

Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Jones, how does your garden grow? Passing by the Albina Action Center Community Garden, one might see 90 year old Mrs. Amanda Jones weeding, feeding, watering and giving tender loving care to her garden of squash, greens, corn, beans and other vegetables. ## Sport Talk Extremely unfair and unjust were the words used by U of O grid coach Rich Brooks when it was learned Monday that the PAC-10 Council had voted to deprive three Ducks of eligibility for the entire 1980 football campaign. Those named were junior wide receiver Rick Ward, junior defensive tackle Gerald Haynes and sophomore back - up quarterback Andrew Page.

It's unfair to this writer that Oregon should be hit so hard whereas prima donna USC was barely touched for similar offenses. It's especially hard for Page, who missed one year already due to a bone injury. Ward, a walk-on, was expected to start and Haynes, the 265 pounder out of New Orleans, was expected to offer a stern challenge to start at tackle.

The NCAA had issued lesser penalties and the people in Eugene was led to believe that all was done, this announcement Monday was stunning and now the three involved must make a hasty decision on whether to continue at Oregon or transfer and petition for eligibility at the new school. Chalk up another sad day for Duck football...

Two national television dates will be featured in Oregon State's 1980-81 basketball schedule, along with 13 home dates at Gill Coliseum. As a result of winning the PAC-10 championship, a feat that will be hard to duplicate this year, and top 10 ranking of last year, Oregon State has been picked for two national TV dates this coming season. The Beavers will first appear on national TV against perennial Eastern power St. John's on Saturday, Feb. 14, in New York and again on Sunday, March 1, against top PAC-10 challenger UCLA in Los Angeles.

The Beavers 28 game schedule brings them to Portland for the Far West Classic plus a single contest against Portland State at Memorial Coliseum. Why this one was scheduled is beyond my realm of thinking. Unless, however, coach Miller is looking for playing time for his bench. OSU will open it's 1980-81 season on Saturday, Nov. 29.

The OSU-BYU game is set for a 7:05 tip-off and will immediately be followed on radio by OSU-UCLA football game from Tokyo, Japan. Just have to wonder why the PAC-10 chose this obvious mis-match to showcase for the Japanese. The game will undoubtedly be a rout for the Uclans.

Far West Classic: Oregon vs Cal-State Fullerton; Drake vs Utah. In the bottom bracket, Oregon State takes on Northwestern from the Big-10, while independent Rhode Island goes against the Ivy Leagues Princeton Tigers.

Oakland Raiders have been denied their move to Los Angeles, at least for one year, and are now busy trying to sell tickets for the upcoming season. All this has caused bitter feelings among the once loyal Oakland fans. Most of the bitterness, by the press, has been hurled in the direction of managing partner Al Davis. It is Davis who has worked the hardest to bring about the move to L.A. One local writer voiced the following opinion. "After this season, Davis should be allowed to go to Los Angeles. If there were ever a city and a man that deserved each other, it's Los Angeles and Davis. What difference would one more wet-look make down there?" Dickey continues, "There are two ways to accomplish this: one is by letting Davis move the Raiders and giving Oakland an expansion franchise."

A better way, I think, is to let Davis have an expansion team in L.A. and keep the Raiders here; without Davis, I think the special relationship the team and fans once had could be renewed.

Baltimore has narrowed the Yankee lead to only 2 1/2 games in the American West. Hopefully the Yanks can hang. Wouldn't it be terrible to sit through another World Series without seeing Reggie Jackson hitting those towering drives? George Brett of Kansas City is a great hitter, but Reggie is Reggie.

The Boston Patriot's secondary came under unrelenting attack over the weekend from the Oakland Raider offense. In all fairness, the Patriots are missing Mark Haynes who is holding out which leads to my quote of the week. When asked whether Haynes was missed, "The mother..... was All-Pro four years in a row," growled cornerback Ray Clayborn. "What do you think?"

It was learned last week that Darryl Motley, currently playing for Jacksonville in the Class AA League broke his left hand after being hit by a pitched ball and is on the way back home, finished for the season. Darryl was batting a nifty .316 before the injury occurred.
