

OSU hosts UN

Oregon State University will host the 24th session of the Model United Nations of the Far West April 17-20 in Portland. More than 1,000 students are expected to be involved in the discussions and debates on world affairs.

Eighty-nine colleges and universities already have registered to take part in the unique educational program. Drawn from the western one-third of the nation, each institution will represent one or more U.N. countries.

The OSU student who is heading the arrangements, Steven K. Lund, and his assistant, George R. Abendschein, went to U.N. headquarters in New York City last summer for special training related to conduct of U.N. affairs. Both are political science majors from Corvallis.

Some 300 OSU students in all will be involved in planning and staging the mock U.S. program that will be open to public observers. Sessions are scheduled at Portland's Hilton Hotel.

Common Cause rejects statements

Steve Lowenstein and Chuck Habernigg, Co-Chairmen of Oregon Common Cause, expressed deep concern about statements made by retiring Congresswoman Edith Green and Congressman Wendell Wyatt in their addresses before the Portland City Club Friday, February 15. Mrs. Green and Mr. Wyatt expressed frustration in dealing with citizens' lobbies and named, among others, Common Cause. Congressman Wyatt asserted that Common Cause, for instance, insisted on lobbyists being registered, but had not registered itself as a lobby. The two Common Cause spokesmen pointed out that this is simply false. They expressed surprise that Congressman Wyatt was not aware of the nationally advertised fact that Common Cause has always been registered in Washington as a citizens' lobby and has publicly revealed all sources of its income, all of its goals, and its activities in pursuit of those goals.

Furthermore, they pointed out that Common Cause is registered as a lobbyist in the State of Oregon and in all other states in which registration is possible. At the luncheon, both Mrs. Green and Mr. Wyatt made further statements to the effect that the national leadership of Common Cause is unrepresentative of its membership. "In fact," said the Common Cause leaders, "the organization is run by the national governing board, which is elected directly by the entire membership. Furthermore, the membership has been polled on specific issues to set priorities for action. It is difficult to imagine any organization with more democratic procedures, short of a town meeting."

Mrs. Green and Mr. Wyatt also objected to having to cope with volume letter mailing from members of citizens' lobbies. Habernigg and Lowenstein stated that "it has always been our understanding that effective representative democracy requires communication between constituents and their representatives. If they cannot be counted through letters to the congressmen, and by working through groups like Common Cause, what are citizens to do?"

"We believe Common Cause to be one of the most effective tools yet developed for citizens' participation in government. Many legislators welcome input from their constituents on important issues. The growing multitude of citizen members of Common Cause pay their dues and participate in making it the responsible and effective organization it is. They need and want access to their representatives, and we intend to continue to work toward that end."

Washington High School students depict Wizard of Oz characters.

Students show Oz

The magical characters in the land of Oz come to Portland March 7th, 8th and 9th when The Wizard of Oz, and adaptation of the book by L. Frank Baum, is presented at Washington High School.

A well-loved children's play, The Wizard of Oz evolves around the adventures of a Kansas farmgirl named Dorothy and her friends, the Scarecrow, the Tin Woodsman, and the Cowardly Lion. The script was adapted by the director, Julia Accardi, and her husband, Nicholas Accardi, of the Portland Ladybug Theater.

Washington High School is on S.E. 14th and Stark. Curtain time is 8:00 p.m. and the tickets (available at the door) are one dollar apiece.

Muslim leader honored

The Honorable Elijah Muhammad will be honored by 100 Black businessmen and civic leaders from Chicago and the entire country at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, Illinois on March 29th. Plans were announced by spokesmen for the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company. Proceeds from the $50.00 per plate dinner will go to The Honorable Elijah Muhammad Memorial Fund for building the first privately-financed hospital by Blacks in the country.

Mr. Muhammad, the leader of the Chicago-based Nation of Islam, will be cited for his 43 years of constructive leadership in the Black community and the profound effect his work has had on the Black masses. Several community leadership awards have been presented to Mr. Muhammad by churches, college groups including Olive-Harvey College, National Association of Black Police Officers and the Howard University Dental School.

Dinner sponsors point proudly to Chicago Southside successes achieved by Mr. Muhammad's leadership. He has helped the community with restaurants, bakeries, grocery supermarkets, facilities for clothing stores, medical offices, a 1.5 million dollar office building under construction and a handsome Temple and school, formerly a Greek Orthodox church. In addition, Muslims have acquired farmland in Michigan, Alabama and the British Honduras, and they are presently developing an air transport system in Gary, Indiana to complement the fleet of overland trucks in operation nationally.

Dinner Chairmen are: Muhammad Ali, the Heavyweight boxer; Colonel Bradford, Eugene Dibble, Brad Movers, Inc.; Al Johnson, Al Johnson Associates; William Manney, WBEE Radio; E. Duke McNeil, The Woodlawn Organization; Theresa Wallace, Chicago Boys Club; and comedian and Civil Rights Activist, Dick Gregory.

Golf Club opens season

The Golf Season is now open...

That's the word from the Tournament Chairman of the Leisure Hour Golf Club of Portland, Charlie Ganter.

The Club has scheduled monthly competition, and the first event of the season will be a "Sweep Stakes" Sunday, March 3, 1974, at 10:00 a.m. at Glendoveer Golf Course.

President Bill Russell has indicated this will be the most competitive year in the 30-year history of Leisure Hour.

Returning to defend their 1973 championships are Booker Taylor, the "hard hitting left hander, and "B" flight champion in Vancouver, B.C., and the Leisure Hour Annual. Emmett Pauncil, the outstanding "A" flighter, playing his way into championship form in the mud and ice at West Delta. Jerome Polk, a young long ball hitting newcomer to the Club, intends attacking the championship handicappers before the year ends. The best advice to the Champs is Beware of Polk. And then there is Mr. Consistant, Charlie Ganter. Charlie has been selected for a second term as representative on the Board of the Oregon Golf Association.

Energy explored

The third segment of "More Power to You", the energy alternative program series produced by Portland Community College in cooperation with KPTV, will be aired on Sunday evening March 3, from 9 to 10 p.m.

Explored in this segment will be transportation alternatives such as mass transit systems, car pools, walking and cycling; and diffuse forms of energy such as wind power and solar power. The water bus will be examined, and a wind powered bicycle will be demonstrated. The practical use of windmills and solar power generators will be shown for both the individual home and the community.

Information packets on all of the various alternative power sources discussed during the three segments of the program are available by calling Portland Community College Community Service at 244-6111.

Hospital seeks expansion

Good Samaritan Hospital's two applications for State Certificates of Need to (1) increase their nephrology services to include kidney transplantation and (2) modernize and partially replace their existing facility, will be reviewed as required by Oregon State Law on Wednesday, March 6, 1974, at 6:30 p.m. in the Chapman Grade School Auditorium, 1445 N.W. 25th, Portland, Oregon by the Project Review Committee of the Comprehensive Health Planning Association for the Metropolitan Area (CHPA).

All interested parties are invited to attend and participate.
