

PEACE

An olive branch... a snow white dove. May these symbols of peace restore faith and brotherhood and shine the light of love all over the world.

It's here... another year! Greet it with joy and live it well!

Carlos Martin

HELLO

We're heralding the start of a New Year full of promise. Let us extend our thanks, and best wishes, too!

Children celebrate Christmas

by Gloria Wroten

The tenth annual Christmas party for children, sponsored by Jimmy (Bang Bang) Walker and Mrs. Mary Jean Berry, was held at Portland Community College Student Union on December 23, 1973.

Over 250 children from all ages were entertained by various drill teams from John Adams High School, gymnastics from Martin Luther King Elementary School, and students from Adams High School. A children's fashion show sponsored by students from the Albina community and novelty acts performed by magician Jack Harris were also presented.

The annual event, which was organized with less than two days notice, was termed a "success" by Mrs. Berry. "I think it was such a sweet spirit these kids coming together to help out the younger members of the community. People were working day and night to see that this production would be a success. Many of these actions I've never seen before," Mrs. Berry said. She went on to say that without the help of David Newman and Linda Harnbuckle the annual Christmas party might not have been as successful as it was. "They just came up to me and said, 'Mrs. Berry, we'll help you and they took over from there.'"

The Christmas event could not have been complete without the arrival of Santa Claus. Carrying a baby in his arms, old Saint Nick wished that peace and happiness would reign throughout the new year.

Children of all ages wait eagerly for appearance of Santa Claus at children's Christmas Party.
