

King Center unveils plaque

King Neighborhood Facility, on May 14th, unveils a plaque commemorating its namesake, the late civil rights leader, Martin Luther King, Jr.

The 10 a.m. ceremony at 4815 N.E. 7th Ave., will have Portland Mayor Frank Ivancie and Matthew Prophet, superintendent of the Portland School District, as featured speakers.

Portland City Commissioners, Charles Jordan and Margaret Strachan, will be assisted in the unveiling by two students from adjoining King Primary School and the plaque designer, artist Barbara Johnson.

The school, an early childhood education center for preschool to Grade 5, also will provide music selections from its student choir introduced by school board member Herb Cawthorne.

The facility, opened in 1975, was built by the city with funds from a federal grant and is administered as a community center by the school district.

The school, formerly called Highland, was renamed for the Rev. King in 1968.

Safari Club summer fun planned

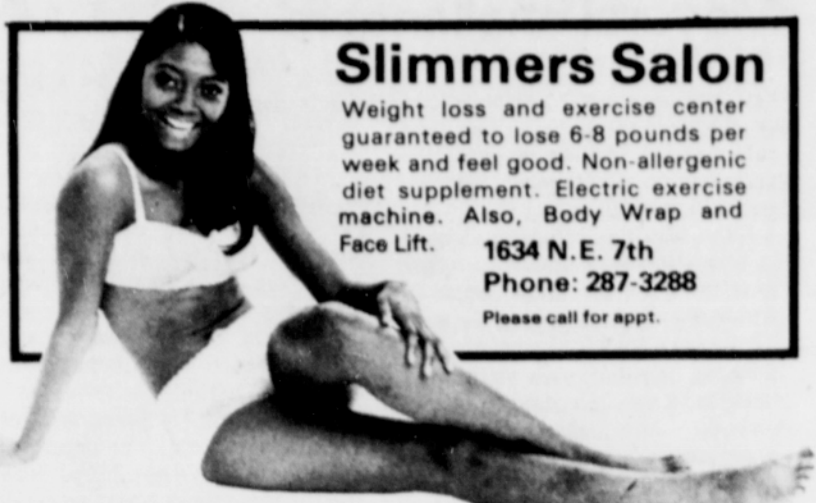

Wondering what your school age child will be doing with his or her time this summer while you're at work? If you're looking for constructive, entertaining activities to occupy their time, you should consider a unique day-camp program called the Safari Club, offered by Ainsworth Goodnews Daycare located at N.E. 30th and Ainsworth. The program is for 6 to 12 year olds and runs June 14th through August 31st. The center will be open weekdays from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The Safari Club emphasizes getting kids out-of-doors during the summer and letting them explore and learn about their environment through supervised field experiences. Kids will enjoy a variety of activities including at least one different field trip each weekday. Trips will range from concerts on the Mall to fishing and overnight campouts. Kids can also learn how to swim or tumble from qualified professionals or improve their reading skills by being members of the camp's book club. Along the way, children will develop important leadership skills by helping to plan their own activities.

Ainsworth Goodnews Daycare is a non-profit, parent-cooperative organization so costs for the program will be kept at a nominal fee. If you register your child by May 15th, you will receive an extra discount on your enrollment fee. Encourage another child to register, and you'll receive another discount. Children may be enrolled for any time period desired, but preference will be given to children enrolling for the entire summer. For further information on how to register your child, contact Leslie Hoy at 294-0364 between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.
