Harrison wins Founder Award

Black evangelist Robert Harrison, former Pastor of Maranatha Church and formerly an associate evangelist with the Billy Graham Crusade Team, was named recipient of Bethany Bible College's annual Founder's Award during Bicentennial Homecoming.

Harrison, a Bethany graduate of the class of 1953, traveled world-wide for Billy Graham Crusades during the late 1950's and early 1960's. In his 22 years of ministry he has preached the gospel in West Africa, Southeast Asia, the Far East, South America, and throughout the United States.

Harrison is an accomplished musician and singer, and has produced five record albums. His autobiography, "When God Was Black," was published recently by Zondervan Publishing Company.

In 1957, Harrison became the first Black minister to be licensed with the Northern California and Nevada District of the Assemblies of God. Nineteen years later, District Superintendent Joseph L. Gerhart presented him with the Founder's Award for 1976.

The Founder's Award is an annual presentation made during Homecoming activities at Bethany Bible College in Santa Cruz, California. The Award traditionally goes to a Bethany graduate who has gained prominence as a missionary or evangelist.

Showdown in Chile

by Ramon Marsano and Michael Errol

SANTIAGO (PNS) - Tensions that have simmered for two years between church and state in Chile may be about to erupt into a climactic showdown.

With the government accusing high church officials of crimes close to treason, rumors abound that church leaders are threatening government functionaries with excommunication.

Most recently, a government-controlled newspaper accused the Catholic Vicariate of Solidarity - successor to the ecumenical Committee for Peace disbanded by the junta last year for its human rights activities - of arranging the itinerary of three U.S. congressmen who spent a week in Chile this March to investigate human rights violations.

According to the paper, all those who gave information to the "enemies of Chile" committed an act of "lesa patria" - akin to treason. They include Cardinal Raul Silva and former President Eduardo Frei.

One of them, lawyer Jose Zalaquett, has since been expelled from the country, and government publication of a list of others who spoke to the congressmen is seen here as a thinly veiled threat against the rest.

The three Democratic congressmen - George Miller of California, Thomas Harkin of Iowa and Toby Moffet of Connecticut - said on their return to the U.S. in March that they had collected proof of continued arbitrary arrests without charges, torture and assassination of opponents to the military junta. They are working to build support in Congress for total elimination of military aid to Chile and a review of all programs of economic assistance.

ATTACK ON CHURCH

Meanwhile a sharp attack on the present church hierarchy is being pressed by an extreme rightwing political-religious lay group called the Chilean Society for the Defense of Tradition, Family and Property (FIDUCIA).

Believed by many in the church hierarchy to be working at the command of the junta, FIDUCIA has published a 500-page book, "The Silent Church in Chile," changing Cardinal Silva and the church hierarchy with betraying Christian principles and "paving the way for a marxist return to power."

The book says the Church is "currently serving as the spearhead for the extreme left's program of overthrowing the junta and establishing a communist dictatorship in its place."

The Church, the only remaining organized and powerful source of opposition to the junta, has been publicly critical since September 1974, when church officials refused to send a representative to the celebration of the regime's first anniversary.

At that time an official spokesman for Cardinal Silva explained that the Church's criticism was based on three points: "the violation of human rights and liberties, the present economic policies and the educational plan."

"We will never tire in exposing and denouncing the cruel punishment and torture of political prisoners," he said. "We oppose the economic policies of the junta which make the poorest classes bear the brunt of the present crisis. And finally, we object to the militarization of the educational system...from the grammar school level up to the universities."

While "The Silent Church in Chile" is being widely distributed throughout Santiago, sometimes free of charge, gigantic signs have begun to appear across major thoroughfares calling on Catholics to "resist" the church hierarchy.

Many in the Church see the FIDUCIA effort as a final attempt by the junta to divide the Catholics and stifle their criticism of the regime. They point out that the huge signs have appeared in spots previously occupied by government propaganda and that the third edition of the new book was ordered printed in the University of Chile's shop by its new government-designated rector.

One Catholic parish leader in downtown Santiago told PNS (Pacific News Service), "FIDUCIA is a front group for the government. It has no mass following. Its only members are former organizers of the Fatherland and Freedom Party" - an openly fascist group that actively opposed the former Allende government.

Another, a Catholic relief organization workers, asked, "What better proof is there that the government's hand is behind FIDUCIA when it allows this slanderous book to circulate but has banned something as innocuous as 'The Call of the Wild' on the grounds that it was anti-Christian?"

So far the Church has formally attacked only FIDUCIA. Both Cardinal Silva and the Pope's representative in Chile have condemned the book, while the high-level Bishop's Permanent Committee issued a statement which, according to canon lawyers, may be the beginning of an excommunication process against those involved in its writing, editing and distribution.

If the FIDUCIA book is proven a junta project, however, this move toward excommunication could lead to a final showdown between church and state. The Church is already rumored to be planning to excommunicate government functionaries accused of torturing political prisoners.
