First AME Zion hosts conference

First AME Zion Church will entertain the 81st Annual Conference of the Oregon-Washington Conference, August 29 to September 1, 1973. The Right Reverend George J. Leake is presiding prelate.

Bishop Leake is a newly elected bishop. He was elected at the 39th General Conference in Mobile, Alabama on May 12, 1972. Bishop George Leake, 42 years of age, is the youngest bishop on the bench, but brings into the bishopric a great zeal for God and the church, and a real love and concern for people.

During his pastorate, he was known for his great preaching and administrative ability. He was also very active in his community, where he pastored Little Rock AME Zion Church, Charlotte, North Carolina. He was recently appointed Director of Opportunities Industrialization Center of Charlotte.

Under his direction, Little Rock AME Zion Church organized and operates a day care center and kindergarten for about 100 children. Also under construction is a shopping center for 540 low and moderate income families. He also is director for a local anti-poverty program.

Bishop Leake was educated at Livingstone College and Hoods Seminary, Salisbury, North Carolina, the University of Pennsylvania, Temple University and the University of Buffalo.

Accompanying him to the Portland conference are his wife and children. Mrs. Vilma Dew Leake is the missionary supervisor of the AME Zion Connection.

The Conference officially opens Thursday, August 30th at 9:30 a.m. Thursday evening at 7:30 will be Christian Education Night. Communion Services will be held also.

Friday evening at 7:30 the Missionary Department will hold its Candlelight Services, with Mrs. Vilma Leake in charge. The board of Christian Education will be in charge of services Saturday. The Bishop's Welcome Banquet is Saturday evening at 7:00 p.m. at the church social hall. Sunday morning at the 11:00 a.m. service, the message will be brought by Bishop Leake. Music will be provided by the conference choir. Reverend L. J. Thompson is the host pastor.

Persuasions visit Maranatha Church

The Persuasions will make their first Portland appearance at Maranatha Church, 1222 N.E. Skidmore Street on Sunday, August 26th at 7:00 p.m.

The group is composed of thirty-six dedicated Christian young people of high school and college age. The chorus is backed up with bass, guitar, drums and piano. They have been touring the Northwest this summer, and are an outreach ministry of Faith Temple of Tacoma, Washington.

The persuasions are presenting the message of "Come Together", a musical experience in love written by Jimmy and Carol Owen.

Project upgrades basic skill teaching

A new program designed to provide improvement in basic skills instruction in the schools, funded by the federal government, will be operating in the Portland Public Schools this year.

The project, operating with $450,000 from the Emergency School Aid Act awarded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, actually got underway on July 1, 1973. Its goal is not to improve the basic skills among academically disadvantaged students, but to provide basic skills and remedial instruction for so-called "receiving" schools under the school district's voluntary transfer program. "Receiving" schools are those to which students from schools with high levels of minority student concentration may transfer on a voluntary basis, if they have the space. The program will also deal with parents and teachers as well.

Dr. Ernest Hartzog, director of the program, said the project is also designed to help teachers and administrators acquire the skills necessary for delivering instruction in basic skills to children from educationally diverse backgrounds and for management of interracial conflict situations.

In addition the program is working to assist in the development of parental skills necessary to function effectively in support of children's educational development in the home and the school. Dr. Hartzog said.

The project office is located in the Child Service Center, 220 N.E. Beech Street. It will be staffed by Ben Talley, parent involvement coordinator and Cliff Campbell, Jr., staff training coordinator.

FIRE SAFETY
 HELPFUL TIPS TO PROTECT YOUR FAMILY
 CLEANING UP FIRE HAZARDS
 Now is a good time to clean up in and around the house to give everything the sparkle of sunshine. And it's also a good time to clean up any fire hazards. Here are some tips from The Hartford Insurance Group's Junior Fire Marshal program - things to do and fire hazards to avoid:
 1. Clear out trash, newspapers, magazines and other things which have piled up in cellars, attics and garages during the past months. These become a real fire hazard. Bundle them up and have them carted away by the trash collector.
 2. Fumes from painting can build up and become explosive. Open the windows in rooms being painted, and keep paint cans in tightly closed metal containers. When the job is finished, fasten the lids on paint cans tightly, clean the brushes and store everything in a cool place.
 3. Cleanup time also means using cloths for polishes and waxes. But oily rags can be a fire hazard. When cleanup time is done, be sure all oily rags are thrown out.
 4. Planning to clean the draperies and slipcovers? It's safer to send them to the cleaners than to try dry cleaning them yourself. If they must be cleaned at home, never use gasoline, naphtha, benzene or anything else that will burst into flame easily. Nonflammable, nonexplosive cleaners should be used, and even those must be used out-of-doors only. Remember that the fumes of some cleaners are very dangerous if you breathe them. And always use rubber gloves to protect your hands.
 5. If you have gasoline, kerosene, or other flammable liquids around, be sure they're kept in closed metal containers. If you pour any of these liquids from one container to another, be careful to use a funnel or a hose which touches both cans. Otherwise, static electricity could cause a spark which would create an explosion. For safety's sake, flammable liquids should be handled only out-of-doors.
