

Loaned execs aid United Way campaign

Among the executives on loan from their employers this fall to help United Way of the Columbia-Willamette reach its $15.5 million fund raising goal are: Gary Bailey, assembly manager, Tektronix, Inc.; Mora Jackson, service advisor, Pacific Northwest Bell; Beverly Johnson, fifth grade teacher, Irvington School, Portland Public Schools; Paula Kinney, administrative assistant, Portland Public Schools and Jackie Scott, special services supervisor, Pacific Northwest Bell.

Sixty-seven area executives are "on loan" to the United Way from government, education and the professions in Multnomah, Clark, Clackamas and Washington counties.

Through the 12 week campaign, which ends November 23rd, they seek corporate contributions and help company campaign chairman conduct employee giving drives. Loaned Executives remain on their own companies' payroll, enabling the United Way to send to its agencies more than 92 cents out of every dollar contributed. United Way serves 96 agencies in the four-county area.
