

YWCA schedules camp for senior citizens

Who says it's just girls and boys who like to go to camp in the summer? This year the Portland YWCA has scheduled an entirely new session just for senior citizens, adult women and men age 55 and older. From August 9th to 11th, the seniors can have the time of their life at Westwind, the 700 acre YWCA camp at the edge of the Pacific. Preregistration is necessary and openings are available to participate.

Special arrangements are being made at camp to more adequately accommodate the seniors. They will travel from the Portland YWCA by bus to the Salmon River Landing. Here they will be met with boats and ferried across the river. A tractor-drawn trailer will take the group from the water's edge across the deep sand to Wilson Lodge. Participants will be housed in cabins and meals will be served in the dining room.

The schedule of activities will be flexible to allow plenty of time for exploring the beaches and forest, fishing, visiting with others. Traditional camp activities will be offered including arts and crafts, games, ocean dipping, horseback riding, cookouts, etc.

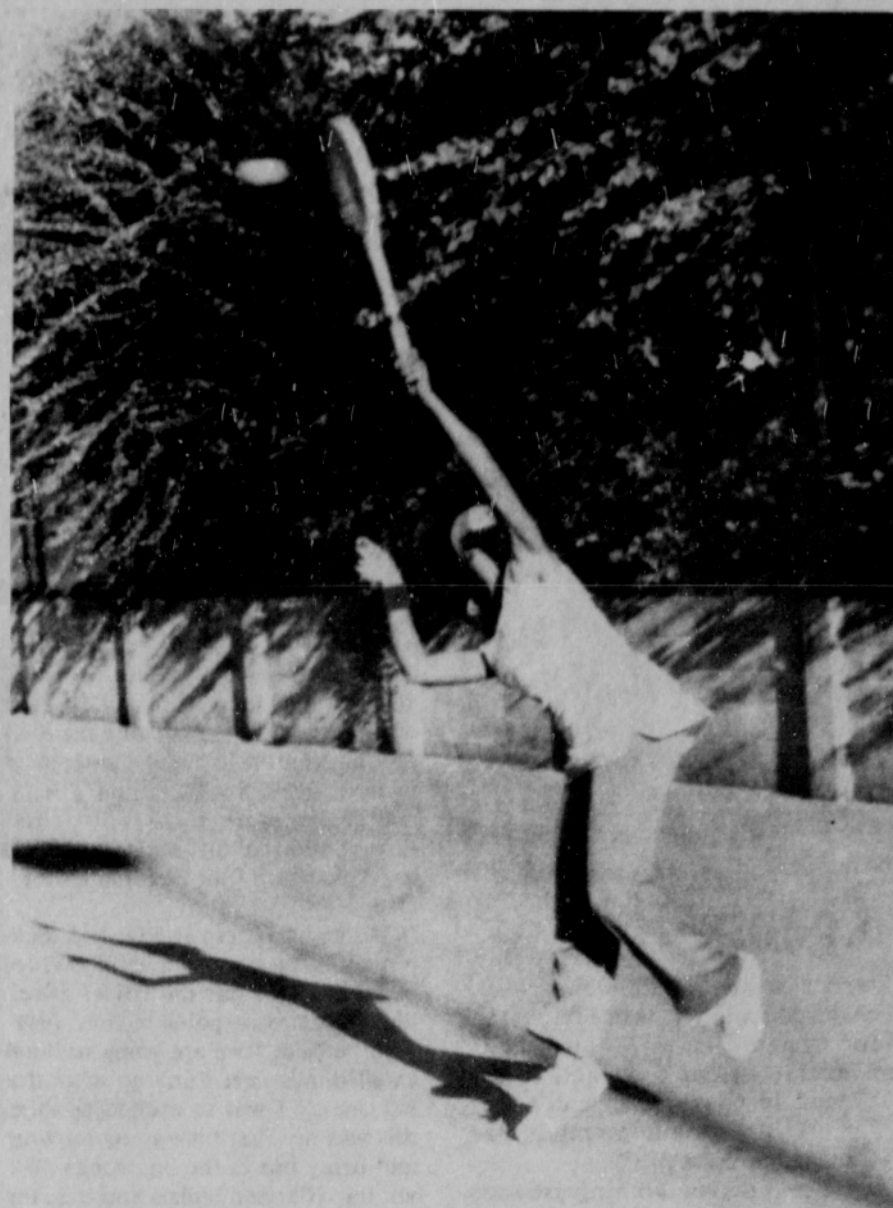

A nurse will be available at camp at all times and a physician will be on call in Lincoln City.

Participants receive a complete list of articles to bring for camp; they are sent after registration. No fancy equipment is needed.

Since 1936, young people have had never-to-be-forgotten vacations at Westwind on some of the most beautiful land on the Oregon coast. Westwind is located 90 miles from Portland, just north of Lincoln City and within the protected Cascade Head Scenic Research Area. The camp has acres of beaches, woods, meadows, a hidden lake, rain forests and mountain streams. Tiny crabs and ghost shrimp thrive in the estuary and salmon use it on their return to spawning grounds.

The camp is accredited by the American Camping Association for attaining standards in administration, program, personnel, facilities, health, safety, sanitation and transportation.

Further information on the special senior camping session is available at the Downtown YWCA.

REVELATION 78 — SO BE IT ★ ★ ★

It was billed as Revelation 78, so said the executives of the elegant downtown Portland Plaza Condominiums last Wednesday night. The entire evening was geared to show the prospective buyer exactly what condominium living is all about — and boy was I impressed! The prices range from $67,000 to $115,000 with a ten percent increase on September 1st.

From the valet parking we were escorted to the elevator and were greeted on the top floor by one of six guides who gave us a tour from one through six of the condos on the floor. Every unit in the building has a view and TV monitor, regardless of where you live. We were guided through the party rooms, rec room, exercise room and eventually onto the patio, where a smorgasborg of food and beverages were available — from black and green caviar to Remy Martin cognac. The guests included Governor Bob Straub, Stan Wiley, Commissioners Jordar, Schwab, and McCready, and many more notables.

The highlight of the evening was sitting up front and being entertained by the Duke Ellington Band, headed up by his brother Mercer Ellington, plus one of the greatest pianists of all time George Shearing! Need I say more?

GENEVA'S 16TH YEAR AND GOING STRONG ★ ★

Paul and Geneva Knauls recently celebrated their sixteenth year in business. Geneva's Cocktail Lounge is unquestionably the most noted and probably the most successful Black-owned lounge in the Northwest. Having successfully operated two lounges prior to opening Geneva's (the Cotton Club and Paul's) it's no wonder Geneva's has enjoyed its continued growth over the past eight years. Its tasteful decor, pleasant atmosphere and friendly service makes Geneva's a must on your entertainment list.

Sunday afternoon offered everyone who came in the door an afternoon of "live" musical enjoyment! Featuring George Lawson on saxophone, Benny Wilson on organ, Raymond Torrance on guitar, and Anthony Nolan and Dale Smith on drums. In all, it was a very enjoyable evening. See you next year!!
