THE CALL WE HOPE WE NEVER GET

Age or location of a house are not reasons enough for a lending institution to reject your loan application. If that is the case, then call us.

We're the Metropolitan Loan Review Committee.

Our job is to see that you get a fair hearing. We do not arbitrate credit matters, but if your loan was turned down because the house was too old or in the "wrong" neighborhood, we'll do everything we can to see that your case gets reviewed.

We're not always successful, but we'll try. Because there are many good homes that ought to go on living.

Ask Aunt Bea

Aunt Bea,
I have this friend who doesn't work, (I do) and takes it upon herself to call me every evening or so, soon after I get home from work. She chats on about her day, kids and everything. She's an intelligent and interesting person and I like her a lot, I even like talking to her, but not every day and for such a long time. How can I stop this without hurting her feeling?
Joan, N. Portland

Dear Joan,
Tell your friend the truth about how you feel, let her know that you're tired so soon after work and have things to do that perhaps she had time to do while you were at work, and there are times you'd like to sit and relax and not talk to anyone.
If she's a friend she will respect your feelings without being hurt. If not, things should turn out for the best anyway, don't you agree?
Aunt Bea

Dear Aunt Bea,
I'm a working mother with 3 school age children, and there isn't much time to check every little detail in the mornings when we're all getting ready at the same time (they're all old enough to ready themselves), however, I do try to make a quick check to see that they're properly dressed and have a decent breakfast. (I don't eat breakfast) But sometimes what they like to eat is shocking! Like left over spaghetti or whatever last night's dinner was, sometimes leftover dessert!
Aunt Bea I've tried to explain to them that they need a better breakfast and their response is "but we like leftovers for breakfast." Perhaps other mothers have the same problem, too. Can you shed a little light on the subject?
Working Mother N.E. Portland

Dear Working Mother,
I agree that kids or anyone, shouldn't shock their empty stomachs with too heavy a breakfast so early in the morning, however, on the other hand, sit down and analyze what it is that the kids are eating.
As you probably know, breakfast consists of many things that are contained in "dinner." For example, flour, eggs, milk, sugar, fats, meat, etc., like in spaghetti, and what's wrong with a hamburger patty at the AM meal or ice cream over cereal, or oatmeal cookies and milk - milk, eggs, sugar, fruit. So perhaps you could eliminate the things that are shocking and let them continue with the things that are OK. Then everyone will be pleased about breakfast. Good eating!

Church youth present fashions

By Linda Thompson

Fantasy of Fashion is the theme chosen by the Young Adult Circle of Allen Temple C.M.E. Church for their Annual Fashion Show.

The fashion extravaganza will be held March 14, 1981 at 12 noon at the Red Lion Motor Inn - Lloyd Center.

The talent luncheon Fashion Show is one that is enjoyed each year by many, as members of Allen Temple display their talent. All ages and sex will be represented. The Kiddie's Review and the teenagers series "Come Alive" will be coordinated by Regina Green, Delia Broadus and C.C. Reese. Anise Hall, one of Portland's top Black models, will coordinate the adult fashion.

The show is part of an annual fund raising event. Sarah Strayhand and Glenda Parks are coordinators for this event. Rev. T. L. Strayhand is the pastor.

For those interested in tickets, you may contact any member of the Young Adult Team or Mrs. Sarah Strayhand.
