony Zungolo from Hollywood will be instrumentalists playing, with guitarist John Bunce from Portland. Soprano Athena Lampropoulos of New York City Center will join all the soloists and chorus in the finale from Act II of Aida, along with tenor R.G. Webb from Salem, and basses Leon Lishner and Archie Drake from Seattle. Portland soprano Gloria Cutsforth will also be a featured soloist.

The conductor for the event will be James Guthrie from Hollywood, where he is regularly with the Hollywood Bowl and Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestras. The proceeds from the benefit will establish a research fund in the late Maestro Herbert Weiskopf's name.

Tickets are on sale at the box office of the Civic Auditorium, Meier & Frank downtown, Stevens & Son in the Lloyd Center, and by mail order at the Oregon Heart Association, 1500 S.W. 12th Avenue. Prices are $7.50, $6.00, and $4.00.

Rose Festival peace picnic set

The American people have spoken out many times against the war in Southeast Asia, yet in spite of this President Nixon has escalated the war to a recklessly dangerous level. The mining of harbors and the increased bombing of the North endangers not only the people of Vietnam, but also threatens to involve the Soviet Union and China. The American people must again speak out against the war. For this reason, the Student Mobilization Committee is sponsoring a Picnic for Peace in the south park blocks from noon until 9 p.m. on Saturday, June 10th - the day of the Grand Floral Parade. All Portlanders and visitors to Portland are invited to attend this picnic so that they may express their desire for peace and for an end to the immoral and illegal war in Southeast Asia, in a peaceful and legal fashion during the Rose Festival.

Food, live entertainment and information booths will be available at the picnic. Those people who are interested in helping should call 226-3104.

JOIN NURSING TEAM

There are excellent educational opportunities available to young men and women who would like to join the Army's nursing team. Whether you are a high school senior or recent graduate planning on a nursing career, a student nurse going for a B.S. or M.S. degree in nursing, or a registered nurse studying to be a nurse anesthetist, the Army has a scholarship program available to you. For further information, contact the local nurse counselor at your

JEEP-MOUNTED BAND

The distinction of having the world's only jeep-mounted band belongs to the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Texas. Since its inception in 1955, the band has played at the Mardi Gras in New Orleans, in Mexico and at numerous events in Texas. Specially trained drivers can maneuver the 20 band jeeps into tight formations that often require the vehicles to be less than six inches apart. The jeeps travel at an average speed of from six to eight miles an hour.

As versatile as any marching band, the mounted band can form a letter "T" for Texas, or an "A" for Army or America.

FACTS ABOUT THE ARMY

Did you know--

- That the average age of those in the Army is less than 23 years? We're a mighty young outfit!
- That Army night-vision devices have been loaned to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries for use to locate and identify fish in open-sea areas? The night-vision devices have already been used to study the nocturnal habits of vampire bats and coconut crabs.

QUESTION

What are the age requirements for enlistment in the Army?

Men must be between the ages of 17 and 35. Women must be at least 18 years old and not over 35.
