

The world's most treasured prize

The Nobel Peace prize was presented to Martin Luther King Jr. on December 10, 1964. Queen Louise of Sweden was among the many who congratulated him.

Citizens of Atlanta honor Dr. King, winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, with bowl inscribed, "Citizen of Atlanta, with respect and admiration." The cup was presented by Rabbi Jacob Rothschild.

Dr. King arrives in Berlin, where he preached in the eastern sector. Others are protestant leader Hans-Martin Helbig; protocol chief Cr. Ruprecht Rauch; Dr. Ralph Abernathy; West Berlin Senator Dr. Walter Stein.

Here is the true meaning and value of compassion and nonviolence, when they help us see the enemy's point of view, to hear his questions, to know his assessment of ourselves. For from his vision we may indeed see the basic weaknesses of our own condition, and if we are mature, we may learn and grow and profit from the wisdom of the brothers who are called the opposition.

—Martin Luther King, Jr. — 1968

KPTV 12

EEO