Employment Service

Question: What does the Oregon Employment Division law say about "suitable work" in relation to claiming Unemployment Insurance benefits?

Answer: Employment Division law makes reference to the suitability of work in several areas involved with claiming unemployment insurance benefits. An individual must seek suitable work, can be disqualified for refusing an offer of suitable work, or for failing to apply for available suitable work when so directed.

The law then establishes certain suitable work factors: In determining whether or not any work is suitable for an individual, the administrator of the Employment Division shall consider, among other factors, the degree of risk involved to the claimant's health, safety and morals, the claimant's physical fitness and prior training, his experience and prior earnings, his length of unemployment and prospects for securing local work in his customary occupation and the distance of the available work from his residence. The Employment Division law also establishes certain conditions under which work would not be considered suitable: "(a) If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout or other labor dispute. (b) If the remuneration, hours or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality. (c) If as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization."

Upon completion of their annual Spring Tour, the Concordia College Choir will present their Home Concert on Sunday, April 11th. The concert will begin at 8:00 p.m. in St. Michael's Lutheran Church on N.E. 29th and Dekum.

This year's tour covered a total of 1,500 miles with thirteen appearances in Washington and British Columbia, Canada. Among their performances was a concert at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Washington and a live performance before a local television station in Victoria, B.C.

The musical selections will center in on the Bicentennial theme with music from colonial America by William Billings and William Selby. A collection of three spirituals arranged by L.L. Fleming are also a part of the program.

Following a long tradition of the Concordia College Choir, approximately half of the songs will be signed by choir members for the deaf people in the audience.
