

FASHIONS

Shear Delight—Chloe's sheared Pastel Mink coat features Fall's most fashionable details: deep-set sleeves, a horizontally-worked yoke, and Chloe's unique spiral collar.

A new-found freedom in fur

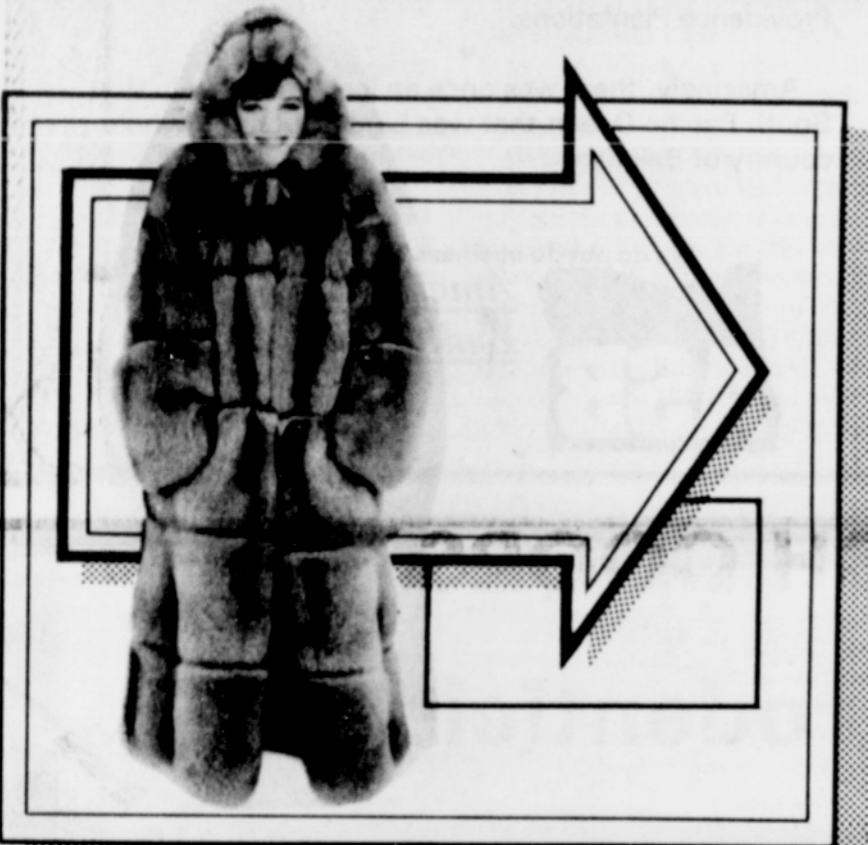

This season's fur collections have been designed with a new sense of fashion and imagination. Yet, these furs retain a classic quality, achieved with a balance between innovative detailing and loose, easy styling. The result is a selection of versatile fur fashions to suit a variety of lifestyles, from the most extravagant tastes to the quiet country life.

A good example is the Pastel SAGA Mink coat by Chloe, with its kimono sleeves and horizontal yoke. The fur has been sheared, revealing a chevron-like pattern, an effect of the let-out process used to construct the garment. Like most of Fall's new furs, it is generously scaled, with Chloe's spiral collar contributing a unique look.

Some of this year's most imaginative designs use unorthodox methods of working the fur. For instance, Dalyn's makes a gold-dyed, fun looking fox coat created with large squares of fur.

these free-spirited designs are making it possible to wear furs with a new-found freedom, for every-day occasions.

Furs by SAGA of Scandinavia

Fur Fun—the unusual look of this gold-dyed Fox coat worked in large squares makes it fun to wear.

Snappy, sweet and sassy! That's the happy partnership of brushed denim and calico for summer wear. The overalls are newly styled with elasticized jogging bottoms and trimmed on bib and belt with the coordinated calico to match the peter-pan collared blouse. Something to boast about and feel good in, are these happy go-togethers that have the built-in quality of always looking neat and orderly, no matter how hard the wear and tear.
