What do you think?

By Paul McCoy

Q. What do you think of the Portland Police?

A. Lynette Mays, Young mother.
I really don't like them, but, they are not all alike. When they arrest a person they should arrest the person and not verbally abuse them. I have seen people abused both physically and verbally and this goes for Blacks as well as whites. Better attitudes would help. Because they have guns and billy clubs is no reason for them to take advantage of a person. If I were in trouble I would not call a police officer, instead I would call my family or friends for help. If they come to arrest somebody they should read the person their rights and listen to the person, they might be arresting the wrong person. They want respect from the community but don't respect the community or the people in it.

A. Buffalo, Carpenter.
I think they are alright. Most of them are good, they pour out your box of weed and don't waste your time. They're on the up and up. I'm straight laced and have never had any problems with them. It's when you start hasseling them that you get in trouble.

A. Ida Johnson, Owner, Alberta Fish Restaurant.

On the one occasion that I needed them they responded quickly. But as public servants I have no respect for them. The Portland Police are very disrespectful to the private citizen from personal observations. They treat people differently according to a person's color, race, and social position. To this I am a witness. People, should think about their situation before they deal with the police, think before they speak and use their heads more.

Elijah Durst, Delivery Truck Driver.

The MF's don't show up when you need them, but, when you do need them they are no place to be found. This is true especially if you call them over to the N.E. side of town. What else can I say?

A. Michael Howard, Bartender Tot and Tell.

They have never done anything to me, but they could patrol the N.E. area better. The police should not look only at Blacks because there are a lot of other people living in the N.E. area. The best way not to deal with the police is to stay out of trouble. I personally have had no problems with them because I have not been in trouble.

A. Karen Jacob, Cashier Burger King Restaurant.

They are ok, but they take advantage of too many people. When I was seven and a half months pregnant, the Portland Police jumped on me knocking me to the ground and put my face in the grass. They are too rough. When they arrest a person they don't even let the person ask why they are being arrested. And if they ask you a question they don't let you answer. They mess with people too much. Everybody knows what is happening but nobody can do anything about it, even the judges know what is happening. They (the police) have too much power, so what can anybody do?

Wilber Butler, Machinist.

I hear they are a little militant here. Especially the young rookie cops. They bulldog people too much. In my opinion they are not worth a damn. The white man just uses the police and the courts to keep everybody else under him, it's always been this way. Look at Miami. I am not prejudiced man, but I hate to be messed over, by anyone.

Kirk Poole, Student Cleveland.

The Portland Police are o.k. They are a little slow on non-emergency calls. I disapprove of the way they are trying to close down 82 Ave. to kids who like to hang out there. Recently I witnessed an assault and had to call them, they are there in no time with about five cars, ambulances and the works. Most of them are pretty cool.

Anderson heads POIC

Rosemary Anderson has been selected as the new Executive Director for Portland Opportunities Industrialization Center. Anderson, who has been employed with OIC since 1968, has served as Deputy Director since 1974.

"After reviewing 61 resumes and interviewing eight final candidates, the Personnel Selection Committee of the Board of Directors felt that Rosemary Anderson was clearly the best qualified candidate for Executive Director," according to Thomas G. Kelley, Chairman of the Personnel Selection Committee, "we are confident that her knowledge and experience with OIC will contribute to the future progress and growth of the organization."

Anderson attended Portland State University and Portland Community College. She is a member of the National Association for Advancement of Black Americans in Vocational Education, Oregon Fair Share and NAACP.

Minority committee sets hearing

The Governor's Advisory Committee on Minority Affairs will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, June 24, 6:00 - 9:00 p.m., at King Neighborhood Center. The committee will accept public testimony to identify issues and concerns and to determine whether a Commission on Minorities should be developed or whether there should be separate Commissions on Blacks and Hispanics.
