Norwegians today, clothed in the heritage of their globe-girdling ancestors' contribution to the Western world, still carve an adventurous life-style out of their country. Their land and life-style will be shown on March 20th when John Roberts in person, presents the Global Adventure's film, "Norway, the Modern Vikings", at 8:00 in the Auditorium.

Portland Community College and the Portland Park Bureau have initiated a community garden in southeast Portland. Last year over 30 plots were developed in the gardening program by people in the community. Anyone interested in free land, growing flowers and vegetables, and working to improve the community is invited to participate in a planning session on March 17 at PCC.

"Our Valley - My Land" will be shown on KATU on March 24th at 7:30 p.m. The 30 minute special examines the philosophy of private property ownership as it applies to the Willamette Valley of Oregon and the Santa Clara Valley of California. Both valleys began with an agrarian base. Now industry, freeways and urban sprawl have choked agriculture and open space out of the Santa Clara Valley. The Willamette is already past the genesis of a similar fate.
