Red Cross responds to disaster calls.

Disaster training available

As a follow-up to the Red Cross Disaster Fair held on April 30 at the Fred Meyer Walnut Park store, Disaster classes have been scheduled at Portland Community College, Cascade Center, 705 North Killingsworth, on Saturday, June 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Many neighborhood residents signed up for this class at the Fair, but space is still available. The courses include: Introduction to Disaster (What is a Disaster Relief Program?) and Shelter Management.

Most disaster calls responded to by the Red Cross are single family house fires. When a fire occurs in the neighborhood, it is always an advantage to have local residents on Red Cross Disaster Teams to facilitate aid. In the event of a single family or apartment building fire, they work directly with the victims to insure that their immediate needs for food, clothing and shelter are met.

Disaster classes are provided free of charge by Red Cross. For further information, please call Red Cross Community Services at 243-5279 or Portland Community College Community Services at 283-2541, ext. 305.

MANAGER OF CREDIT

We're B-D DRAKE WILLOCK, a major division of Becton Dickinson dedicated to producing kidney dialysis machines and related products, whose primary goal is superior quality.

We're looking for a person who will oversee the credit and collection functions of the company.

If you thrive on challenge, seek new opportunities rather than waiting for them to come to you, and enjoy solving problems creatively, we'd like you on the Drake Willock team.

You must show that you can manage the credit function to maximize customer relations and sales and to minimize receivables through aggressive but careful financial analysis.

Considered candidates will possess an accounting degree or related major, and four years experience in credit and collection procedures.

Your background should include experience in financial analysis, accounting, negotiation and data processing systems. You should have a thorough knowledge of the legal aspects of domestic and international credit.

If you consider yourself a skilled innovator who's willing to work hard in an environment where quality is second to none, please send your resume and salary history, in confidence. Principals only.
