Ask Aunt Bea

Dear Aunt Bea,
I've been divorced for several months now it somehow seems that everytime I go out to visit a friend or even shopping I run into my ex-husband. In order to avoid that uneasiness and not let him think I'm chasing him, I suggested to a friend that I change my routine, maybe even find another apartment. She says that's absurd and I have just as much right to be in these places as he does, and shouldn't feel uneasy about running into him. What do you think?
Uneasy

Dear Starry Eyed,
Nothing short of being your own charming self. And if that doesn't do it, accept the fact that she's just not for you.
Look around, there may be someone else who feels about you the way you feel about her. Luck in love!
Aunt Bea

Dear Aunt Bea,
There's this girl attending the same high school that I attend. She is very attractive and popular and I'm about average in both departments. I like her a lot, matter of fact, a whole lot, but she only smiles at me. What can I do to make her like me?
Starry eyed

Dear Aunt Bea,
I think your friend is right. Besides, moving is expensive and finding unfamiliar places to shop may also be costly. Stay put. You do have a right.
Aunt Bea
