

Portland Peace Movement sponsors a march through downtown Portland in honor of Dr. King.

"My creed for nonviolence is an extremely active force. It has no room for cowardice or even weakness. When a man is fully ready to die he will not even desire to offer violence. History is replete with instances where, by dying with courage and compassion on their lips, men converted the hearts of their violent opponents."

Portland Branch, NAACP, held memorial march to Vancouver Avenue First Baptist Church, where ecumenical service was held.

"One day someone should remind us that, even though there may be political and ideological differences between us, the Vietnamese are our brothers, the Russians are our brothers, the Chinese are our brothers; and one day we've got to sit down together at the table of brotherhood. . . . And when we truly believe in the sacredness of human personality, we won't exploit people, we won't trample over people with the iron fist of oppression, we won't kill anybody."
