

School Board members privately consider important issues under garrison conditions while demonstrators and the public wait below.

School Board member Steve Buel, who believes the meeting violated the Oregon open meetings law, watched Joe Rieke on closed circuit television.

"Eliot, Eliot, Eliot," chanted demonstrators who protest siting of new Tubman Middle School in Boise building.

School police guard straining to keep public from cloistered School Board meeting.

The Portland School Board escaped Black United Front demonstrators by retiring to a small cafeteria and excluding the public. The BUF is protesting the siting of Tubman Middle School in the Boise building, which breaks an earlier commitment to place it at Eliot. Please see stories on pages 1 and 3.

Demonstrators chant to drum beat of Brave Bear while spectators listen to Board Meeting on closed circuit T.V.

Superintendent Matthew Prophet leaves Board room with school police escort, to continue Board meeting in seclusion.
