

OBSERVATIONS

from the sidelines

by Kathryn Bogle

This Friday, October 12, has to be the busiest October 12 ever. So many good things for Black people to be involved in, or for us to just see and learn about. We mention just a few right away.

First, at noon, there is a chance to see and hear Donald F. McHenry, the United States Ambassador to the United Nations. Remember, he was named to take Andrew Young's position when it was vacated by Mr. Young.

A one-day conference brings Mr. McHenry to Portland as a part of the activities of the World Affairs Council of Oregon as they discuss "Southern Africa Faces the 80s".

This will be the first major foreign policy address to be delivered by Mr. McHenry, and it will be heard here, live, at our own Memorial Coliseum.

You are invited by the World Affairs Council, to lunch with Mr. McHenry for $10, or you may come just to hear him speak for $2.50 admission.

In the afternoon at 4:30 p.m. you could be at the Portland Art Museum for the public opening of an exhibit of the art of Jacob Lawrence. The museum owns a small collection of paintings by Mr. Lawrence and these few will be augmented by others for this show and all of them will be out for us to see again. The exhibit will be housed in the Wentz Gallery.

In the evening the renowned artist will speak in the Berg-Swann Auditorium of the Art Museum. He will tell us of his work and bring us up to date on what he is doing at present. Be there promptly at 8:30 p.m. - it promises to be a treat and admission is free.

Back tracking a little: - The Conference on "South Africa Faces the 80s" will have its opening session starting at 8:45 a.m., on Friday, at the Willamette Center at 121 S.W. Salmon Street. It will be on the sky bridge level of the Activities Building there. Open to the public for a small admission fee which includes the same lunch at the Memorial Coliseum as mentioned above, this is a real bargain. People will be bussed over the river to lunch and back again for the afternoon half of the conference. Bus fare is included in the initial price.

On the panel of dignitaries discussing South Africa problems will be Prof. Mazisi Kunene, originally from South Africa but now an Associate Professor of African Literature and Languages at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Prof. Kunene is also a poet, a political leader and political writer. He is the author of "Emperor Shaka the Great" an epic poem about a great Zulu leader.

Later in the day at 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Prof. Kunene will read some of his poetry when he will be honored guest at the Albina Womens League at 8 N.E. Killingsworth Street.

J.M. Gates, publisher, explains "Circle Forum" at recent Art Quake display of small press publishers.

The Rev. O.B. Williams, long-time minister at Vancouver Avenue Baptist Church, has become a member of the executive committee of the newly-organized "Northwest Response to World Hunger" campaign. The group is to increase "community awareness" to the real hunger existing in the world and will work cooperatively through young people to raise emergency funds, beginning in 1980, to combat the crisis.

Lieutenant Cupid Berry, formerly of Portland, now of Camp Pendleton, visited in Portland this week. A graduate of Grant High School and graduated by the School of Nursing at the University of Portland, Lieutenant Berry was a nurse at Providence Hospital before entering the armed services.

Her Lieutenant's bars were awarded to Ms. Berry in 1978 and she has now renewed her hitch in the Navy for another year and a half. She will be sailing in about a week for Manila and will be stationed at Subic Bay while in the Philippines.

In Portland, Lieutenant Berry was the guest of Franck and Linda Metellus and of her brother, Ben Berry.

The metal sculptures of Al Goldsby, recently from his forge on N. Killingsworth, are on exhibit at the newly restored Columbia River Gorge Hotel. The hotel, popular in 1921, has had more than a few thousand dollars spent on a renovation which has brought out the charm, the dignity and elegance of that era once again. People are flocking out there on week ends just to dine in the lovely atmosphere of the place and its setting. So stop by and see Al Goldsby's latest smooth liquid metals and let them speak eloquently to you.

Mr. and Ms. O. J. Gates are a busy couple, each working independently in the behalf of people and both accomplishing in fields not routinely tackled by Black people.

For instance, Ms. Gates (she usually signs her work: J.M. Gates) was the only Black person we saw exhibiting among all the others of the representatives of the private small free press of Oregon a few weeks ago in Portland's Art Quake.

J.M. Gates was representing her own "Circle Press". She publishes "Circle Forum", a medium in periodical form which she edits for poetry, a special kind of poetry called "reversible", as it can be read backwards as well as forward. J.M. Gates, as publisher, receives poetry from all over the world as her "Circle Forum" has an international readership.

Osly J. Gates

Mr. Gates, meanwhile, aside from his job as director of the City-County Commission on Aging, has, since 1974, been a member of the Board of Directors of the National Council on Aging. He has been recently made chairman of its committee on the Minority Elderly.

The committee has provided the leadership to influence national legislation affecting the lives of the elderly, and especially, the minority elderly.

Gates expects to be in Washington, D.C. shortly to help put together several bills in an array of legislation to be reviewed and drafted at this meeting.

Gates is the only Black member of this board who hails from Oregon. The other member is Guy Frazier, a former vice president of Tektronix. Helen Hayes, the revered Broadway theatre star and Jack Albertson, the TV personality, are new members, along with Mr. Gates, on this important national board.

Nursing injuries sustained from falls in separate incidents are Marjorie Ingersoll and Ms. Willis Augustus Reed. Each lady is receiving get well cards and good wishes. Here are ours.

Herb Cawthorne

Herb Cawthorne was nothing less than sensational in his portrayal of W.E.B. DuBois recently at Portland State University in a Lincoln Hall performance presented three times during the week end.

We saw him the first night and learned a lot about DuBois and his times. Cawthorne was unforgettable. He had early command of his audience. They hung on his every word during his long soliloquy. The pathos, the pride of this great man's life came alive. Cawthorne's vocal timbre, voice control, diction and pace were all richly rewarding to hear.

The script, flawlessly written by Cawthorne and Jeanna Woolley, were strengthened by their recent research on DuBois, revealed DuBois as strikingly contemporary in thought, not blinking the fact that he died more than a decade ago at an age well past 90 years.

Staging and lighting were effective adjuncts to a superior performance.

Music was ably handled by Richard Moffatt, widely recognized for his abilities at piano and organ and for his own artistry as a composer, arranger, and choral conductor.

Sponsors of this very enjoyable, educational evening should all be happy to have brought to the general public so much of solid Black history and so much good theatre.

We find we are already looking forward to any other of "Herb Cawthorne's Oral History Programs" that Cawthorne has in mind.

Mallory Avenue installs pastor

Reverend Richard L. Lauer will be installed as Senior Pastor of Mallory Avenue Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) on October 14th.

Reverend Mark K. Reid, Regional Minister, will deliver the installation message and administer the Act of Installation.

For the past ten years Reverend Lauer has served as Associate Regional Minister, the Christian Church in Oregon, with special responsibilities in Youth Ministries and in the Division of Mission. This past year Lauer and his family lived in Adelaide, South Australia, where he participated in an exchange program with the Churches of Christ in South Australia.

Reverend Lauer previously served as an Associate Regional Minister in Indiana and as pastor of Northview Christian Church in Kokomo, Indiana.

Reverend Lauer graduated from Oregon State University and Christian Theological Seminary, Indianapolis, where he received the Master of Divinity degree. A native of Portland, he graduated from Grant High School.

He is on the Board of Directors of the Division of Homeland Ministries, a General Unit of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in the USA and Canada, and his concern that the church be a caring community with a social ministry will fit well with the commitment of Mallory Avenue Church to community service.

Mallory was founded in 1921 by the merger of Rodney Avenue and Woodlawn Christian Churches. The church building is used during the week by several tenants including the Northeast YWCA, which offers a wide variety of classes and activities, and the Oregon Center for Peace and Justice, sponsored by several Roman Catholic Orders.

A successful and visible community service initiated by Mallory several years ago and now sponsored by Ecumenical Parish of Northeast Portland (consisting of four neighborhood churches including Mallory) is a summer program called "People are Beautiful" for neighborhood children and youth that includes arts and crafts, value clarification, camping and other activities.

Reverend Lauer and his wife, Doris, have two children: Daniel, a married son attending the University of Oregon, and Karen, a senior in high school.

The Installation Service will be held at the church, 126 N.E. Alberta, at 4:30 p.m. A reception will follow.
