Oscar Kelley, meter reader for Pacific Power & Light Company in Portland, was recently promoted to a position as groundman at Pacific's Astoria operation. Kelly has worked for PP&L one year, initially serving as a mail clerk and more recently as a meter reader. He and his wife, Sandy, will reside in Astoria.

NAACP holds dinner

The Vancouver Branch of the NAACP's annual Chicken Dinner will be held at the Vancouver PUD Sunday, August 12, from 12:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The menu will include: chicken, potatoes, rolls and butter, string beans, dessert and coffee or tea. The price will be $2.00 for adults and $1.75 for children 12 and under. The public is cordially invited.

Bar-b-Que

On Saturday, August 4, 1973, the members of Mina Temple #68 A.E.A.O.N.M.S. (PHA) held a Bar-b-Que cookout at the home of Ill. Potentate Henri Johns, to which the general public was invited, as well as the members. This is one of the Promotional activities that will take place during the up and coming season under the directorship of Noble John T. Blow Jr.

Neighbors remove furniture from house in the path of fire that destroyed a pool hall and two garages and damaged the house and Harris Automotive.

Classes open

Registration is still open in nine special programs beginning August 12 in Portland State University's Summer Session.

Learning about the United Nations, a special program taught by Dr. Helen Edmonds, will present a general survey of the working of the United Nations with special emphasis on its political, educational and historical activities.

Dr. Edmonds is a former alternate delegate to the United Nations General Assembly and is called upon as a resource person by the U.S. State Department. Presently, Dr. Edmonds is a Distinguished Professor of History at North Carolina Central University in Durham.

The two-week program offers three hours of either undergraduate or graduate credit in history, education or political science.

Registration in all of the special programs is open up to and including the day the class begins in the Summer Session Office, 614 SW Montgomery. In most cases there are no age or admission requirements to attend PSU's Summer Session.

PCC

(Continued from pg. 1, col. 2) will have three thrusts: to augment services currently offered in the veterans' offices, to increase the number of G.E.D. classes for veterans at PCC's Cascade center and in Hillsboro, and to do "outreach" by placing staff (counselors, recruiters, and legal consultants) with the established veterans' agency, Project Return. Project Return has been offering services to veterans in the Portland area for two years and is sponsored by city-county funding.

Currently, all 67 Portland Community College career programs are approved by the Veterans Administration for veterans' benefits.

Homeowners

(Continued from pg. 1, col. 9) not give him the grant because he has insufficient income and that he could not see how he bought the house. He would not put the grant refusal in writing.

Mr. Gant wonders why the house that he purchased as rehabilitated does not pass city code.

The city code violations are: 1) light fixtures lack control switches; 2) no hand-rail on stair to finished attic; 3) not specified height in finished attic; 4) two supports in the cellar are inadequate; 5) cellar stairway does not have enough clearance and handrails are not proper; 6) roofing and sheathing on the garage is not adequate.

Violations of the K-V-S Neighborhood Development Program include: 1) windows needed for ventilation lack ease of operation; 2) kitchen sink is worn and chipped; 3) roof excessively worn; 4) garage is blighted; and 5) the kitchen floor in the exterior area is worn.

Gant reported that when he asked the HUD office about the code violations, George Duke told him HUD can do only a limited amount of work.

Vern Smith told the Observer that he is not at liberty to discuss the reason for Mr. Gant's denial since it is privileged information that has to do with his personal situation. He also said that he could not put the denial in writing to Mr. Gant because putting anything in writing would place him in a position of possible libel. He said an applicant is not entitled to a written statement of denial, but that he had explained the matter to Mr. Gant.

Persons who are dissatisfied with the work done through the federal housing projects are invited to contact the Portland Observer at 283-2486.

Notice

A "Back-to-School" sale is being sponsored by Y's Buys, the YWCA thrift shop. Quality children's clothing will be sold at a modest cost on Thursday, August 9, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 1127 S.W. Morrison.

Women's books featured

Books by, for, and about women are featured in the new Women's Lending Library, recently opened in the Women's Resource Center at the Downtown YWCA, 1111 S.W. 10th Avenue.

The library, staffed by volunteers, is open 10 a.m. to noon on Thursday and Friday mornings, and during the Job Bank hours which are posted at the YWCA. A $2 deposit is required to use the library and is returned upon request of the borrower. A 10¢ fee is charged for each book loaned.

Reading and discussion groups on Women's literature are every Friday from noon to 1 p.m. in the Women's Resource Center. These are informal discussions with group members moderating on topics of special interest to them.

The reading list for the discussion group for the rest of the summer includes: August 10, Virginia Woolf, A Room of One's Own; August 17, Joyce Carol Oates, The Wheel of Love or A Garden of Earthly Delights; August 24, Ellen Moers, Willa Cather and Colette: Mothers of us All, a magazine article from World Magazine, March 27, 1973.

Copies of the material are available at the Women's Resource Center.

Book donations for the library are accepted at the YWCA. Volunteer help is also needed.

Work-Connected Recreation

Harrison, an appliance salesman, waltzed so strenuously at a company party that he suffered a fatal heart attack. Was his widow entitled to collect workmen's compensation for his death?

The company said no. "Obviously, he was not at work when he was dancing," the company reasoned in a court hearing. But Mrs. Harrison pointed out that the party had taken place on company premises, under company sponsorship, as part of a company contest—and that all the company's salesmen were expected to show up.

The court decided that the dancing had indeed arisen out of the job, and granted the widow's claim. The court said the party was simply the company's way of inspiring its employees to greater effort.

Workmen's compensation laws generally cover accidents that occur in the course of employment. As a rule, courts have included any recreational activities that are closely connected with the job.

This is especially true when the company plays an active role in the event.

Thus, in a case arising out of a company picnic, the court granted compensation for an accident largely because of the participation of the company president. It seems he would use these occasions to present special prizes to employees and to give them pep talks about "our one big family."

Still, not every recreational occasion is covered. In another picnic case, a woman employee was hurt during a foot race. But when she sought compensation, the company pointed out

- 1) that it paid only part of the cost of the picnic;
- 2) that the picnic was held on a non-working day, away from the company premises, with no pressure on anyone to attend; and
- 3) that the company had nothing to do with the arrangements.

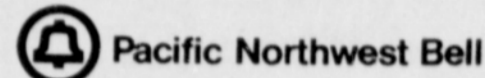

The court decided it would be stretching language to call the woman's injury "an incident of her employment." Result: no compensation.
