The Harvest Ball ***

The Hamiltones Quintet consisting of: Elise Henderson on piano, Art Bradford on drums, Albert Johnson on bass, along with Al Hickerson, leader, on alto saxophone, provided the entertainment for the evening at the Harvest Ball on Friday night. Although the room wasn't filled to capacity the Hamiltones entertained as though they were playing to a standing room only crowd. Their musical selections went from Shangra La to the Hustle - with: Misty, I Left My Heart In San Francisco, A Taste of Honey, Ain't No Sunshine and others. The atmosphere at the Pang Club on the Air Base was pleasant. With the intimate crowd on hand, one got the feeling it was a party with a group of friends who hadn't seen each other in sometime. Charmens and Virginia Jones came up from Salem to attend the Ball, along with George and Connie Rankin's, Mr. and Mrs. Al Jamison, Delores Leggroan and Dr. Brown, Terry Williamson, and many others. In all, it was a very nice evening and I am sure everyone there enjoyed it as well.

Jeanne Hoffman **

Jeanne Hoffman is not a new name to Jazz in or outside of Portland. She's been playing the piano since the tender age of eight. She has played from coast to coast for years. She's played the Village Vanguard in New York to Basin Street in San Francisco. As Jeanne tells it, she had just arrived in San Francisco and was walking by Basin Street just before it opened, she went in to ask if the Club needed a piano player and they did and thus became the first piano player at the world famous Basin Street Night Club. So when I read a review on her a couple of weeks ago, that she was playing at the Helm on Broadway, I had to go down and check her out. Jeanne and her bass player David Friesen did a forty-five minute set of mostly up-tempo compositions that for the most part were over the heads of most of the crowd. She was playing the Loinous Monk style to a Ramsey Lewis audience. I thought that was very distasteful as a professional for her to trip like that. Aside from her sporadic fits of untimely laughter during the performance, she also lost the attention of the audience on a couple of her selections. Her song styling could use a little coaching if she persist on trying to sing. I am by no means putting down her talent as a professional pianist, but her ego is so inflated that she has to applaud after her performances. Down girl down.

Play seeks actors

The hilariously funny Black comedy, Five On The Black Hand Side, will be produced at Portland State University by the Portland State University Black Cultural Affairs Board. The play is scheduled to be performed January 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th, 1976 in Portland State University's Park Theater.

The production is being directed by professional director/actor, Robert Livingston. Tryouts for Five on the Black Hand Side will be held November 20th, 21st and 25th from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and November 22nd, Saturday from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. in Smith Memorial Center, Room 329. Parts are open for nine Black males and six Black females from ages sixteen to fifty. Community residents and high school/college students alike throughout Oregon are encouraged to audition. Auditions will include a recital of a memorized piece or the reading of the director's selection. Please contact the Black Cultural Affairs Office, 229-4075, for more information.

Justice considered

A statewide "first-of-its-kind" Conference on Volunteers in Criminal Justice will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18th and 19th at the Valley River Inn in Eugene.

The conference, sponsored by the Oregon Council on Crime and Delinquency, a statewide citizens group funded by the United Way, will attract volunteer coordinators, administrators and volunteer leaders from throughout Oregon.

The featured dinner speaker will be Dr. Robert M. Martinson, an eminent sociologist from New York. He has recently published the book, "The Effectiveness of Correctional Treatment" which has brought national attention to his research because of his conclusion that prison programs have "no basic effect" on lowering the crime rate.

Conference participants will also hear Mrs. Robert Straub at the luncheon session and six professionals from the Portland area.

Phyllis Proppe, Executive Director, Volunteer Bureau of Greater Portland and Gena McClain, Activities Director of Villa St. Rose will co-lead a workshop on "Recruitment and Community Relations." Mr. Charles A. Tracy, Director, Administration of Justice at Portland State University will introduce Dr. Martinson at the banquet.

Robb Sansum, Program Coordinator for Washington County Community Action and Multnomah County District Court Judge Richard L. Unis will be among members of the Wednesday morning panel "Community Service as a Sentencing Option."

Dr. Martinson will also be addressing a seminar at Portland State University Tuesday afternoon. The seminar, for Portland area professionals and Portland State University students has been jointly sponsored by Portland State University's Criminal Justice Ph.D. program and the State's Corrections Division Impact Program, and OCCD.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting OCCD at 718 West Burnside or phoning 228-5397.

ATTENTION

St. Andrew Community Clothes Closet will sell clothing, kitchenware, some collectibles and rummage at its "Little Bit of Everything Sale" from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Sunday, November 16th at St. Andrew Community Hall, Northeast 8th and Alberta. Proceeds from the sale will help buy baby items, diapers, and children's clothing for the Clothes Closet which gives ten articles of apparel to seventy to eighty people each week.

The Association for Improved Deaf Education will meet at 3604 Southeast 13th. This is an opportunity for parents of children with hearing problems to meet with other parents who share the same experiences.

Lyndon H. Larouche, Jr. United States Labor Party candidate for President will speak at Reed College, Tuesday, November 18th at 8:00 p.m. at the Chapel.
