

Business Notes

The independent Heritage Bank of Ashland was closed last week by State Superintendent of Banks John Olin. The closure is the third failure of a small Oregon bank this year. The first, Columbia Pacific Bank and Trust of Portland, was liquidated for lack of a serious buyer. Bear Creek Valley Bank of Phoenix, Oregon's second bank failure, was acquired by Valley of the Rogue Bank of Rogue River. Valley of the Rogue is now acquiring Heritage Bank as well.

Governor Vic Atiyeh proclaims the week of May 8-14, 1983, as Small Business Week in the State of Oregon. Atiyeh's proclamation notes that small businesses create two out of every three jobs, account for 33% of our Gross National Product, and provide livelihood for more than 100 million Americans. Small business is of vital importance to the American economy.

Lack of access to capital markets is often cited by small businesses as their major roadblock to expansion and job creation. House Bill 2737 is designed to allow small firms greater access to capital. The bill would allow the packaging of small loans for consideration as one unit by the Economic Development Commission. Packaging would eliminate costly loan processing costs — one of several factors limiting small businesses' access to capital.

Data Resources Inc. of Massachusetts, the state's economic consultants, predicts continued slow growth for Oregon in their latest quarterly forecast.

The new forecast says employment gains in the lumber and wood products industries "are expected to be offset by continued declines in metal products, machinery, and transportation equipment. The recovery in non-wood manufacturing is not expected until late 1983.

Building construction technology alumni of Portland Community College and the college's advisory committee announce plans for Expo '83, a day-long session on home purchasing tips, on Saturday, May 7, at the PCC Rock Creek Campus, 17705 NW Springville Road.

John Warren, conference coordinator, indicated the sessions are planned for the public, PCC alumni and current students. "We will present up-to-date information on home purchasing and remodeling," he said.

Sessions start at 11 a.m. with "Your Lender and You" and "Taxes and Your Home Purchase." At 1 p.m. "Solar Remodel Design" and "Kitchen and Bathroom Remodeling" will be presented.

The Expo will conclude with a session from 2-3 p.m. where a board of experts in the construction field will answer questions about the Portland metropolitan market.

The Consumer Price Index for urban consumers increased 0.1 percent before seasonal adjustment in March, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. The March level of 293.4 (1967 = 100) was 3.6 percent higher than in March 1982.
